VIOLENT JAPANESE ABUSE OF GREAT BRITAIN BITTER CAMPAIGN IN CHIEF NEWSPAPERS

COURT-MARTIAL ON TAMAR

Cicala Stoker in Trouble

John Thomas Beswarwick, Stoker (1st Class) of H.M.S. Cicala, was sentenced to six months' detention by a court-martial this morning, for striking a superior officer. A full report of the hearing will be given in our final edition.

NURENBURG JEW-BAIT

ARRESTED & PARADED THROUGH STREETS

NAZI ROUND-UP

Berlin, July 20.
The ancient Bavarian city of Nuremberg was the scene this morning of a great round-up of Jewish residents, who have been placed under detention.

Over two hundred Jews, mainly prominent members of the community, well-known business men and shopkeepers, were arrested.

They were not taken immediately to the detention barracks, but were paraded through the streets in procession, flanked by Nazi storm-troops. Only later were they taken to the barracks.

AUTHORITY NOT KNOWN.

The action is described in Nuremberg Nazi circles as a drive against Jewish society, but it is not known whether the action was sanctioned by higher authority, or whether the storm-troops took the law into their own hands.

It is also reported that a meeting of Jews in the Synagogue at Nuremberg was dissolved last night and that all who were present were placed under arrest.—Reuter.

AGENCY CLOSED.

Berlin, July 20.
The Berlin office of the Jewish Telegraph Agency was closed by the police to-day.

Furniture was confiscated and publication of the agency bulletin prohibited.—Reuter.

WARDER'S SON FALLS FROM VERANDAH

Park Road Quarters Accident

A shocking accident occurred at No. 1, Park Road, yesterday morning, when John English, the five-years-old son of Warden English, fell from the second floor verandah and was seriously injured about the head.

He was rushed to the Government Civil Hospital where, we are glad to say, he is reported to be making good progress after spending a comfortable night.

It is understood that John was in the kitchen at the time and climbed on to the sink. He lost his balance and fell into the backyard.

JAPANESE PLANES BOMB BANDITS

Harbin, July 17.
According to an official Japanese despatch, Japanese troops yesterday surrounded a woody lair of 200 bandits about fifteen miles north-east of Harbin.

The bandits were bombed by Japanese aeroplanes, and, it is stated, about fifty bandits killed and forty wounded.—Reuter.

THE SOVIET ALSO ATTACKED

LAMPOONED AND DENOUNCED

FOREIGNERS CALM

Tokyo, July 21.
A crusade against Britain and Russia, in which editorial abuse sets itself no limits, is being conducted by the Japanese Press.

London is their target because of the increase in the tariff on imports into India, and Moscow is suffering because of a renewed outburst against Communism shaping itself.

Besides the two countries being lampooned in the daily newspapers and articles in the leading Japanese magazines, posters, bitterly denouncing Britain and demanding a severance of diplomatic relations with Russia, are being placarded.

VIRULENT OUTBURST.

Foreign quarters view these journalistic eruptions calmly as one of the virulent outbursts of xenophobia which, they assert, the Japanese Press chronically displays.

With Britain and Russia in disfavour, America is now basking in the rather unaccustomed sunshine of eulogistic tributes from writers who not long ago were more inclined to hurl verbal brickbats at that country.

ANTI-BRITISH ATTITUDE.

Observers believe the campaign against Britain will be quickly suspended if satisfactory agreements are reached as a result of the projected trade parleys in Simla or London, while the termination or continuance of the vilification of the Soviet is likely to depend largely on the outcome of the present negotiations for the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway.—Reuter.

FOREIGN HEAT PROSTRATION

BRITON REMOVED TO HOSPITAL

Shanghai, July 18.
Mr. L. Goldman, a British subject, collapsed yesterday morning at about 10 o'clock near the bus stop at St. George's. He was taken in a Fire Brigade Ambulance to the Country Hospital where he appeared to be suffering from heat exhaustion. Inquiries last evening revealed that his condition was better. Fire Brigade Ambulances also responded yesterday to several calls where Chinese had suffered from the same complaint.

ROYAL GARDEN PARTY

ATTENDED BY MANY W.E.C. DELEGATES

London, July 20.
About six thousand guests attended a garden party given by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace to-day.

The Annual event had a more than usually international character owing to the presence of many delegates in London for the World Economic Conference.—British Wireless.

BRITISH SIDE OF STORY

SEVERE JAPANESE DUMPING

DISCUSSION IN COMMONS

London, July 20.
On a motion for the adjournment of the House, the Commons discussed Japanese competition in silk and cotton goods.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister admitted that the preferences in the Colonies were quite inadequate to cope with the dumping. In some cases, the duties would have to be increased by two hundred per cent.

He was certain that if the present negotiations with Japan were unsuccessful, the Colonies would take steps to protect British interests.—Reuter.

The greatest perturbation, which is shared by many merchants in the Colonies, is felt by British manufacturing interests whose marks are being dislocated by the importation of increasing quantities of such commodities as cotton piece-goods, silks, hosiery, shoes, hats, and even fruit, at prices which are in most cases but a fraction of normal production costs.

SOME EXAMPLES.

The extent of the displacement of British goods by Japan is shown by what is happening in the piece-goods trade. Ceylon imported during the first quarter of last year 2,602,982 yards of Japanese piece-goods out of a total importation of 6,461,386 yards; in the corresponding period of this year the Japanese share was 4,249,740 yards out of a total of 6,828,516 yards. In 1930, Jamaica imported cotton piece-goods and some other textile commodities from Japan to the value of approximately 234,000; in 1931 the figure had risen to 452,000 and last year to 1,183,000. Nyasaland took from Japan last year about 44 per cent of the total amount of piece-goods imported, while the British share was only 13.1 per cent. The fact is quite clear that, in many trades, Japan is making substantial sacrifices in order to capture extensive markets, with grave effects upon British trade.

WORLD'S BIGGEST DRY DOCK

London, July 20.

The world's largest dry dock will be opened at Southampton next Wednesday when the Royal yacht "Victoria" and "Albert," with Their Majesties aboard, will break a red, white, and blue ribbon stretched across its entrance.

The new graving dock which cost over £200,000 is part of the southern Railway's £15,000,000 dock extension scheme and constitutes one of the most remarkable achievements in the history of British engineering.

The Dock holds 200,000 tons of water and the sea is kept back by huge steel doors weighing 4,000 tons. During its construction, in which 450,000 tons of concrete were used, the sea was held away by a great earthen bank reinforced by a curtain of steel.—British Wireless.

Whilst engaged in work on a crane at Talbot Dockyard, a labourer, W. Shing, had three fingers of his left hand crushed and was removed to hospital.—British Wireless.

POST OVER ALASKA

COMPLETES TRIP FROM SIBERIA

WORST OF FLIGHT PASSED

Nome, Alaska, July 21.

Wiley Post, the famous American globe-flier, has completed the most perilous section of his long journey, passing over Nome last night, presumably heading for Fairbanks.

He made splendid time from Harbinovsk and now stands a wonderful chance of beating his own record, established with Harold Gatty, of 8 days, 15 hours, for the trip from New York round the world and back.

He is expected to complete the flight in two hops, from Fairbanks to Edmonton, Canada, and from Edmonton to New York. He is now well within previous time.

LOG OF FLIGHT.

Log of the flight:
July 15, Dawn: Leaves New York.
July 16, 11.55 a.m. Arrives Berlin.
2.11 p.m. Off for Novosibirsk.

6.40 p.m. Compelled to land at Koenigsberg, bad weather.

July 17, 6.45 a.m. Leaves for Moscow.
2.20 p.m. in Moscow
5.12 a.m. Off for Novosibirsk.

July 18, 6.27 a.m. In Novosibirsk.
8.55 a.m. Off for Irkutsk.
3.35 p.m. In Irkutsk.
(Held Up bad weather)

July 19, Compelled to land 700 miles from Harbinovsk.

July 20, 8.45 a.m. Arrives Harbinovsk.
5.58 a.m. Heads for Alaska.

Wiley Post is using the same machine as that in which he created the record with Gatty. It is a Lockheed.—Reuter.

KING FEISAL LEAVES

LONDON VISIT AT AN END

London, July 20.

JACK MCGOVERN SUSPENDED

REFUSAL TO OBEY SPEAKER

SECOND TIME IN THREE YEARS

London, July 20.

Not for the first time in his Parliamentary career, Mr. Jack McGovern, one of the Clyde extremist group, has been suspended from the Speaker of the House of Commons.

A vote in favour of his suspension was passed by the House by 161 votes to 24. The action was taken as the result of Mr. McGovern's refusal to obey the Chair.

Mr. McGovern is the member for the Shettleston Division of Glasgow, fighting the last election as a member of the I.L.P. and defeating the official Labour candidate, Mr. J. Marshall by 14,000 votes, although his majority over the Conservative was merely 771.

STORMY SCENES.

His career in Parliament, which he first entered in 1930, has been distinguished chiefly by stormy scenes, the last of which prior to night's occurrence, ended in his forcible removal from the House of Commons and his suspension for the rest of the session.

He was imprisoned some little time ago as the result of the part he played in the Glasgow riots.—Reuter.

BARNETT CUP AT BISLEY

London, July 20.
Sierra Leone won the Barnett Challenge Cup, open to teams from Empire countries, excluding the Dominions, which was shot at Blaisy to-day.

Sierra Leone won with a score of 347. The Sudan team also secured a score of 347, but Sierra Leone had a better total over the final range.

The Gold Coast took third place with 348. The Malay States scored 389, and the China (Treaty ports) team obtained 382 points. Ceylon shot very badly, returning a score of 224.

Other competitors were Nigeria, the Falkland Islands, and Kenya Colony.—Reuter.

BEDLAM REIGNS IN CHICAGO

SHARE AND COMMODITY PRICES TOPPLE

ROOSEVELT NOT ALARMED

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 21, 9.45 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, JULY 20.
THE VIOLENT CRASH ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE HAS CAUSED A NEAR-PANIC AMONG SPECULATORS, WHILE THE SITUATION IN THE CHICAGO WHEAT-PIT WAS EVEN MORE DISTASTROUS. SOMETHING LIKE BEDLAM BROKE LOSE AND PRICES CONTINUED THEIR HEAD-LONG TUMBLE.

Despite the alarm with which the situation is viewed by the public, it is learned that the Government is welcoming the market break as a logical and healthy reaction from the recent heavy speculation, which officials feared might endanger the recovery programme.

If the crash is not soon checked, Washington may hold a different view, but it is believed that the panic will wear itself out and that the market will right itself again in two or three days.

ENORMOUS SELLING WAVE

It is not thought that the crash was the result of Government action, but it is known that President Roosevelt desired to prevent the rapid rise of stocks and commodities in wages have not been keeping pace, and secondly because production has been getting on a basis which consuming power will not reach until it has been stimulated by wage increases and spreading employment.

The Government has power to curb speculation and it is indicated that this power might be used. The Administration has ordered the members of all grain exchanges to report their excessive commitments.—United Press. Per Gold Bar Co.

BEDLAM IN CHICAGO.

New York, July 20.
Stocks crashed from four to twenty-three points with a huge turn-over. Tickers were half an hour behind due to further work in wet issues.

There were violent fluctuations in grain prices owing to fear of the Government's investigation of the speculation situation and also Hugh Johnson's statement that a crisis is ahead if distorted prices continued.

Wheat lost 13½ to 15 cents, Corn 12 to 13, Cotton 35, Silver 200 points and Wool 400 to 500.

Bedlam existed in the Chicago pit as brokers fought to unload hundreds of thousands bushels due to continuation of yesterday's break. Wildest market ever seen since October 1929. Wheat crashing twenty-six cents before the decline was halted.

Brokers' loans were reported at $1,000,000,000, an increase of $12,000,000 over last week's figure of $991,000,000.—Spain, Culbertson.

SEMI-PANIC.

New York, July 20.
There was a semi-panic in the Chicago Wheat Pit and prices suffered the worst fall of the year, following upon yesterday's head-long descent.

They plunged well below the dollar line, closing from 14 to 17 points down.

Rye fell 26 points, Maize 13 points, cotton 72 to eighty cents, while the American dollar, which had been at 82½, moved to 81½.

SCOTLAND'S WIN AT BISLEY

London, July 20.
At the Bisley meeting to-day, Scotland's Imperial Challenge was won by Scotland, who defeated the English team by 100 to 80.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

She Is "Lilybet" No Longer, But Britain's Darling Still!

PRINCESS WHO MAY BECOME SECOND "QUEEN BESS" IS SEVEN NOW AND A REGAL LITTLE LADY

By Milton Bronner

London.—To many millions of British women and children it came with a shock recently that "Lilybet" had passed out of their lives and that "Elizabeth" had come to take her place.

Which is another way of saying that the eldest baby girl of the Duke and Duchess of York has grown out of the lapping stage and has become the 7-year-old child, perfectly capable of pronouncing correctly all but the very biggest words.

But Elizabeth, like "Lilybet," still remains the darling of the British multitude. The cute, funny things she says quickly drift down to the public.

When she wears a peculiar shade of yellow, ten thousand little girls suddenly blossom out in primrose colour. When she appears in the park in a particular cut of cap, ten thousand other curly-heads soon are adorned with the same kind of thing.

After Elizabeth grew up to the talking stage, the loyal British press started to create her legend. For after all, unless she has a baby brother some day, she will, if she lives, be Queen of England, a second Queen Bess.

For after King George comes the Prince of Wales. He is a bachelor and likely to remain so. After him comes his next brother, the Duke of York, and after him, his eldest girl.

But the legend-makers soon had an easy task. "Lilybet" made her own legend. She said just the kind of things that parents love in their own children. She was so eager, so human, so unspoiled in all her public appearances that the people doted on her.

At first she struck the crowds by her startling resemblance to her grandmother, Queen Mary. But now she is developing a distinct face of her own. She bids fair to be the greatest beauty the House of Windsor has produced in many a long day.

Princess Elizabeth lives in a real house, a real home, although there are, so to speak, castles all around her. Her paternal royal grandfather has Buckingham and Windsor and Balmoral. On the maternal side, there is the romantic old Scotch Castle of Glamis.

But early in her life, her parents, like sensible people, determined to rear their children not in a show place, but a home. Their residence, 146 Piccadilly, is near Hyde Park—a big four-story stone-front, old-fashioned residence with big rooms and high ceilings. It is just the kind of house other well-to-do people live in.

plain unadorned school room. Here is the nursery where she plays with her sister and their friends.

In the back is a piece of park where they romp and play like any other children.

When the weather gets nice, her parents move to the Royal Lodge in Windsor Park—another simple home. But the child loves it, because in the park there has been erected the high top house which was presented her by the people of Wales.

Here she does "serious house-keeping," with the toy bedrooms, drawing rooms and even a kitchen which has been supplied with electricity and water.

Being a Princess does not save her from the bugaboo of every child's life—the tough job of lessons. Two hours every morning and one hour every afternoon are devoted to her studies. Already she reads, writes and spells. She has begun to learn French. She has music lessons and dancing lessons and has learned to skate on ice. From her Scotch mother, especially, she has learned the old-fashioned reels and flings of bonny Scotland. Out at Windsor Park, where she has greater freedom to roam, she often rides her pony, Peggy.

Her relations with her royal grandparents are singularly close. When she goes up to visit Grandma at Balmoral, her greatest joy is a picnic with the Queen in a new summer house at the Pass of Ballater.

In Princess Elizabeth, King George has come into his own. "Grandpa King" can do no wrong. On any question under the sun, what "Grandpa King" says goes with Lilybet. It is the law and the gospel. For her he is the fount of wisdom.

For him she is a gleam of sunshine, a figure out of a fairy tale in a hard, depressed, serious, workaday world where even kings have their worries and troubles.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Our bodies are the food we eat, the water we drink, and the air we breathe. Little else enters into our chemistry except perhaps sunlight. But even sunlight is transmitted to us indirectly through certain foods. We cannot live without any of these things.

In our systems as we know are dozens of varieties of elements, minerals and so on. Most of these things we must get through our foods.

Therefore we have in us, only those things we eat. No magic can put calcium, iron, manganese, protein or albumen into our tissues and bones. We must take them through our mouths.

If we eat too much of some foods and nothing of others certain parts of the body will grow sickly and weak. Why then do people insist on following "taste" instead of nature if they want to be well and to keep their children well.

Balanced Diets Rare.

The Public Health Nursing Association after a survey of home diets tells us that in spite of all that has been done to educate people about necessary foods, the majority of diets are still "greatly off balance."

The average diet is low in minerals and too high in fat and condiments and sugars, is the report. "Fats, condiments and sweets!" I find this report fits in with other surveys of home buying. Certainly children need fats and sugars, and as for the condiments that make eating more pleasant, pure relishes preparations will not hurt children after they are old enough to eat exciting foods. But they were never intended to take the place of other foods.

Let us use sense. When too strong foods or too rich foods take away the appetite for plain foods the mother of the family must do some thinking.

Families living on welfare money—must of course, budget. But I think we will find that many families who are eating all wrong now were eating all wrong when they were able to set more bountiful tables.

Here's a Simple Rule

It isn't necessary to go into all the whys and wherefores here but vegetables that grow above the ground must be eaten to stabilize health and develop bodies. The other vegetables are needed too, but it is the above-ground ones that are neglected. They are very cheap.

Milk, plain meats, all vegetables, fats in some form, eggs, fresh, canned or dried fruits, fish at least once a week for its iodine content, sweets—all these things are necessary to a growing child. It costs no more to vary the diet than to have the same things over and over again.

It seems odd that so many people do not desire to learn. As I have said, no magic brings strong muscles and bones and good blood. They are the result of sensible and varied eating.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Monnie turned the letter slowly in her hands. Dan's familiar writing, black and bold, stared back at her. Her heart turned over. How odd—how very odd it was to receive a letter from him at this moment, when she was trying to make the most momentous decision of her life! It was as if Dan himself had reached across the many miles that separated them, saying, "Wait, Monnie! Don't forget me, I'm still here!"

Ah, but he was the one who had forgotten, her sore heart reminded her. He it was who had written that other letter, the cruel one telling her they'd better "hold up the plans" for the January wedding. No, it was no use depending on Dan. She'd done that in the past and her pride, her love, her faith in him had been wounded past bearing.

Should she open it? Should she make her decision first—and by this time she had pretty well decided what she would say to Arthur Mackenzie on the morrow—and read Dan's letter afterward? Had he still the power to sway her past reason, past belief? Did she dare to see what Dan had written her on the very day before she had sailed from New York to adventure and another man's devotion? She wondered. While she was pondering the matter, flushed and disturbed, little Miss Anstice blew in.

"My dear, I had no idea you'd be home so early!" Miss Anstice, imposing in silver cloth with a collar of gray fox, stared frankly at her travelling companion. "I thought you'd be out until all hours. 'Painting the town,' as they say. Are you feeling all right?"

"Yes—no," Monica stammered, not knowing how to explain. Then on a sudden impulse she blurted out the truth.

"Mr. Mackenzie's sailing unexpectedly for home to-morrow," she said. "He—Miss Anstice, he wants me to marry him and go with him."

"Well, I declare," Miss Anstice's beautiful cowl of silvery Grecian curls fairly quivered. She sat down abruptly. "Of course, I know something like this was in the air," she began breathlessly, "but not so soon! My dear!"

"I—I haven't decided," Monnie confessed. "I don't know what to do. Help me, Miss Anstice. What shall I say to him?"

"If you're considering me in this," cried the older woman shrewdly, "please forget all about it. I can get along splendidly although I shall miss you, of course. The truth is Sally Richardson is dying to do Paris with me—with us, I mean, and wants to go on to Switzerland afterward. Do as your heart bids you, my dear! I never advise in matters of this sort. Too risky. But I will say this. Mr. Mackenzie's a splendid man and very fond of you—anyone can see that."

"I—I don't love him," Monnie faltered. "I'm fond of him. I like him as a friend but—but—"

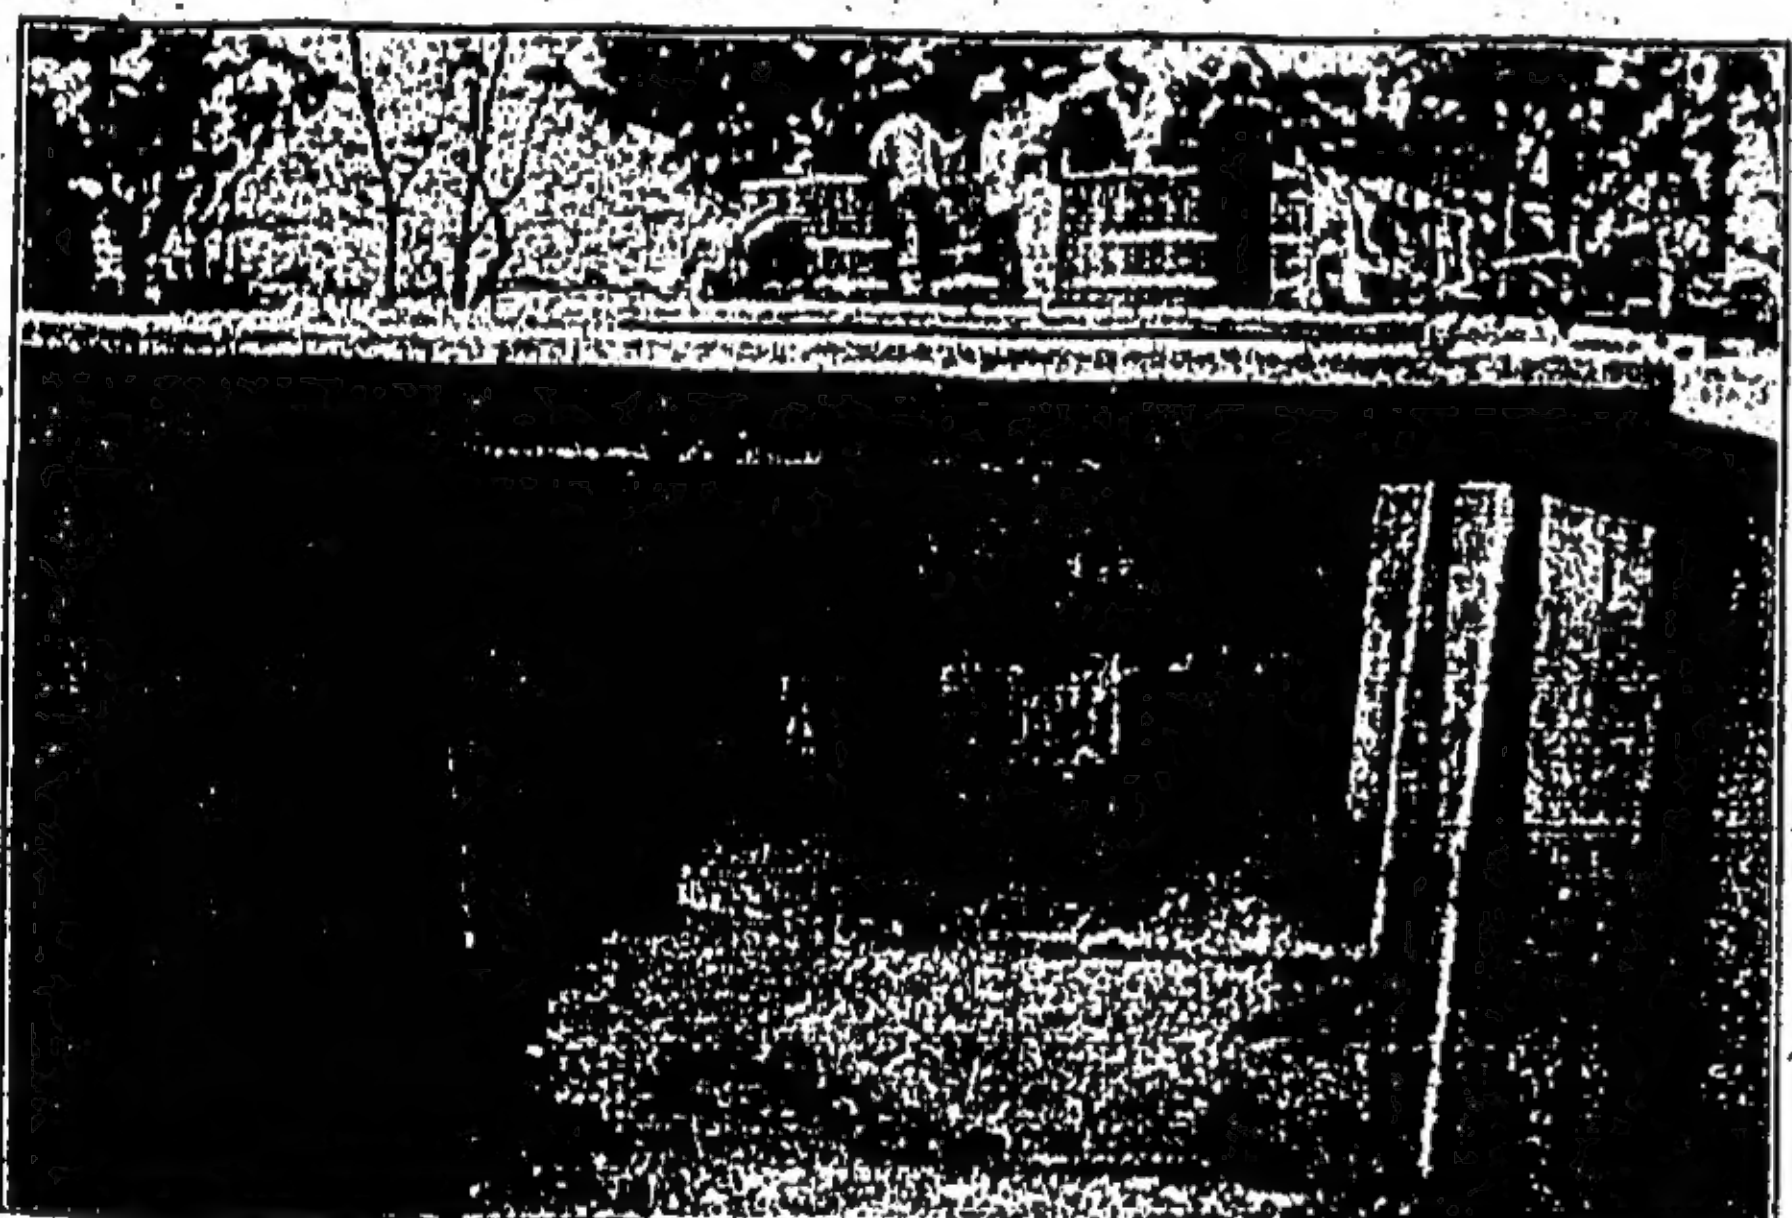

"He doesn't make your heart stand still, eh?" Miss Anstice considered this, bright head on one side like a silver-plumed bird.

"Well, my dear, I've seen many a marriage in my time. Love matches. They don't always turn out so well, either. You have an even chance for happiness, starting with friendship and respect. Then, too, my dear, there's the matter of money to be thought of. I'm not a worldly person. You know that. Been poor all my life until just lately. And now that I have had my taste of luxury I'm afraid I shall never be able to do without it again. It's all so pleasant—breakfast in bed, nice frocks, being able to tip the waiter without worrying about it. Yes, money's important."

"I'd be the last person in the world to tell a girl to consider money only when thinking of marriage and I know what poverty can do to young people. I'd like to see you get some of the whipped cream of life while you're young."

It was a long speech and Miss Anstice was rather breathless at the end of it. She stripped off her creamy gloves and smoothed them together.

"There's your family, too," she continued after a silence. "Kay—think what a brilliant marriage would do for her."

"I've thought of that," Monnie said briefly. She crumpled the letter in her hands, looking at the fire in the grate.

"Child, child, you're shivering!" the older woman said, appalled. "Go to bed. You mustn't catch cold. Well talk of this in the morning."

Monnie escaped, her head in a whirl, the letter still clasped in her hand.

The clock struck one, struck two. In the room beyond she could hear the faint snore of her benefactress. Monnie knew that she herself would be a wreck to-morrow, look a perfect fright, if she didn't get some sleep. She tossed and turned restlessly between the crisp English sheets. Yes, Miss Anstice was right. Reason triumphed over emotion here. Her mind had been almost made up when the conversation had begun. Miss Anstice had crystallized her feeling. She would be a fool to throw away such a chance. She would say "yes" to Mackenzie on the morrow and go away with him as his wife. She would forget all the old ardours of young love. They were silly, weren't they? What was that old song she had heard somewhere? Oh, yes, "Oh, how I laugh when I think how I cried about you."

That was the right spirit, no doubt about it! Take love lightly! The trouble with her was that she had been too serious about Dan, probably had bored him by the very earnestness and steadfastness of her devotion. That wasn't what men wanted or what they cared about. They liked you to laugh, to be gay and foolish and inconsequential. Monnie had been all of that with Arthur Mackenzie.

Well, pirate or not, she liked him. A girl liked to be swept off her feet. The boldness, the swiftness and unexpectedness of the situation appealed to her. Beyond the morrow she would not look. When his deep voice came to her over the telephone she would say, "I'm coming, with you."

There would be, naturally, notices in the newspapers. Mackenzie was too important for his marriage to go unnoticed. People would say, "Who is she? A nobody?" and dismiss her. Except in Belvedere. People there who had ignored her, turned their faces the other way when they passed her on the street, would be anxious now to say they'd known her. It was silly—it was unworthy and Monnie knew it—to feel a thrill of triumph at this thought—but she was only human and could not suppress the feeling.

She could not sleep—at least until she read Dan's letter. It was burning a hole in the pillow underneath which she had thrust it.

Reluctantly Monnie drew it forth and, snapping on the rose-shaded

SENTENCE OF DEATH

A RECOMMENDATION TO MERCY

Sentence of death was passed on Fan Hing, the 20-year-old murderer of an elderly Shaanxi woman by the Chief Justice Mr. J. R. Wood, at the Supreme Court yesterday.

The jury were a little over 30 minutes considering their verdict, and when they filed into the court, the foreman said: "We find the accused guilty of murder, with a strong recommendation to mercy, as we think he was acting under the undue domination of the woman."

Prisoner, a slight boyish figure, witnessed the donning of the black cap and heard the sentence of death with the same stoical calm he had preserved throughout the two days proceedings.

In reply to Mr. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, the Chief Justice stated that an application by the Crown to enter a nulla prosequi in respect of the woman referred to (the wife of the prisoner) was granted, and she would accordingly be released from custody.

lamp beside her bed, ripped open the thick envelope. She had steel-ed herself to coolness, to indifference, but in spite of herself her heart beat faster at the opening sentence.

"Darling Monnie," (Dan wrote) "I have been all sorts of a fool and can you forgive me? You know I'm not very good at letter-writing—never was. I can't say what I want on paper. But will you just drop me a line to say everything's all right? I wired you at the hotel but they said they couldn't deliver the message because you'd already gone. I got home just as you were leaving. Wasn't that rotten luck? I'll be waiting. All my love."

Monnie stared at it, turning the thick sheet in her hands. It was the longest letter she had ever received from Dan, the most articulate. All his love! Why, she had been a fool ever to think she'd lost it! When two people felt as she and Dan did about each other, when the whole world was changed and glorified for one merely by the knowledge that the other existed in it, it was stupid—wasn't it?—to take second best.

Suddenly everything was clear to her. Her course was clear. Miss Anstice admitted she would get along without her. She would leave to-morrow, not as Arthur Mackenzie's bride but as Monica O'Dare, going back to the man she loved. Calmness descended upon her. She slept.

Miss Anstice woke her, shaking her gently. "My dear, he's on the wire!"

"Who? Where?" Ah, she was dead, she was so weary. What did Miss Anstice mean?

"Mr. Mackenzie. He sounds terrifically excited—and happy."

It all came back to her at once. Something she had to do—to tell Arthur Mackenzie. She wasn't going to marry him after all. All her dreams of a brilliant marriage had faded. Dan still cared for her and wanted her.

She stumbled to the telephone, knotting the cord of her dressing gown.

"I'm sorry," she said in a low voice. "I can't. Simply that. No explanations. No excuses."

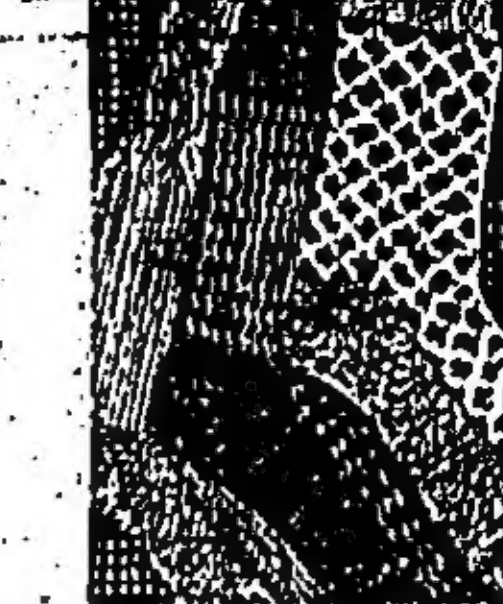

The man at the other end of the wire hesitated for a long moment. Then, "Can I do anything to make you change your mind?" he asked.

Monnie, feeling utterly abject and ashamed, said no. But, she added, "I'm leaving for New York to-day. If you don't mind I'm taking passage on your boat."

He gave a joyous shout, triumph in his voice.

Monnie, with Miss Anstice's surprised gaze upon her, knew what his thought was: it could be easy for him to break down her defences on the trip home. (To be Continued.)

WHEN the Manufacturers Life representative returned, it was too late! Unforeseeable physical developments had not only ended his earning days, but had left him uninsurable. No longer could he earn a livelihood for his dependants. Too late now to protect their future. Don't you say "some time later" to the Manufacturers Life agent. Let him tell you how to provide against life's uncertainties.

M.I. Struct. E., M.I.N.A., of Vancouver, well-known forestry expert, made a comprehensive inspection and report on Realisation work of N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd.

TRANSPORT.—Definite recommendations for the internal transportation of raw material and manufactured products, have been adopted by the Committee, and active measures taken to acquire all necessary rights of way for the main transportation line. A contract has been let for the survey and construction of 40 miles of steel track forming the line. This work is being pressed forward.

Definite recommendations were also put forward regarding transportation of manufactured goods from the forests to deep water, for export.

PLANT SITES.—Three definite sites have been decided on. All are located definitely on the main transportation line. The necessary land for these sites has already been acquired and sufficient land adjacent for town and village sites.

COST OF PRODUCTION.—Evidence from expert sources shows that we are favorably placed to produce merchandise for which there is a sustained demand, at competitive prices—with a satisfactory margin of profit.

SAMPLE PLOTS.—These are being established to ascertain the volume of softwoods available at any definite time on the whole of the plantations, and the average rate of growth for any period. The methods adopted are approved by the best expert advice obtainable both in New Zealand and abroad.

FINANCE AND GENERAL.—The policy for financing the conversion of the timber into marketable merchandise is now receiving very careful consideration by the Committee.

The above report deals with the Realisation aspect of N.Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd., business.
It shows the soundness of the investment offered by the Company. For further details address

IS AN UPPER CYLINDER LUBRICANT NECESSARY?

Practically every mail from Home brings to us fresh evidence from our Principals, Messrs. C. C. Wakefield & Co., Ltd., that an Upper Cylinder Lubricant is no longer regarded as a luxury but is becoming an acknowledged necessity amongst conscientious motorists, aviators, and mechanical engineers.

Messrs. Wakefield after exhaustive tests have produced Castrollo, an Upper Cylinder Lubricant that reduces carbon formation, friction, wear and petrol consumption.

A quart tin of Castrollo costs only $5.00 and contains sufficient oil to treat 160 gallons of fuel which is a little over 3 cents a gallon. The cap on the tin is a half oz. measure for two gallons of petrol.

The evidence above referred to is available for inspection here and consists of testimonials from ordinary motorists, racing experts, aviators, and big concerns such as Messrs. Henlys, Ltd., The Eastern Greyhound and The Pennsylvania Greyhound Omnibus Services controlling eighteen fleets totalling 850 vehicles, all reporting when using Castrollo an increase in petrol mileage, reduced carbon formation, prevention of sticky valves, reduced valve grinding and reduced running time on engines after overhaul.

Castrollo is stocked by The Peak Garage, Dodwell Motor Service Station, Duro Motor Car Co., South China Motor Car Co., East Point Garage, Hongkong Motor Accessory, Alex. Ross & Co., Nathan Road Garage, Sincere Co., Ltd., etc., but if you have any trouble in getting supplies please give us a ring (21746) and we will give immediate attention to your requirements.

NORTH POINT AMENITIES

Sociologically, the entire community has an interest in the plans of the Government to resume the bathing sites frequented by the Chinese at North Point. There is much more to the problem than ways and means of providing adequate alternative sites. Our strongest feeling, on examining the petition of those most vitally affected and the explanation of the Government's position, concerns the underlying question of public policy. We shall not easily forget the fate of the Praya East Reclamation. A large area of land wrested from the sea, thrown open to development, and offering endless opportunities for constructive model planning, sacrificed to the speculator and becoming a blighted district of hideous, inadequate tenement blocks, now rapidly developing into slums. In Kowloon, much the same story can be told. The interests of the community are ruthlessly subordinated to economic ends. Social amenities become the sport of the land market merely because they may prove a source of profit to an individual or a firm. Since stocks and shares lost their attraction to the man with idle money, one district after another has become the scene of hectic development, generally drab and unregulated. It is not altogether a healthy sign. On the contrary, the helter-skelter pace should, in itself, convey a warning of reaction. And Government, which should be seriously considering the problems created by our excessive urbanisation, turns its attention to North Point, one of the few remaining districts where there is an outlet, with a view to casting that too into the waiting arms of the speculator. To-day it is a boon to thousands of Chinese who indulge in healthy recreation after office hours. No alternative sites would fill the gap created by the resumption of this area. Cheapness and ease of transport, wonderfully handled by the tramway company, is the cogent factor in the popularity of the North Point bathing pavilions. To order removal is to deprive hundreds of their one relief from sometimes sordid surroundings. Is it not time that this Colony considered social necessities a little more and compelled economic considerations to conform to them?

NOTES OF THE DAY

The crash on the New York Stock Exchange comes as no surprise. It has been evident for some time past that the steady boost has been the result of speculative pressure, bearing no relation whatsoever to economic realities. A similarly unhealthy condition has been noted in the commodity markets and, even more dangerous, in industry itself, where production has been undertaken on a large scale in anticipation of a consumer demand which has not yet been created. Continued movement along these lines could only have the effect of precipitating a graver crisis than that which President Roosevelt was called upon to face when he entered office. The shake-out of the market should do a considerable amount of good.

FOUR-POWER PACT

The Four-Power Pact ceased to be of vital importance from the moment that the French modifications were accepted. The final signature at Rome this week is not likely, therefore, to have any material influence upon European politics. When Germany consented with the comment that the Pact was not what quite what they expected, the whole story was told. In its first form it sought to establish something very closely akin to a Directory of Europe. It was objectionable for a score of reasons. The final draft is practically innocuous; it represents resignation to solidarity among the four leading Powers, without which Europe would ultimately find itself divided into two hostile camps. The maintenance of peace would have become practically impossible. Insofar as it removes this danger, it must be regarded as useful. Above and beyond, in seeking to achieve anything like collaboration, it is inadequate. A Franco-German rapprochement is not to be secured by this method.

COLONIAL EDUCATION

At a recent meeting of the Education Circle of the Royal Empire Society, Sir George Maxwell delivered a thoughtful address on "Some Problems of Vernacular Education." Although a member of the Colonial Office Advisory Committee on Education, he spoke not as an educationist but as a Colonial administrator deeply impressed by the importance of education as an essential factor in good administration. Reviewing past policies, he showed that all Colonies had neglected vernacular education, and had preferred, not unnaturally, to use European language and technique as the instrument of education and culture, and even although there is agreement in principle as to the importance of vernacular education, actual practice lags far behind the policy declared on paper, the vernacular school is the Cinderella of the educational system. There is not, in the lecturer's belief, a single British Colony where there is any attempt to raise the standard of vernacular education above the merest rudiments. We wonder whether our Director of Education would challenge this statement.

LONDON UNIVERSITY

It is said that visitors to Britain sometimes ask to be shown the Church of England and the University of London. Neither of these requests can be satisfied, for both these institutions lack a central and official headquarters. This feature of London University, however, will be somewhat modified by the gigantic building near the British Museum of which the foundation stone has been laid by the King. It is not the limb, the theta, the stature, bulk, and big assemblages of the body that denote the true progress of a university necessarily to be reckoned by the tons of masonry that it piles up, or the acres of ground which its buildings cover. Nevertheless, the edifice which London University will erect on what is known as the Bloomsbury site is a notable landmark in educational progress in Great Britain. But where the new Bloomsbury building is expected to help is that it will not interfere with the activities of the existing colleges, which will continue to perform their customary functions. But it will provide an adequate centre for many university, as distinct from college, enterprises; it will be an administrative headquarters; and will in innumerable ways, simplify the task of welding the diverse parts of the university into a homogeneous whole, by giving to it an actual and visible centre.

JACK HYLTON—WITH

HALF AN HOUR TO SPARE IN LONDON

"Half an hour to spare—what can I do with it in London?"

When a business friend from Vienna put this question to me in London the other day, I was startled to find that I could not give him a satisfactory answer. I was more than startled. I was annoyed with myself for my failure, and just a little disappointed that the London I knew and love so well could not provide me with a ready suggestion. And I cast my mind over the time when in other cities of Europe I, too, have had half an hour to spare, and wanted to spend it in a pleasant and inexpensive manner. The comparison was not a happy one—for London.

On first thoughts it would seem a simple thing to while away half an hour pleasantly and intelligently. But half an hour is a difficult period to play with.

It does not, for example, permit you to travel far in a congested city in search of occupation.

WHY NOT WRITE HOME?

It does not allow you to visit a theatre, unless you wish to throw away money; even half-an-hour of non-stop variety would be expensive at five shillings.

The National Gallery would be useless unless you were in the neighbourhood and wanted to see a particular picture or two, since to wander aimlessly among that vast collection is to confuse the brain and weary the feet.

You may be a mile from the parks, where with more leisure you could sit in peace and watch the passing pageant. You might, of course, go and have a drink—assuming that you were disposed to drink and that your idle half-hour did not fall within one of those periods when the law decrees that you must remain thirsty. Yet even then you are seldom assured of any comfort in the places where you go to drink, unless it should be the lounge of a handy luxury hotel—where of course you pay a high price for the drink!

But wait—an idea! Why not write a letter home while awaiting your delayed tea? Your request for pen, ink and paper is met with a flicker of eyebrows. The manageress is approached and after some consultation with the scrivener you are informed that you can be obliged with pen and ink, but not with paper. Often not even pen and ink are available.

So you try the lounge of the nearest hotel; but here, unless you are known, you are liable to be suspected of using the hotel stationery for an unlawful purpose! You leave the letter till another time and rashly decide to taxi to the Thames Embankment at Westminster, where you may breathe the air and see the ships. At Piccadilly your taxi is held up for several minutes and again at Trafalgar-square, where it courteously negotiates the merry-go-round only to be checked in Whitehall and again at the bottom of Parliament-street by a procession; so that you have just five minutes on the Embankment before returning whence you came!

Here is one of the chief difficulties of spending your half-hour in London: there are so many pleasant places to visit, if you could only reach them in a shorter time than the half-hour you have to spare.

NOT A PLACE FOR IDLING.

The truth is that London, compared with the other capitals of Europe, is the most difficult of all cities in which to spend an idle half-hour pleasantly. I love London and the unfavourable comparison does not please me. Partly the traffic problem is responsible; the lovely things of London are not accessible in half an hour. But even without our traffic problem the capital undoubtedly does lack the amenities that would make your half-hour a pleasure instead of a penance.

Consider, shall I say, Vienna, whence came the friend who set me so hard a problem. Here your odd half-hour is never a penance. You move about easily and freely. Within a few minutes you can be standing on the edge of one of the city's many swimming pools ready for a five-minute plunge; in London your open-air dip costs you half a day.

HOW THEY DO IT IN VIENNA.

Half an hour has never been a burden to me in Vienna. If I want a rest and a drink and a view of the passing pageant the nearest cafe is never more than fifty paces away. Here I sit and drink pleasantly, even non-alcoholically (where in London can I get a glass of iced lemonade without undue bother?), or read one of the many newspapers and periodicals provided for me by a beneficent management. I find here even the newspapers and periodicals of my own country. News of home! I read, and I feel at home again—home that a few minutes ago seemed so far away. I am impelled to write a letter to England.

I snap my fingers, and behold! as though Aladdin's genie were in attendance—ink, pen and paper and blotter are laid before me. In half an hour I have quenched my thirst pleasantly in the open air, read the news of home, written to wife or sister or friend, observed the life around me—and I still have five minutes to spare.

Five minutes. Well, that is just long enough for me to listen to the music broadcast from London and offered to me by the cafe's wireless set; or to listen to the gay lilt of the orchestra that plays inside the cafe; or to buy the new hat I should have bought weeks ago!

THE QUESTION STILL UNANSWERED.

In Vienna or Paris or Prague I can begin a "sit-down" meal within 30 seconds of sitting down and have four courses follow each other so rapidly that at the end I still have 10 minutes of my 30 to spare. And I can have my meal anywhere, in any street, without the need of tramping the pavements or taking taxi to a suitable restaurant. Whereas in London I must first find my restaurant; and then amid table-trappings of a semi-regal elaboration I must wait at least ten minutes for my first course and leave my dinner half-finished if I am not to exceed my time-limit.

If I wish just to be lazy, to spend my precious 30 minutes sitting in a chair under a tree, Vienna or (Continued on Page 7.)

The Very Idea!

SALE AH-OY!

BY EDWARD KELLY, BARGAIN HUNTER.

A GIRL friend, by the name of Flossie, whom we have never yet met, was telling us about some bargains we could get at the various stores in town the other day.

We have always been considered pretty good at driving bargains. Whenever we pay a dollar for a drink in the hotel, the "bargains" (Ouch! Who threw that brick?)

Which, to proceed, is murmuring an earful. But the sort of bargains we make and the sort of bargains our headache makes are two different animals. In the latter case all we've got to do is autograph the south-east corner of a cheque.

We remember the last sale she took us along to. We entered the shop which had something about ET CIE on the window, and wax ladies posing in the very latest thing in corsets inside the window.

Inside the shop there were other ladies stripped to their garments too scarce and too intimate to mention, while the shop assistant buzzed around with renewals.

Being a married man, we were not supposed to look, and besides, we are above such snooping, so we cannot tell you anything except that the prices looked like the Hongkong Telephone directory. One exquisite lace thingie was a perfect bargain, marked down from $100.00 to $99.99. The old saying that a woman pays originated at a bargain sale.

Speaking of bargains reminds us of the time we went along to an art exhibition in Hongkong not so long ago.

We were examining the paintings, wondering which one would be the cheapest to send to our wife's mother on her birthday, when the attendant approached us.

"What is your pet painting?" he asked, in accents sweet and low.

We were naughty with him. "Our pet doesn't paint," we said, "and, besides, we came here to buy a picture, not to discuss our girl friend's hobbies."

We thereupon stalked out, and went to Sincere's, where we bought our mother-in-law a postcard, marked down from twenty to sixteen cents. The card was inside a packet of cigarettes.

You can see all sorts of sales in Hongkong. Umbrella dealers, for instance, make fortunes whenever a typhoon is hovering about the Colony. This is known as sailing close to the wind.

Another species is the land sale. Not having attended one of these sales, we are at a loss to understand how they are done. Our last experience with land sales was when we played with our model yacht in the horse trough at home.

In the harbour most of the sailing is done with junk. For that matter, most of the sales in the city are of junk.

This is what is known as salesmanship. A salesman, ship is sometimes referred to as a barque, but more often there is a ketch in it.

A salesman in the wine and spirit business is nearly always on the port tack.

In the navy, of course, it's different. There they sale the Midway.

The difference between sailors and saleswomen is that the sailors sail the sea and the saleswomen sees the sales.

And now, girls, before we totter off to our daily milk and rum, let us give you a warning.

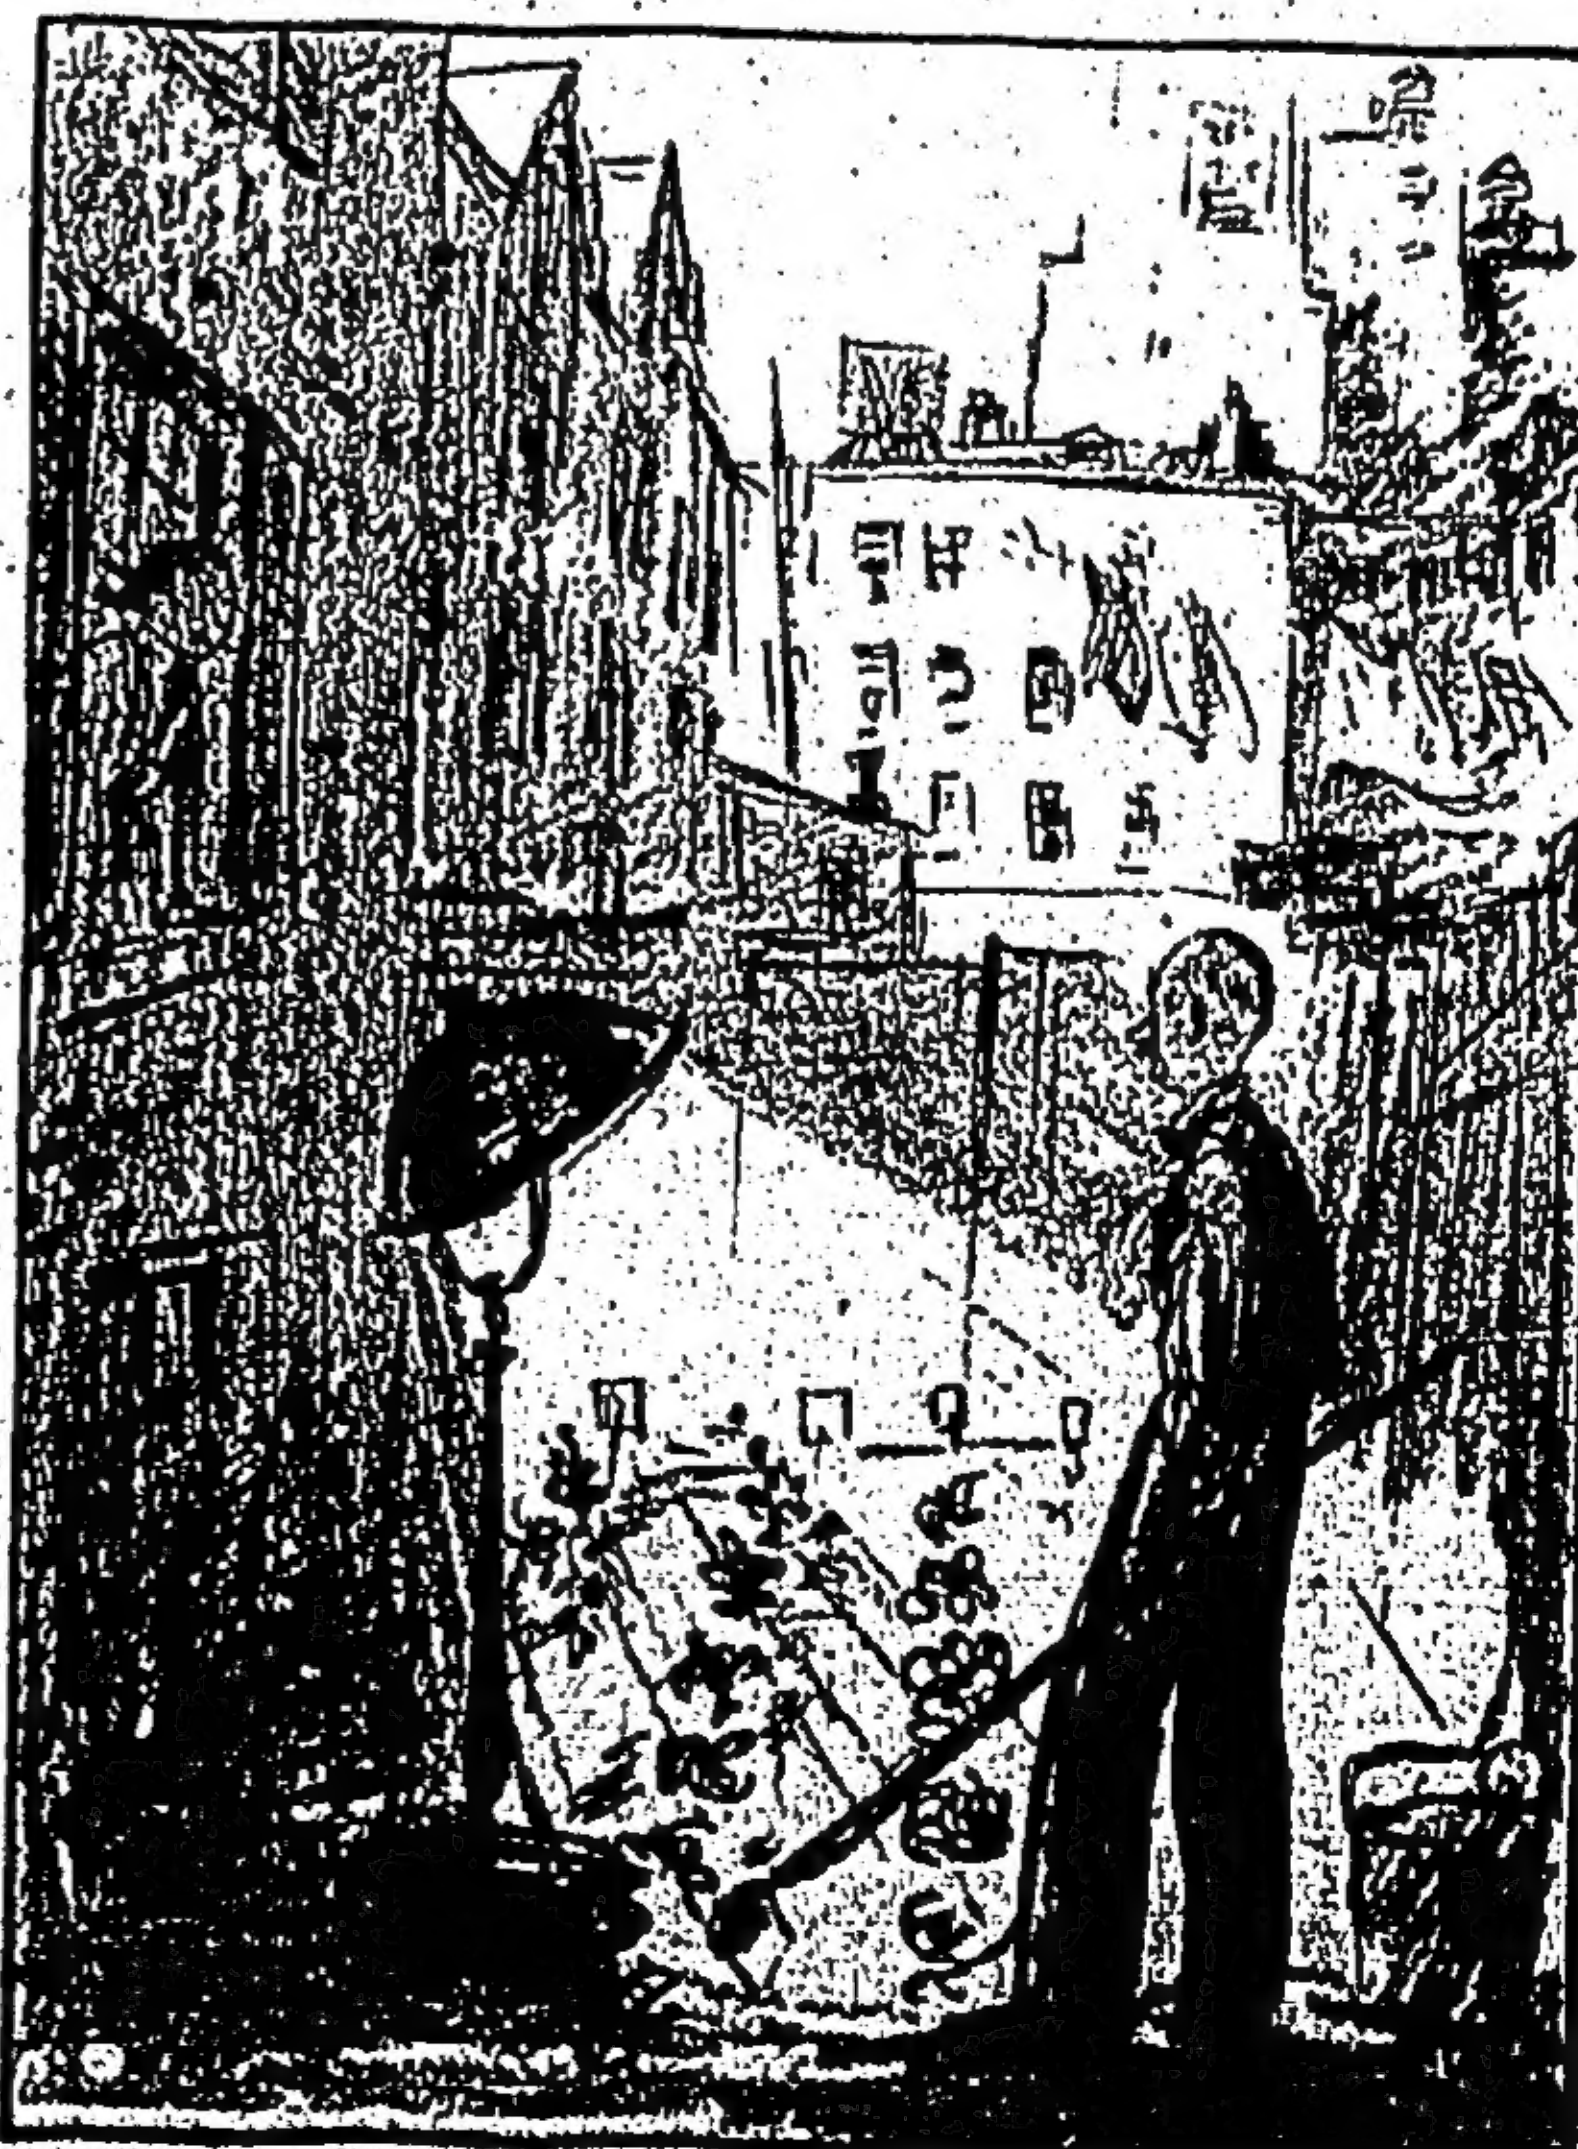

Never, never, attend sales after you are married. There's no such thing as a cheap bargain. Any one can say "cheap." That's what the canary said when they fed it to the cat.

Never be tempted by an advertisement that says silk stockings have been reduced, or brassieres have been marked down half price.

The curse of our nation is the feverish desire on the part of our womanfolk to secure something for less than it was yesterday.

Why is it that our dresses are shorter, our bathing suits are scantier, and our canaries are sadder? It's this cut-throat sales competition.

Incidentally, what is the Hong Kong dollar worth to-day?

MACAO WATER-WORKBIG SCHEME BEING UNDERTAKENPURIFICATION PLANT

(Our Own Correspondent).

Macao, July 20. Hongkong readers are familiar with the water problem at Macao, for, whereas there are occasional shortages of water in Hongkong, the problem at Macao has been a perpetual one for the last 50 years.

It is not surprising therefore that the Portuguese in their endeavours to secure sufficient supplies of water for the needs of the residents of the colony should have spent at least $2,000,000 in the making of exhaustive studies and the acquisition of materials and the carrying out of certain works to provide Macao with water for drinking purposes and also for fire fighting and the watering of streets.

A visit to Macao at the present time offers an added attraction to those of a technical turn of mind by reason of the works being carried out there by the Macao Waterworks Company.

PURIFICATION PLANT.

Clit to Green Island, made famous by its association with the Ceme Company which derived its name from this island (the island being now completely linked to the colony), the Waterworks Company is carrying out its operations for the installation of a complete purification plant for water gathered from the river.

It would by no means be correct to suppose that Macao is totally without water up to the present, for there are many streams of good water and many of the wells in the colony contain water that is drinkable. Macao's major supply, however, has come from sources outside the colony. All these sources of water do not provide nearly sufficient water for the needs of the population and for many years the Portuguese have endeavoured to furnish a supply that will be both adequate and safe. The story of the efforts of the Portuguese to get water is well known and they met with indifferent success. It was only after studies had been made by a Private Company that anything like a thoroughly adequate scheme was drawn up.

LARGE RESERVOIR.

The Macao Waterworks Company, in carrying out their works near Green Island, have been busy in preparing for the first stage of their engineers' project. This comprises the taking of water from the river and storing it for a sufficiently long period to cause the greatest part of matter in suspension to be precipitated, before the water so stored be subjected to chemical treatment that it may be suitable for use. From this big storage reservoir, with a capacity of over 30,000,000 gallons, the water is drawn up by lift pumps and as it passes into mixing chambers it is treated automatically by the addition of alumina sulphate.

The treated water passing through Coagulation Tanks, sheds most of the remaining matters in suspension, such matters being discharged through channels into the sea. The clear water then passes through rapid gravity filters of the Belcor type.

It is noteworthy, in passing, to state that the type of filter being installed at Macao is the latest produced by the well known German makers, the system of flushing being of the very simplest.

PUMPING SYSTEM.

From the filters the water enters the pure water reservoir, and is kept there in a constant state of movement, passing into a pump well at the lowest part of the works. From this chamber the water is drawn up by high lift pumps and delivered into the mains, chlorine gas being introduced at this stage. The water being delivered into the mains is kept at a steady pressure, all excess flow rising to a Balance Reservoir 260 feet above the level of the city. When this reservoir, which has a capacity of 600,000 gallons, is full, the pumps stop functioning and the water flowing back into the mains keeps up the pressure, the pumps resuming their work when this reservoir is empty.

The work of erection of the buildings and the various units for the purification process has been carried out by the Hongkong Engineering & Construction Co., Ltd., the Managing Director of which, the Hon. Mr. V. P. Bragg,

"MANCHUKUO" TO BE SPOKENAUTOMATIC DISMISSAL FOR FAILURES

Dairen, July 17. According to information reaching here today, the Manchukuo authorities intend to make a ruling that all persons employed in positions in the government must speak the everyday language of the people.

This decision is stated in some quarters to be directed especially against a number of Japanese employed by Manchukuo who cannot read or speak the language.

All employees are to be notified of the new ruling soon. At the end of two years, an examination will be held, when failure to pass will mean automatic dismissal, the report from Changchun explains.—Reuter.

has taken special interest in the work being carried out by his firm.

VALUABLE ASSET.

The local authorities have paid no less attention to the progress of the works and both his Excellency Lt. Col. Antonio Jose Bernardino de Miranda and Dr. P. Rocha Santos, Acting Governor, have followed the progress of the work most carefully. Dr. J. Pereira Magalhães, who, as Acting Governor when the scheme was first formulated, gave so much encouragement, continues to show the same interest in the development of the scheme.

Macao is watching with more than ordinary interest the concluding stages of the works that will result in the supply of water purified by modern means for the first time in the history of the colony and the announcement of the inaugural date is keenly awaited by the residents of the colony, the Chinese no less than the Portuguese, both communities having contributed to the realisation of this splendid mark of development.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

TRUTH IS TOO SIMPLE FOR US; WE DO NOT LIKE THOSE WHO UNMASK OUR ILLUSIONS.—Emerson.

There was a clean bill of health in the Colony on Wednesday.

The Automobile Association in London has issued an exceedingly useful London Route Map, which can be obtained free by motorists on request to the A.A., Farnham House, New Century Street, W.2.

Pulling from a tree which he had climbed near the Yau-mai Railway Station, a Chinese youth sustained injuries to his left leg, right side and face. He was sent to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

A coolie's actions near a vehicle in the car park opposite the Y.M.C.A. this morning, aroused the suspicion of the attendants. He tried to jump away but was caught and given a punishment before being released.

SOCIETY WOMAN
IN GAOLSPANISH GUARD
ATTACKED

Washington, July 16.

Mrs. Clinton Lockwood, member of a socially prominent family in Springfield, Mass., is being held in a gaol at Palma, Island of Majorca, and efforts of the United States Government to obtain her release have been futile, the State Department revealed today.

With Mrs. Lockwood are four American men, all of whom are accused of attacking a civil guard.

The five Americans have been held in the Palma gaol for a month and, according to their version of the affair, Mrs. Lockwood was accused of violating some minor ordinance and the guard struck her with a sword. The altercation that resulted in the five arrests followed.

Spanish authorities deny that Mrs. Lockwood was struck by the guard and contend that the Americans attacked the guard without justification.

Mr. Claude Bowers, the U.S. Ambassador, cabled from Madrid that the authorities refused to promise a release and that the Americans would have to be tried.

SHENG AN TO BE SALVAGEDINVESTIGATIONS OF PIRACY

Dairen, July 17.

The daring piracy and brutal murders on the s.s. Sheng An are recalled to-day by the news that salvage work has started on the ill-fated vessel, which was run ashore by the five foreign buccanniers off Hoshigaura, or Star Beach, Dairen's popular summer resort.

The salvage boat Azuma Maru arrived recently from Moji and has commenced operations on the ship which has been left in its stranded condition since July 1, when it was deserted by the murderers, who tried to escape. It has on board a full cargo of coal, groundnut oil and other commodities, which the pirates declared they intended to sell with the ship itself at Valparaiso.

Investigations into the case are going on, and it is expected that the prisoners will be tried by a local court here. The ship and her crew will, therefore, very probably be retained here as some of them will be needed as witnesses.—Reuter.

Referring to the tariff truce during a Parliamentary answer to-day, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. Horo Bolsha, said that under the terms of this resolution adopted by the Organising Committee of the World Economic Conference, the Governments concerned agreed that they would not adopt any new initiatives in the matter of tariffs before June 12th or during the proceedings of the Conference, except that in the case of any individual Government power is reserved to withdraw at any time after July 31st, 1933 on giving one month's notice to that effect.

ed to that resolution, we remained bound by its terms during any adjournment of the conference, unless its proceedings had been finally concluded.

SOVIET TRADE.

In the House of Lords this evening, members inquired regarding the basis on which the negotiations for an Anglo-Russian trade agreement would be conducted and several of their Lordships urged that before concluding such an agreement a condition precedent should be the recognition by the Soviet Government of the public and private debts owed to Great Britain.

Replying on the discussion, Lord Londonderry said that on the general subject of our attitude towards Russian trade, he could not agree with those who said they would wipe out Russia from their purview and leave them to occupy their own position in the world.

DEBT ISSUE.

He could assure their Lordships that the negotiations with Soviet Government would be carried out on an equitable basis under which trade could be developed in a satisfactory manner.

Negotiations would be conducted amicably, and equitably and he could assure their Lordships that no permanent pact would be made without the settlement of the Russian debt.—British Wireless.

FASCIST MARCH IN LONDONMOSLEY LEADS
BLACKSHIRTS

London, July 17.

What is termed as "the first Fascist march" through London took place here yesterday evening when more than 1,000 members of the British Fascist League, headed by Sir Oswald Mosley, marched through the west-end of London. The men wore black shirts after the Italian fashion and the girls black blouses. The marches attracted considerable attention in the thronged streets but no incidents happened. The purpose of the demonstration was to enroll new members.

The procession was accompanied by a detachment of police and was led by a music band and standard bearers carrying the national flag. When the procession passed the Cenotaph, the officers upraised their arms in Fascist salute. When the demonstrators returned to headquarters near Victoria station, Sir Oswald Mosley addressed his enthusiastic followers from the top of a motor-car. This, he declared, was the first Fascist march through London, and the event, one day, will have historic significance. Further marches are planned for all principal towns of England and they will be symbols of the Fascist march to power. Although only started a few months ago, its growth has been more rapid in its development than any other Fascist movement.

SUDDEN DEATH OF FOREIGNERINQUEST ON MR.
G. MOORCRAFT

Shanghai, July 18.

The inquest on Mr. George Moorcraft, who died last Thursday afternoon soon after his arrival from Hongkong, was continued yesterday afternoon in H.M. Police Court, and was then adjourned to 2.15 p.m. on Friday by Mr. C. H. Haines, H.M. Coroner, after the evidence of two witnesses had been heard.

Mr. G. Wood, caretaker to the Glen Line Building, said that at about 3.20 o'clock that afternoon he was sitting at his desk when a foreigner entered the office and closed the door. He appeared to have been chased or to be afraid of someone. Mr. Wood got up and receiving no answer to his query as to what was the matter, struggled with him slightly. Mr. Moorcraft then went out and lay in the passage-way.

Mr. Wood sent for a policeman and, meanwhile, with the assistance of one or two others, took him into the Marconi's Wireless Telegraph office to sit down. A Mr. Collingwood, said that an ambulance had been sent for. After some fifteen minutes had passed, the ambulance arrived, and the deceased was taken to the hospital. Mr. Wood further said that when they picked him up from the floor, he appeared to have a pain in his left side.

Havildar 461 (Amar Singh), who was on patrol duty near the Glen Line Building on Thursday, said that he was called to the building by a Chinese Police Watchman. He saw Mr. Moorcraft sitting on a bench, supported by two foreigners. He asked whether the man was sick; and on being told that he was very sick, inquired whether an ambulance had been sent for. He was told it had. When the Fire Brigade ambulance arrived, he assisted Mr. Moorcraft into it, and went with him to the hospital.

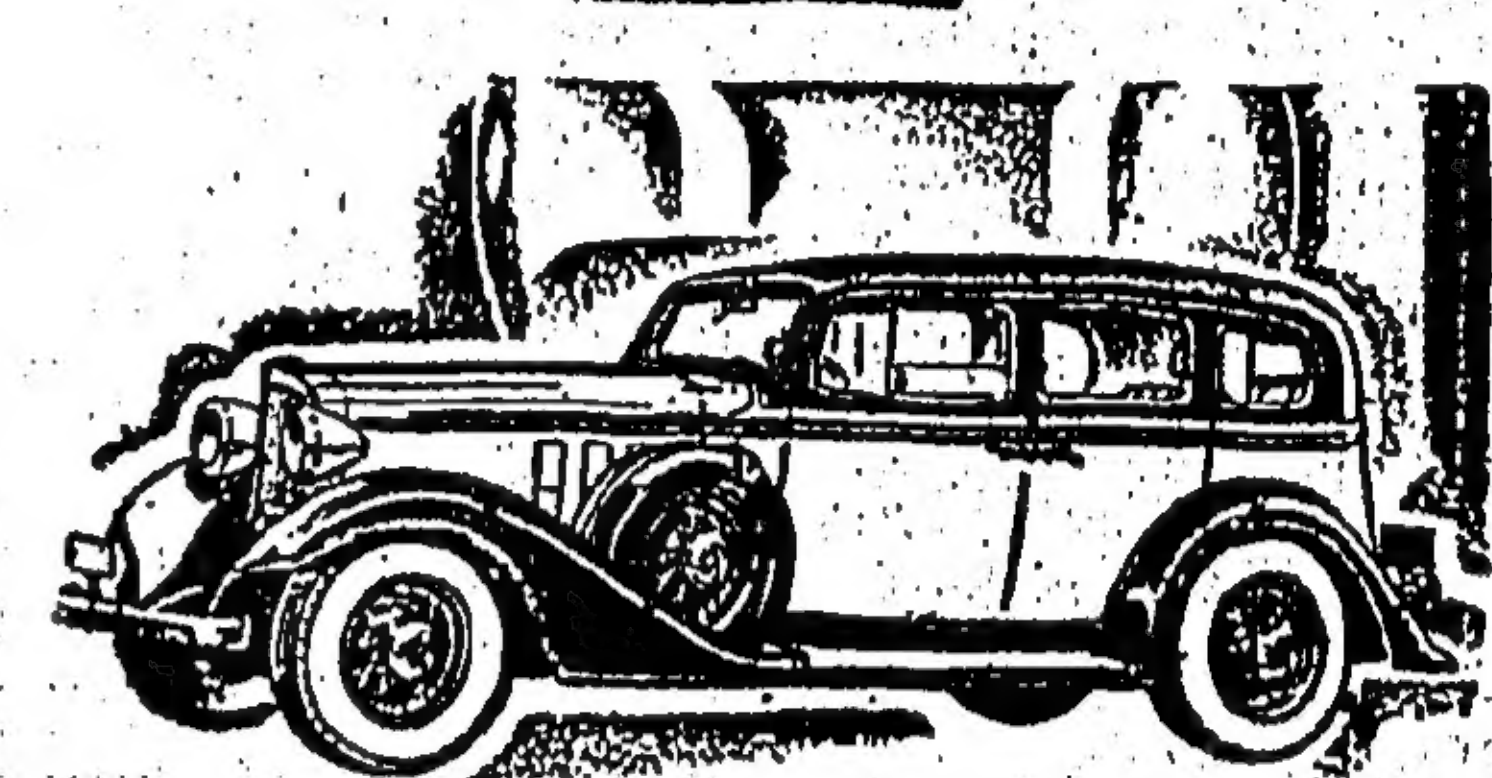

The Coroner then adjourned the inquest until Friday in order that a medical report, not yet completed, might be placed in

YORKSHIRE CRICKET IN THE OLDEN DAYS.

By "Historicus"

MATCHES WITH NORFOLK.

The earliest County match played by Yorkshire took place on the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th September, 1833, on the Hyde Park Ground at Sheffield against Norfolk, who then possessed the "first" of his day, namely, Messrs. Fuller, Pich, concerning whom the Rev. R. S. Holmes remarks that he was almost as famous as Dr. W. G. Grace became later, and he adds that "these two giants of cricket met and conversed at Canterbury in Pich's 'closing years'."

In answer to a query raised by myself as to why Norfolk was chosen in 1833 and not another county of greater prominence in the cricket world, the Rev. R. S. Holmes says: "One reason was that Norfolk lay 'nearer' to Yorkshire than the 'southern counties, and districts in those days, whose matter of serious 'import,' 'but,' he adds, 'were 'thore' any other county clubs '70 years ago? (He was writing in 1904) Only one that I can find, and that was Sussex, who in 1833 played 'England three times, and these matches comprised their season's 'entire programme.'"

He then makes reference to Fuller Pich and proceeds: "But there is a further reason why Norfolk was 'selected.' In the 'Sporting Magazine' of September, 1829, I have come across this interesting note:

"Pich was originally Norfolk 'bred; migrated into the North for 'bread and water at an early age; and learnt to handle bats and balls 'at Sheffield, where he became distinguished, and where he was 'found by a Suffolk Spirit.'"

He goes on to remark: "Now Pich 'never assisted Sheffield at their contests with Nottingham. Even at that day—1842—when somebody 'proposed that an eminent player—'not a member of the Sheffield 'Wednesday Club—should be engaged to play, an amendment was carried 'that none but bona-fide members 'should take part in this or any other 'match. A very sound decision, 'which has been characteristic of 'Yorkshire ever since. Pich, how- 'over, was a member of the Sheffield 'Wednesday Club, for how long I do 'not know; but in 1841, Mr. Michael 'Bass of Burton wrote to the Com- 'mittee to allow four of their players, 'Marston, Sampson, Vincent, and 'Fuller Pich to play for the North 'of England against the South. Very 'naturally, then, when Yorkshire 'wanted to play a genuine County 'match, they looked to Norfolk, the 'birthplace of Pich.'"

About 1835, Pich migrated to Town Mailing in Kent and in 1842, to Canterbury where (except for a short period at Oxford in 1847) he subsequently resided until his death at the age of 67 on May 1, 1870. He played for Kent from 1836 to 1864 and won many matches for that county—being noted not only for his batting and fielding, but also for his expert knowledge of the game. He was a member of the Kent XI during the same period as that magnificent cricketer Mr. Alfred Mynn, with whom he played in that exciting match on August 19, 20 and 21, 1839, when Kent (with scores of 145 and 144) beat Hampshire (who made 140 and 77) by 6 runs.

Though I am deviating somewhat from my immediate subject, I cannot refrain from setting out at the conclusion of this article those noble "In Memoriam" lines by Mr. Prowse of Tottenham which appeared in "Bell's Life in London" on the 10th November 1891, following the death of Mr. Alfred Mynn on the first of that month.

There were three amateurs in the Norfolk XI, whose side also contained three members of the Pich family.

IN MEMORIAM.

Jackson's pace is very fearful; Willsher's hand is very high; William Caffyn has good judgment, and an admirable eye; Jimmy Grundy's cool and clever, almost always on the spot; Tinley's slow is often telling, though they sometimes catch it hot; But however good their bowling—pitch or pace, or break, or spin—Still the monarch of all bowlers, to my mind, was Alfred Mynn.

Richard Duff is cool and cautious, with his safe and graceful play; If George Griffith gets a loose one, he can send it far away; You may have your bat at Hayward, and whatever style you try Will be vanquished by the master's steady hand and certain eye; But whatever fame and glory these and other bats may win, Still the monarch of hard hitters, to my mind, was Alfred Mynn.

You may praise the pluck of Burbridge, as he plays an up-hill match; You may thunder cheers to Miller for a wondrous running catch; You may join with me in wishing that the Oval, once again, Shall resound with hearty applause to the praise of Mr. Lano; But the Gentlemen of England the match will hardly win Till they find another bowler such as glorious Alfred Mynn!

When the great old Kent Eleven, full of pluck and hope, began The grand battle with All England, single-handed, man to man, How the hop-men watched their hero, massive, muscular, and tall, As he mingled with the players, like a king amongst them all; Till to some old Kent enthusiasts it would almost seem as if To doubt their county's triumph when led on by Alfred Mynn.

The 'old Frederick and 'The Veteran' bowled straight, and sure and well; Though Box behind the wicket only Lockyer can excel; Though Jimmy Dean as long-stop would but seldom grant a bye; Though no novices in batting were George Parr and Joseph Guy—Said the fine old Kentish farmers, with a fine old Kentish grin, 'Why there ain't a man among them as can match our Alfred Mynn!

And whatever was the issue of the frank and friendly fray (Aye, and often has his bowling turned the fortune of the day), Still the Kentish men fought bravely, never losing hope or heart, Every man of the Eleven glad and proud to play his part; And with five-and-a-half centuries, twice-but natural to win—As Folk, Wenman, Hillyer, Fuller, Pich, and Alfred Mynn.

With his tall and stately presence, with his nobly moulded form, His broad hand was ever open, his brave heart was ever warm; All were proud of him, all loved him—As the changing seasons pass, At our champion lies a sleeping underneath the Kentish grass; Prayers, surely, we will name him, to forget him were a sin; Lightly lie the turf upon thee, kind and manly Alfred Mynn!

DAVIS CUP TIEPLAYERS

London, July 20.
The Gentlemen fared badly against the Players at Lord's to-day and are staring defeat in the face.
Forced to follow on against a score of 309, the were still in arrears when stumps were drawn and had lost six wickets in the second innings.

The Players advanced their overnight score of 278 for 9 to 509 before the innings closed. G. S. Marriott, the former Cambridge Blue and present Kent spin bowler, returned a very good analysis in face of the score, taking four wickets for 87 runs.

The Gentlemen collapsed miserably before the professionals' attack, and only D. R. Jardine, the England captain, battled with any confidence or success.

JARDINE.
Out of a total of 148, Jardine compiled 59, a splendid innings of restraint and skill under difficult conditions.
Following on, the amateurs fared little better. Turnbull, the Glamorgan skipper, batted cleverly before losing his wicket. He scored 72, and played a leading part in the Gentlemen's score of 152 for 6.

To-day the Gentlemen start 14 runs behind with four wickets to spare, and an easy victory for the Players is indicated.

Yorkshire played four more matches with Norfolk namely two in 1834 and two in 1836. Of these, Norfolk won the first match in 1834 (played at Norwich) by 272 runs (Norfolk 215 and 191—Yorkshire 37 and 97—Fuller Pich making 87 (not out) for Norfolk in their first innings and 73 in their second).

The second of the 1834 matches (played on the Hyde Park Ground at Sheffield) was won by Yorkshire because for some unexplained reason, Norfolk gave up the match—the scores being Yorkshire 192 and 256; Norfolk 75 and 289 (for 7 wickets). Fuller Pich making 153 (not out) in Norfolk's second innings.

Victory in the first of the 1836 matches (played at Norwich) went to Yorkshire by 24 runs—the scores being Yorkshire 114 and 49; Norfolk 52 and 87—Fuller Pich making 15 and 25 (not out). The second of the 1836 matches (played on the Hyde Park Ground, Sheffield) was won by Norfolk by one wicket—score, Yorkshire 60 and 88; Norfolk 78 and 77 for 9 wickets—Fuller Pich earning "a pair of spectacles."

Thousands of tennis enthusiasts are expected to attend the Stade Roland Garros, at Auteuil during the next three days and to be thrilled by one of the greatest international tennis matches of recent times, when Britain and America meet in the Davis Cup Inter-Zone final.

The tie, the winners of which qualify to challenge France for the Cup next week, starts this afternoon, and as is usual two singles will be played.

To-morrow the doubles—generally the most important match of the series—will be fought and on Sunday the remaining singles.

America is putting a team on to the court, which apart from Vines, did not have to experience the exhausting Wimbledon championships, and this is expected to be a big point in their favour.

It is feared that Perry has become somewhat stale as a result of his continuous match play during the last twelve months, and others feel that Austin will allow his defeat by Vines at Wimbledon last year to affect him when they meet in the Davis Cup.

British hopes, however, are raised by the splendid victory obtained by Britain over Australia in the zone final result will hold more than the odd rubber no matter in whose favour it be.

DENMARK
LEADWIN DAVIS CUP DOUBLES

Copenhagen, July 20.

Denmark took the lead to-day in the qualifying tie for the 1934 Davis Cup competition, when Jacobsen and Ulrich beat Stalios and Xydis in the doubles by three sets to one.

The match extended to 43 games, Denmark taking a useful lead of two sets. There was a grim struggle in the fourth set, culminating in the Danes winning at the twelfth game.

Jacobsen and Ulrich just managed to clinch the first set at 7-5 and won the second with greater ease, the Greeks obtaining only three games.

Stalios and Xydis, displaying better form, annexed the third set at the tenth game, but had to give best in the fourth set.

Previously Jacobsen had beaten Stalios in the first singles and Xydis had won against Ulrich.

Results and scores in this tie to date are:

Jacobsen (Denmark) beat Stalios 4-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.
Xydis (Greece) beat Ulrich 4-6, 6-4, 10-12, 6-4, 6-1.

Jacobsen and Ulrich (Denmark) beat Stalios and Xydis 7-5, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.—Reuter.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE YESTERDAY'S MARKET WEAK

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was weak yesterday. Business done 8,120,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: Stocks crashed from four to twenty-three points with a huge turn-over. Tickers were half an hour behind due to further weakness in wheat issues. There were violent fluctuations in grain prices owing to fear of the Government's investigation of the speculation situation and also Hugh Johnson's statement that a crisis is ahead if distorted prices continued. Wheat lost 13 1/2 to 15 cents, Corn 12 to 13, and Cotton 8 1/2 to 10 points. Bullish existed in the Chicago pit as brokers fought to unload hundreds of thousands of bushels due to continuation of yesterday's break. Wildest market ever seen since October 1929. Wheat crashing twenty-six cents before the decline was halted. Brokers' loans were reported at $1,000,000,000, an increase of $12,000,000 over last week's figure of $981,000,000. Time money was quoted at 1% for 60 days and 1 1/2% for 90 days.

for the singles, whilst George Lott and Van Ryn form the doubles combination.
Against this formidable side, England will probably pit Austin and Perry in the singles and Perry and Hughes for the doubles.
STRAIN ON PERRY.
Perry suffered a strain shoulder against Australia, and although it was then reported that he expected to be perfectly fit for to-day's big event, the injury and its effects may go against the Englishman.
If Vines can be robbed of a match Britain stands a wonderful chance of winning through to the challenge round. But the match is going to be a terrific strain on Perry, who besides two singles will be required for the doubles.
Hughes did not play up to form at Wimbledon last year to affect him negatively against Australia. He has to show big improvement to-morrow if Britain is to record a win in the doubles.

The first to be drawn were Belgium and Hungary, who alone will play the first round, which must be over by July 23. The rest of the draw is:
Second Round—Holland v. Rumania, Poland v. Italy, Monaco v. Switzerland, Sweden v. Belgium or Hungary, Norway v. Yugoslavia, Austria v. Spain, Denmark v. Greece, Germany v. Ireland.
The second round must be completed by August 20, and the third round must be played by September 3. Austria has already eliminated Spain by five clear matches.

outstanding personality. His fast bowling demoralised the Minor Counties team. In all Constantine captured 11 wickets for 72 runs. Batting first Staffordshire collected 122, Constantine taking 7 for 50. The visitors replied with 103 and in their second knock the home team went back for 99 (Constantine 4 for 22).
The West Indies obtained the required 55 runs for the loss of one wicket—Reuter.

NOTED PUBLISHER'S DEATH

VISCOUNT BURNHAM

London, July 20.

Lord Burnham, leading publisher and prominent parliamentarian, died in his sleep last night.

His passing was sudden, and comes as a shock to London, where he was a distinguished and popular figure. On Tuesday he attended the meeting of the Select Committee on India, and appeared in the heat of health.—Our Own Correspondent.

Harry Webster Lawson, Viscount Burnham, was born in London in December 1862. His father was the first Lord Burnham, who made the Daily Telegraph a success.

Educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford, he entered Parliament in 1885 as a Liberal and sat on that side of the House with intervals till 1906. In 1910 he was returned for Mile End as a Unionist. Had he devoted himself entirely to politics, he might have taken a prominent position in the Cabinet, but, realising the power he wielded as the owner of an important independent newspaper, he preferred to concentrate his chief attention on it. In 1903 he took the place of his father as managing proprietor of the Telegraph and since then has directed its policy and given assiduous attention to the details both of its news and business sides, making all important decisions himself.

In spite, however, of his constant preoccupation with the paper he found time to do an enormous amount of public work, having served—often as chairman—on innumerable commissions, committees and the like, and spoken much at meetings. He was perhaps the most indefatigable diner-out of his time and was in great demand as an after-dinner speaker. Among the bodies on which he served were the committees on House of Lords reform, army promotion and officers' resettlement, sedition literature and overseas settlement, for he was a recognised champion of Empire solidarity and development. In 1921 and 1922 he was President of the International Labour Conference at Geneva and in 1924 presided over the Public Health Conference at Bordeaux. His name will always be associated with the schools, for he was chairman of the committee on teachers' salaries in 1920 and made the award fixing revised rates, which became known as the "Burnham Scale." When it was re-adjusted in 1924, Lord Burnham's services were again requisitioned.

Chairman of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association from its inception, he succeeded his father as president of the Newspaper Press Fund and the News-vendors' Benevolent Association. During the war he was chairman of the Press Conference which dealt with the regulation of news. As president of the Empire Press Union, he officiated at its conferences in Canada in 1920 and in Australia in 1925. In 1927, he accepted an invitation to preside over the International Press Conference at Geneva in August.

In 1884 he married Olive, daughter of Sir H. de Bathe and has one daughter. He succeeded his father in 1916 and for his services during the war was made a Companion of Honour in 1917 and a Viscount in 1919. The viscounty ends with him. His brother, the Hon. Wm. A. W. Lawson, is heir to the barony, and has a son Col. F. Lawson, who became connected with the managerial side of the Daily Telegraph after the war.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Working with animals is no job for a nervous actor, is the opinion of Gene Raymond who, with Loretta Young, is co-starred in "Zoo in Budapest", first Jasso L. Lasky production for Fox, coming on Saturday to the King's Theatre.

While it is not an animal picture, despite the fact that more than 500 lions, tigers, panthers, leopards, elephants, chimpanzees and other assorted jungle beasts are used the action of the picture requires Raymond to handle some of them.

He has the role of an orphan boy, born and reared in the zoo, who has associated with animals all his life. A love affair develops between him and Miss Young, a young love-starved girl from a neighbouring reformatory-like orphanage, who is marched to the zoo once a week with the other girls for an "educational lecture".

The whimsical romance between the boy and girl is lightly etched against an animal background.

"What! No Beer?"

Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante stole a march on Congress. While the nation's legislators were battling over the beer question, these two comedians completely settled the problem in their new comedy, "What! No Beer?" which comes on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre. This Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy covers the whole agitation for beer, from the election to the fight in Congress for legalization.

But while the politicians waged their wordy battles, Keaton and Durante pitched in. In the course of their operations they got caught in a war between rival beer-running gangs who sought control of their output. The story, therefore, weaves its way between comedy and excitement.

The romantic interest is provided when Buster falls in love with the sweetheart of one of the gang leaders. The feminine lead is taken by Phyllis Barry, who made her screen debut opposite Ronald Colman in "Cynara." Other important roles are played by Rosco Ates, brewmaster of the Keaton-Durante brewery; John Miljan and Edward Brophy, rival beer racketeers; Henry Armetta, Charles Dunbar and Charles Glynn. "What! No Beer?" was directed by Edward Sedgwick, who directed Keaton and Durante in "Speak Easily."

"Just My Luck"

"Just My Luck" at the Central on Sunday is a screen adaptation of the Aldwych farce "Fifty-Fifty". Ben Travers being responsible not only for the adaptation but also the sparkling dialogue. The nature of the story affords Ralph Lynn characteristic screen material, and the outdoor locations, particularly the race-course scenes, extend the interest far beyond the possibilities of the stage.

For half his natural span with the screen Ralph has been a music teacher with whom fate has dealt unkindly, a fact largely due to his diffidence and disinclination to assert himself. From being kind of football of chance, the suddenly blossoms out as a self-assertive gentleman, with a whole and hearty belief in himself, a change due to a chance meeting with a proper man of such type.

The self-retiring, modestly-garbed music teacher in adorning himself as a pushful, energetic, well-dressed business man, changes his outlook on life and rushes onward to success and trouble. The part is one that admirably fits the actor and Ralph Lynn's interpretation of the character is excellent. Winifred Shotter shows great advance as a screen actress.

"Humanity"

Many actors go to Hollywood determined to crash into motion pictures, but discover they have made the trip merely for their health.

Alexander Kirkland reversed the order of this common procedure. For following his success on the New York stage, he went to the Pacific Coast in search of health and, on the day following his arrival in Hollywood, found himself signed to a Fox Film contract and assigned to a featured role in "Surrender".

Kirkland has since played featured roles in "Charlie Chan's Chance", "Almost Married", "Devil's Lottery", "Passport to Hell" and other pictures, including "Strange Interlude".

Kirkland's latest picture is "Humanity" now at the King's Theatre, in which he is co-starred with Boots Mallory. Other important roles are enacted by Ralph Morgan and Irene Ware.

"Humanity", directed by John Francis Dillon, is based on a story by Harry Fried and prepared for the screen by Bradley King. It revolves about the adventures of a young doctor who forsakes the ideals of his physician father and takes a disastrous excursion in to the realms of society and big money.

ADVERTISERS more than ever are demanding proof of circulation.

Economy in newspaper advertising depends entirely on the popularity of the media, or in other words, the actual cash sales figures.

This is why you notice the names of all enterprising commercial undertakings in the advertising columns of the "Morning Post" and "Telegraph".

Based on certified cash sales, the cheapest advertising (and, of course, the most effective) is that placed with these two leading newspapers.

As a Matter of Fact—

Based on the latest circulation certificates prepared by Messrs. Lowe, Bingham & Matthews, Chartered Accountants, 241,822 copies per month joint sales were recorded during the first Quarter of 1933.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

While cross-ruff hands are not difficult to play after you get them started, they do require definite planning.

Remember that after you start a cross-ruff you cannot swing over to another line of offence. If you permit your opponents to get into the lead, they will naturally lead trump in order to kill a trump in dummy, and one in your hand at the same time.

Here is a cross-ruff hand that can easily go wrong if the declarer becomes careless.

The Bidding

South, the dealer, opened the bidding with one heart. West was quite satisfied and passed. North bid one spade, making a one over one force. This was quite satisfactory to East, who passed.

South bid two hearts. North then showed his second suit by bidding three clubs. Before re-bidding hearts, South showed the safety of the hand by going to four clubs and when North went

▲ Q-10-9-4-3 ♥ 3 ♦ A-8-7 ♠ A-K-J-10	▲ A-8-6 ♥ Q-J-8 ♦ 7-6 ♠ 5-4-3	▲ K-J-7 ♥ 5-2 ♦ 4 ♠ J-10-9-6
None ♥ A-K-10-9-5-2 ♦ K-Q-2 ♠ Q-9-8-2	28

to five clubs, South took the contract to six.

The Play

East's opening lead was the four of hearts which North, the declarer, won in dummy with the ace. With the freak distribution found in the North-South hands, declarer knew that he could expect to find a freak distribution in the opponents' hands.

Undoubtedly the lead of the four of hearts was a singleton. North knew that to lead the king of hearts and take a discard would give the opponents a chance to ruff. They would then immediately lead a trump which would spell defeat.

The declarer played the hand safely and led a small heart, trumping with the ten of clubs. East showed out, discarding a diamond.

Declarer's only chance to make his contract was to find each of the opponents with three diamonds. It was a long chance, but it had to be taken immediately because if any more hearts were led East would have an opportunity to discard more diamonds. Three rounds of diamonds were taken, and luckily for the declarer they were evenly divided.

The hand was now set for the first cross-ruff. A spade was ruffed in dummy and a heart ruffed by the declarer. The declarer could now, by cross-ruffing, ruff three more spades in dummy and two hearts in his own hand. The opponents were under-ruffing at the end and therefore won the last trick, but the declarer had made his small slam contract by cross-ruffing the hand out.

TARIFF REVISION

MANCHUKUO REDUCES
MANY CHARGES

Changchun, July 20.

The Manchukuo Government has promulgated a new tariff list, which was approved by the Privy Council yesterday and confirmed by the head of the state, the former "Boy Emperor" of China, Henry Pu-yi, to-day.

The new tariff schedule is marked by a wholesale revision of charges, mostly downward in respect of the old list.

Thus the so-called "puppet state" of Japan has thrown a bombshell at trade barriers, which other nations have of late been building as rapidly as possible, in competition with one another.

Sixteen out of twenty-nine import items are revised downward; three items are placed on the free list; and eight are revised upward, while ten export items are made duty free or revised downward.

The imports whose tariffs are lowered include mining and electrical machinery, building materials, and rubber goods, while agricultural implements are placed on the free list.

Broadly speaking, the tariff schedule now is low where daily necessities are concerned, and comparatively high, and increased, on luxuries, including cigars.

The tariff revision is in keeping with the promise of an "open door policy" given by Tokyo when, the

TIN AND SUGAR GROUPS
PLAN FURTHER WORK

London, July 20.

Coffee, tin and sugar sub-committees of the Economic Conference wound up their work to-day and issued reports.

The coffee group shelve negotiations temporarily; the tin group exhorts the producing countries at present participating in the control scheme, to adhere to it on the basis of a flat rate quota and attaches the greatest importance to the earliest possible accord. It recommends that the governments of Great Britain, Burma, Australia, South Africa, the Belgian Congo, Portugal, Mexico, Japan, China and French Indo-China, nominate representatives to negotiate quotas with the International Tin Committee.

The Sugar Committee report requests the Bureau to continue negotiations with the countries concerned and to convene another meeting when it is warranted. At the meeting of the sugar group, the Cuban delegate withdrew his scheme for world-wide restriction of production in face of the innumerable objections to it.—Reuter.

SCHOLARSHIP STUDENTS FOR ENGLAND

Nanking, July 19.

In an interview to-day, Dr Han Li-wu, director of Office of the Board of Trustees of the Sino-British Boxer Funds, stated:

"Two years have passed since the inception of the Board of Trustees for the Administration of the Indemnity Funds Remitted by the British Government, the purpose of which organization is to create endowment funds for cultural and educational purposes. But as the Board of Trustees has been very cautious in making loans and the accumulation of interest takes some time, the Board of Trustees has not yet made any grants for cultural and educational work."

"I am glad to announce that the Board of Trustees has drawn up a comprehensive scheme for the disposal of interest. One of the first things to be carried out is the sending of twenty students to England for advanced study in geography (2), geodesy (2), mathematics (1), civil engineering (1), textile arts and weaving (2), mechanical engineering (1), metallurgy (1), aeronautics (1), industrial chemistry (1), naval architecture (1), biology (1), medicine and hygiene (2), western history (1), law (1), English literature (1), political science (1).

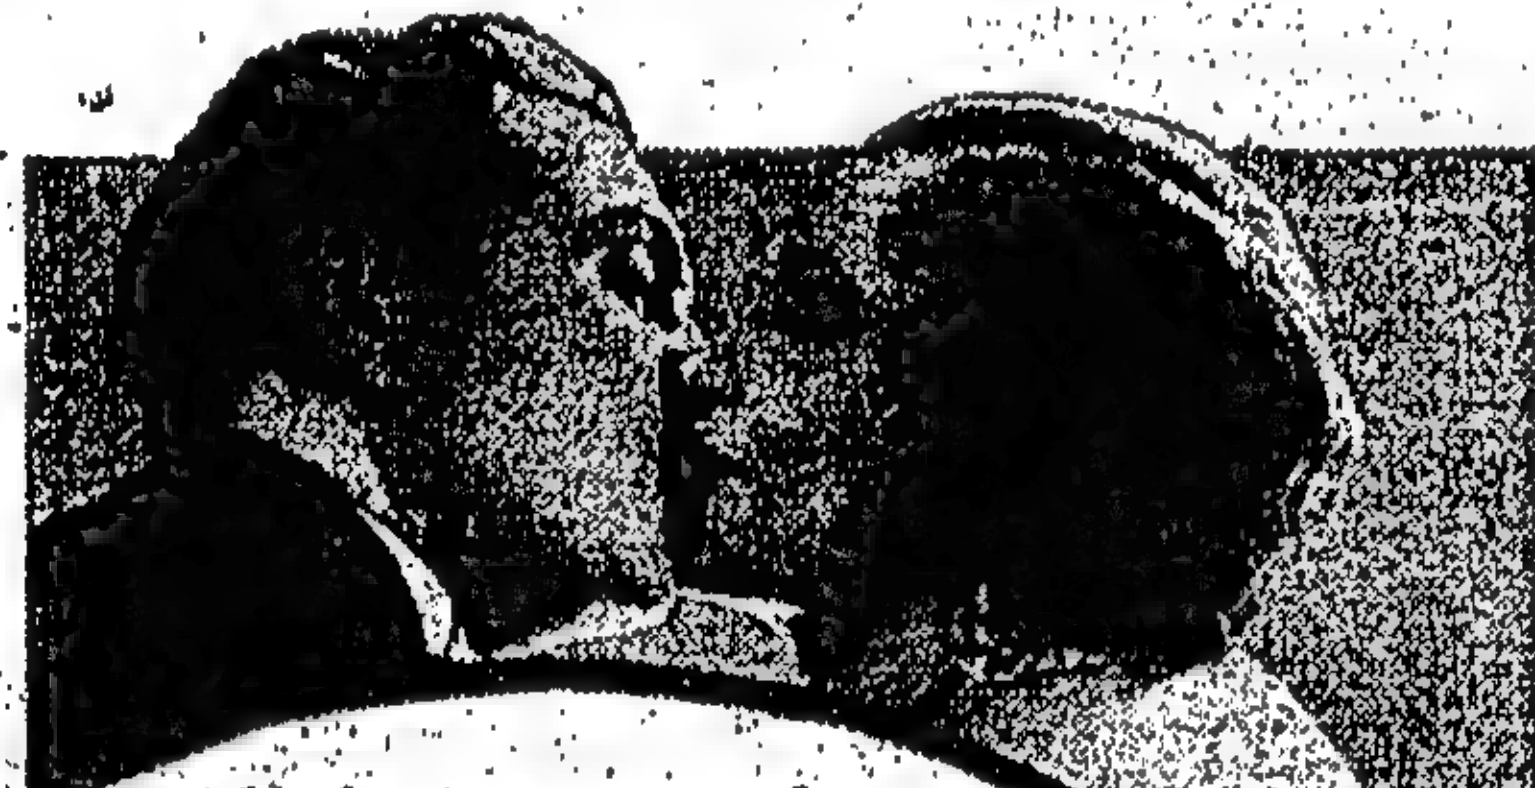

"The scholarships will be awarded on the basis of competitive examination which will be held beginning from August 20 in Nanking."—Reuter.

STRANGE INCIDENT ON RIVER GUNBOAT

Berlin, July 20.
The ancient Bavarian city of Nuremberg was the scene this morning of a great round-up of Jewish residents, who have been placed under detention.

Over two hundred Jews, mainly prominent members of the community, well-known business men and shopkeepers, were arrested. They were not taken immediately to the detention barracks, but were paraded through the streets in procession, flanked by Nazi storm-troops. Only later were they taken to the barracks.

AUTHORITY NOT KNOWN.
The action is described in Nuremberg Nazi circles as a drive against Jewish society, but it is not known whether the action was sanctioned by higher authority, or whether the storm-troops took the law into their own hands.

It is also reported that a meeting of Jews in the synagogue at Nuremberg was dissolved last night and that all who were present were placed under arrest.—Reuter.

AGENCY CLOSED.

Shanghai, July 18.
Mr. L. Goldman, a British subject, collapsed yesterday morning at about 10 o'clock near the bus stop at St. George's. He was taken in a Fire Brigade Ambulance to the Country Hospital where he appeared to be suffering from heat exhaustion.

Inquiries last evening revealed that his condition was better.

Fire Brigade Ambulances also responded yesterday to several calls where Chinese had suffered from the same complaint.

STOKER SENTENCED

ADMITS STRIKING STOKER P.O.

A TOUCH OF THE SUN?

Rather strange circumstances were associated with an incident aboard H.M.S. Cicala in Canton which resulted in the appearance of a Stoker (Class I) before a court-martial this morning.

John Thomas Eswarick, a native of Devonport, was committed to detention for a period of six months. The court martial was held aboard H.M.S. Tamar this morning, and accused pleaded guilty to the charge.

The President of the Court was Capt. W. G. Benn, (Captain of H.M.S. Tarantula) and supporting him were Capt. C. F. Hamill (H.M.S. Cornflower), Comdr. C. H. Heath-Caldwell (H.M.S. Tamar), Comdr. P. Todd (H.M.S. Wishart), and Comdr. F. J. Wylie (H.M.S. Wild Swan). Paymaster-Comdr. F. R. Porter, the Commodore's Secretary, was officiating Deputy Judge Advocate.

REFUSED WATCH

The official message to the Court from the commander of the "Cicala" Lieut. Comdr. Ian H. Bockett-Pugh stated that on Sunday, July 9, accused was serving on board H.M.S. Cicala and was borne in the bows of the ship.

At eight p.m., accused relieved Stoker (First Class) Hackett in the engine room. As Stoker Hackett left the engine room, accused asked him to tell duty Stoker Petty Officer N. S. Johns that he wanted to see him. Stoker Petty Officer Johns went to the engine room and the accused told him that he refused to keep watch unless the duty Stoker Petty Officer was with him. Duty Stoker Petty Officers are required to visit the engine room and boiler room in the harbour every two hours.

VISIT TO E.R.A.

"Stoker Petty Officer Johns told him that he must see the duty Engine Room Artificer and, having arranged for the accused to be relieved, he took him to see Engine Room Artificer (First Class) Lacy, the duty Engine Room Artificer.

"These three proceeded to the battery deck outside the Chief Petty Officers' Mess and here accused told Engine Room Artificer Lacy that he refused to keep watch unless the duty Stoker Petty Officer was with him. Engine Room Artificer Lacy told him to return to his duty and the matter would be dealt with by the Chief Engine Room Artificer in the morning. Accused hesitated a moment and mumbled something inaudible before the party dismissed.

"Stoker Petty Officer Johns walked off until, when near the pom pom, he was felled to the deck with a blow on the left eye delivered from behind by accused with his fist. On rising he was struck again by accused with his fist on the side of the body.

ACTING P.O. INTERVIEWS.

"Acting Stoker Petty Officer Homeyard, who was sitting in his upper deck mess, saw Stoker Petty Officer Johns, with his hands up to his face and bending forward, come from the rear pom pom, closely followed by the accused. He placed himself between the two men. Engine Room Artificer Lacy also appeared on the scene, Lacy having come from his mess on hearing a thump followed by accused's voice saying, "That is what I'll give you." Acting Stoker Petty Officer Homeyard ordered accused below. There was no other person on the Battery Deck.

"Engine Room Artificer Lacy called the duty Petty Officer, Petty Officer G. C. Codner, who directed accused to fall in on the Quarter-

WILEY POST CRASHES

GETS LOST IN REGION OF FAIRBANKS

ESCAPES UNHURT

New York, July 21.
Wiley Post met with disaster when within sight of the record which he set out to break, according to a flash message from Fairbanks, Alaska, stating that the airman crashed, but escaped unhurt.

The greatest disappointment is felt, particularly as Post had made wonderful time in the face of severe weather obstacles. He appears to have got lost soon after touching upon the American Continent for the first time since his dramatic dash across the Atlantic.

APPARENTLY LOST.

He was observed flying over Ruby, Alaska, at 4.30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

He was overdue at Fairbanks and some anxiety was occasioned when a local airman reported that he had seen him flying backwards and forwards as though he were lost and was looking for his landing place.

He found it eventually, but apparently too late. He crashed flat when he was about to land. Fortunately he was not hurt.—Reuter.

COMPLETES TRIP FROM SIBERIA

Nome, Alaska, July 21.
Wiley Post, the famous American globe-flier, has completed the most perilous section of his long journey, passing over Nome last night, presumably heading for Fairbanks.

He made splendid time from Harbarovsk and now stands a wonderful chance of beating his own record, established with Harold Gatty, of 8 days, 15 hours, for the trip from New York round the world and back.

He is expected to complete the flight in two hops, from Fairbanks to Edmonton, Canada, and from Edmonton to New York. He is now well within previous time.

LOG OF FLIGHT.

Log of the flight:
July 15, Dawn: Leaves New York.

SOONG PLOT STORY

PLANNED ATTEMPT ON LIFE

IN HONGKONG IN FEW WEEKS

Shanghai, July 21.
Startling allegations have been made following the arrest of a Chekiang Kuomintang official.

It is stated that he was arrested as the result of the discovery of a plot to assassinate Mr. T. V. Soong in Hongkong when he passes through on his return from the World Economic Conference.

The man in custody is alleged to have admitted his intention to visit Hongkong to meet T. V. Soong, but declared that he wished to see him purely on business, denying any conspiracy.

Further inquiries are being pursued.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wu Tieh-chen, the Mayor, has issued a statement deprecating the publication in a foreign newspaper in Shanghai of allegations that "Fascist" agents have been commissioned to attempt assassinations of leading figures in Cantonese politics.—Special.

WORLD'S BIGGEST DRY DOCK

London, July 20.
The world's largest dry dock will be opened at Southampton next Wednesday when the Royal yacht "Victoria" and "Albert," with Their Majesties aboard, will break a red, white, and blue ribbon stretched across its entrance.

The new graving dock which cost over £200,000 is part of the southern railways £13,000,000 dock extension scheme and constitutes one of the most remarkable achievements in the history of British engineering.

The Dock holds 260,000 tons of water and the sea is kept back by huge steel doors weighing 4,600 tons. During its construction, in which 455,000 tons of concrete were used, the sea was held away by a great earthen bank reinforced by a curtain of steel.—British Wireless.

WARDER'S SON FALLS FROM VERANDAH

Park Road Quarters Accident

A shocking accident occurred at No. 1, Park Road, yesterday morning, when John English, the five-year-old son of Warder English, fell from the second floor verandah and was seriously injured about the head.

He was rushed to the Government Civil Hospital where, we are glad to say, he is reported to be making good progress after spending a comfortable night.

It is understood that John was in the kitchen at the time and climbed on to the sink. He lost his balance and fell into the backyard.

ROYAL GARDEN PARTY

ATTENDED BY MANY W.E.C. DELEGATES

London, July 20.
About six thousand guests attended a garden party given by the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace to-day.

The garden party was more than a garden party. It was a social gathering of many of the world's leading figures.

JAPANESE ATTACK BRITAIN

Strong Comments in Newspapers

A virulent campaign against British and the Soviet is being conducted in the leading Japanese newspapers and periodicals, which are demanding a severance of diplomatic relations with Russia, but content themselves with hurling abuse at Britain. Details will be found in Page Eleven.

ADMIRAL GIVES WAY

TO RETURN TO TSINGTAO

GREAT WELCOME PLANNED

Weihsaiwei, July 21.
In response to representations from General Chiang Kai-shek and Mr. Wang Ching-wel, as well as his own supporters, it is understood that Admiral Shen Hung-lich has agreed to return to Tsingtao and re-assume the Mayoralty of the city.

Admiral Shen is leaving for Chefoo by motor this afternoon and will complete his journey by sea if a steamer is available. He will be accompanied by the twenty-two officials who came here to urge his return.

Admiral Shen, who also occupies the post of Commander-in-Chief of the North-east squadron, arrived in Weihsaiwei from Tsingtao on Tuesday evening, having apparently resigned as Mayor of Tsingtao. In spite of urgent representations by officials from Tsingtao and Chefoo, the Admiral adamantly refused to return to his post.—Reuter.

A BIG WELCOME.

Tsingtao, July 21.
Local public bodies, as well as foreign clubs and societies, are vying with each other in preparing a great welcome for Admiral Shen Hung-lich who, according to present arrangements, will arrive here at 6 p.m. to-morrow by special train from Weihsaiwei, where he will break his motor journey from Weihsaiwei.—Reuter.

JACK MCGOVERN SUSPENDED

REFUSAL TO OBEY SPEAKER

SECOND TIME IN THREE YEARS

London, July 20.
Not for the first time in his Parliamentary career, Mr. Jack McGovern, one of the Clyde extremist group, has been suspended by the Speaker of the House of Commons.

A vote in favour of his suspension was passed by the House by 151 votes to 24. The action was taken as the result of Mr. McGovern's refusal to obey the Chair. Mr. McGovern is the member for the Shettleston Division of Glasgow, fighting the last election as a member of the I.L.P. and defeating the official Labour candidate, Mr. J. Marshall by 14,000 votes, although his majority over the Conservative was merely 771.

STORMY SCENES.

His career in Parliament, which he first entered in 1930, has been distinguished chiefly by stormy scenes, the last of which prior to tonight's occurrence, ended in his forcible removal from the House of Commons and his suspension for the rest of the session.

He was imprisoned some little time ago as the result of the part he played in the Glasgow riots.—Reuter.

London, July 20.
Sierra Leone won the Barnett Challenge Cup, open to teams from Empire countries, excluding the Dominions, which was shot at Bisley to-day.

Sierra Leone won with a score of 847. The Sudan team also secured a score of 847, but Sierra Leone had a better total over the final range.

The Gold Coast took third place with 843, the Malay States scored 839 and the China (Treaty ports) team obtained 832 points. Ceylon shot very badly, returning a score of 224.

Other competitors were Nigeria, the Falkland Islands, and Kenya Colony.—Reuter.

JAPANESE PLANES BOMB BANDITS

Harbin, July 17.
According to an official Japanese despatch, Japanese troops yesterday surrounded a woody lair of 200 bandits about fifteen miles north-east of Harbin.

The bandits were bombed by Japanese aeroplanes, and casualties, it is stated, amount to fifty bandits killed and forty wounded.—Reuter.

REPORT ENDORSED

ONLY THE FIRST STAGE

London, July 20.
Efforts for the rehabilitation of silver moved a step further to-day when a public meeting of the Monetary Commission was held, lasting for one hour.

Senator Key Pittman, the American silver advocate, was the principal speaker. He introduced the general resolution approved by the Silver Sub-Committee yesterday.

After some discussion, during which general sympathy was expressed with the objectives, the Sub-Commission on permanent measures for world recovery unanimously adopted the resolution.

Senator Pittman explained that the recommendations were entirely dependent upon the reaching of an agreement for the control of sales and surplusage by the United States, Canada, Mexico, Peru, Bolivia, China, India and Siam.

He said that there was a need for a discussion upon technical questions which might delay the completion of the "Eight-Pow" Agreement for one or two months.

The Mexican delegate declared that the resolution was only the first step towards the rehabilitation of silver.—Reuter.

DESTRUCTION OF GRAVES

GANG WORK A BIG SWINDLE

MAN CAUGHT AND SENTENCED

Chan Kau, a mortuary attendant, was charged before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with having maliciously and wilfully damaged Chinese graves and gravestones in Apichau cemetery.

Sub-Inspector Elston said that the defendant was engaged to remove a large number of human remains from the site of the new hospital at Telegraph Bay to the new cemetery at Apichau. It was reported that defendant and others had removed over 23 thousand and sold. The authorities, however, became suspicious and sent men to investigate. When defendant heard of this, he anticipated them and pulled out gravestones, throwing about 2,000 of them down the hill, the intention being to deceive the authorities.

$10,000 SWINDLE

The cemetery action was also involved in the affair, but has disappeared. They made about $10,000 more than the amount they were entitled to for this job. To cover the swindle, defendant and his confederates removed the stones from old graves. The stones could not be replaced because it was not known to which graves they originally belonged. The S.C.A. asked that a serious view be taken of the charges.

Mr. Schofield asked whether the damage could be compensated for. Sub-Inspector Elston replied that it could not. They could trace about half the stones, but would cost about $10,000 to replace them. The case was adjourned.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

She Is "Lilybet" No Longer, But Britain's Darling Still!

PRINCESS WHO MAY BECOME SECOND "QUEEN BESS" IS SEVEN NOW AND A REGAL LITTLE LADY

By Milton Bronner

London.—To many millions of British women and children it came with a shock recently that "Lilybet" had passed out of their lives and that "Elizabeth" had come to take her place.

Which is another way of saying that the eldest baby girl of the Duke and Duchess of York has grown out of the lisp stage and has become the 7-year-old child, perfectly capable of pronouncing correctly all but the very biggest words.

But Elizabeth, like "Lilybet," still remains the darling of the British multitude. The cute, funny things she says quickly drift down to the public.

When she wears a peculiar shade of yellow, ten thousand little girls suddenly blossom out in primrose colour. When she appears in the park in a particular cut of cap, ten thousand other curly-heads soon are adorned with the same kind of thing.

After Elizabeth grew up to the talking stage, the loyal British press started to create her legend. For after all, unless she has a baby brother some day, she will, if she lives, be Queen of England, a second Queen Bess.

For after King George comes the Prince of Wales. He is a bachelor and likely to remain so. After him comes his next brother, the Duke of York, and after him, his eldest girl.

But the legend-makers soon had an easy task. "Lilybet" made her own legend. She said just the kind of things that parents love in their own children. She was so eager, so human, so unspoiled in all her public appearances that the people doted on her.

At first she struck the crowds by her startling resemblance to her grandmother, Queen Mary. But now she is developing a distinct face of her own. She bids fair to be the greatest beauty the House of Windsor has produced in many a long day.

Here is the bedroom of Elizabeth and her baby sister, Margaret Rose. Here is Elizabeth's

there are, so to speak, castles all around her. Her paternal royal grandfather has Buckingham and Windsor and Balmoral. On the maternal side, there is the romantic old Scotch Castle of Glamis.

But early in her life, her parents, like sensible people, determined to rear their children not in a show place, but a home. Their residence, 145 Piccadilly, is near Hyde Park—a big four-story stone-front, old-fashioned residence with big rooms and high ceilings. It is just the kind of house other well-to-do people live in.

plain unadorned school room. Here is the nursery where she plays with her sister and her friends.

In the back is a piece of park where they romp and play like any other children.

When the weather gets nice, her parents move to the Royal Lodge in Windsor Park—another simple home. But the child loves it, because in the park there has been erected the high toy house which was presented her by the people of Wales.

Here she does "serious house-keeping," with the toy bedrooms, drawing rooms and even a kitchen which has been supplied with electricity and water.

Being a Princess does not save her from the bugaboo of every child's life—the tough job of lessons. Two hours every morning and one hour every afternoon are devoted to her studies. Already she reads, writes and spells. She has begun to learn French. She has music lessons and dancing lessons and has learned to skate on ice. From her Scotch mother, especially, she has learned the old-fashioned reels and flings of bonny Scotland. Out at Windsor Park, where she has greater freedom to roam, she often rides her pony, Peggy.

Her relations with her royal grandparents are singularly close. When she goes up to visit Grandma at Balmoral, her greatest joy is a picnic with the Queen in a now summer house at the Pass of Ballater.

In Princess Elizabeth, King George has come into his own. "Grandpa King" can do no wrong. On any question under the sun what "Grandpa King" says goes with Lilybet. It is the law and the gospel. For her he is the fount of wisdom.

For him she is a gleam of sunshine, a figure out of a fairy tale in a hard, depressed, serious, workaday-world-where-even-kings have their worries and troubles.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton.

Our bodies are the food we eat, the water we drink, and the air we breathe. Little else enters into our chemistry except perhaps sunlight. But even sunlight is transmitted to us indirectly through certain foods. We cannot live without any of these things.

In our systems as we know are dozens of varieties of elements, minerals and so on. Most of these things we must get through our foods.

Therefore we have in us, only those things we eat. No magic can put calcium, iron, manganese, protein or albumen into our tissues and bones. We must take them through our mouths.

If we eat too much of some foods and nothing of others certain parts of the body will grow slowly and weak. Why then do people insist on following "taste" instead of nature if they want to be well and to keep their children well.

Balanced Diets Rare.

The Public Health Nursing Association after a survey of home diets tells us that in spite of all that has been done to educate people about necessary foods, the majority of diets are still "greatly off balance."

The average diet is low in minerals and too high in fat and condiments and sugars, is the report. "Fats, condiments and sweets!" I find this report fits in with other surveys of home buying. Certainly children need fats and sugars, and as for the condiments that make eating more pleasant, pure relish preparations will not hurt children after they are old enough to eat exciting foods. But they were never intended to take the place of other foods.

Let us use sense. When too strong foods or too rich foods take away the appetite for plain foods the mother of the family must do some thinking. Families living on welfare money must of course, budget. But I think we will find that many families who are eating all wrong now were eating all wrong when they were able to set more bountiful tables.

Here's a Simple Rule

It isn't necessary to go into all the whys and wherefores here but vegetables that grow above the ground must be eaten to stabilize health and develop bodies. The other vegetables are needed too, but it is the above-ground ones that are neglected. They are very cheap.

Milk, plain meats, all vegetables, fats in some form, eggs, fresh, canned or dried fruits, fish at least once a week for its iodine content, sweets—all these things are necessary to a growing child. It costs no more to vary the diet than to have the same things over and over again.

It seems odd that so many people do not desire to learn. As I have said, no magic brings strong muscles and bones and good blood. They are the result of sensible and varied eating.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Monnie turned the letter slowly in her hands. Dan's familiar writing, black and bold, stared back at her. Her heart turned over. How odd—how very odd it was to receive a letter from him at this moment, when she was trying to make the most momentous decision of her life! It was as if Dan himself had reached across the many miles that separated them, saying, "Wait, Monnie! Don't forget me. I'm still here!"

Ah, but he was the one who had forgotten, her sore heart reminded her. He it was who had written that other letter, the cruel one telling her they'd better "hold up the plans" for the January wedding. No, it was no use depending on Dan. She'd done that in the past and her pride, her love, her faith in him had been wounded past healing.

Should she open it? Should she make her decision first—and by this time she had pretty well decided what she would say to Arthur Mackenzie on the morrow—and read Dan's letter afterward?

Had he still the power to sway her past reason, past belief? Did she dare to see what Dan had written her on the very day before she had sailed from New York to adventure and another man's devotion? She wondered. While she was pondering the matter flushed and disturbed, little Miss Anstice blew in.

"My dear, I had no idea you'd be home so early!" Miss Anstice, imposing in silver cloth with a collar of gray fox, stared frankly at her travelling companion. "I thought you'd be out until all hours. 'Painting the town,' as they say. Are you feeling all right?"

"Yea—no," Monica stammered, not knowing how to explain. Then on a sudden impulse she blurted out the truth.

"Mr. Mackenzie's sailing unexpectedly for home to-morrow," she said. "He—Miss Anstice, he wants me to marry him and go with him."

"Well, I declare," Miss Anstice's beautiful coiffure of silvery Grecian curls fairly quivered. She sat down abruptly. "Of course, I knew something like this was in the air," she began breathlessly, "but not so soon! My dear!"

"I—I haven't decided," Monnie confessed. "I don't know what to do. Help me, Miss Anstice. What shall I say to him?"

"If you're considering me in this," cried the older woman shrewdly, "please forget all about it. I can get along splendidly although I shall miss you, of course. The truth is Sally Richardson is dying to do Paris with me—with us, I mean, and wants to go on to Switzerland afterward. Do as your heart bids you, my dear! I never advise in matters of this sort. Too risky. But I will say this. Mr. Mackenzie's a splendid man and very fond of you—anyone can see that."

"I—I don't love him," Monnie faltered. "I'm fond of him. I like him as a friend but—but—"

"He doesn't make your heart stand still, eh?" Miss Anstice considered this, bright head on one side like a silver-plumed bird.

"Well, my dear, I've seen many a marriage in my time. Love matches. They don't always turn out so well, either. You have an even chance for happiness, starting with friendship and respect. Then, too, my dear, there's the matter of money to be thought of. I'm not a worldly person. You know that. Been poor all my life until just lately. And now that I have had my taste of luxury I'm afraid I shall never be able to do without it again. It's all so pleasant—breakfast in bed, nice frocks, being able to tip the waiter without worrying about it. Yes, money's important."

Well, pirate or not, she liked him. A girl liked to be swept off her feet. The boldness, the swiftness and unexpectedness of the situation appealed to her. Beyond the morrow she would not look. When his deep voice came to her over the telephone she would say: "I'm coming with you."

There would be, naturally, notices in the newspapers. Mackenzie was too important for his marriage to go unnoticed. People would say: "Who is she? A nobody?" and dismiss her. Except in Belvedere. People there who had ignored her, turned their faces the other way when they passed her on the street; would be anxious now to say they'd known her. It was silly—it was unworthy and Monnie knew it—to feel a thrill of triumph at this thought but she was only human and could not suppress the feeling.

She could not sleep at least until she read Dan's letter. It was burning a hole in the pillow underneath which she had thrust it.

Reluctantly Monnie drew it forth and, snapping on the rose-shaded

"I'd be the last person in the world to tell a girl to consider money only when thinking of marriage and I know what poverty can do to young people. I'd like to see you get some of the whipped cream of life while you're young."

It was a long speech and Miss Anstice was rather breathless at the end of it. She stripped off her creamy gloves and smoothed them together.

"There's your family, too," she continued after a silence. "Kay—think what a brilliant marriage would do for her."

"I've thought of that," Monnie said briefly. She crumpled the letter in her hands, looking at the fire in the grate.

"Child, child, you're shivering!" the older woman said, appalled. "Go to bed. You mustn't catch cold. We'll talk of this in the morning."

Monnie escaped, her head in a whirl, the letter still clasped in her hand.

The clock struck one, struck two. In the room beyond she could hear the faint snore of her benefactress. Monnie knew that she herself would be a wreck to-morrow, look a perfect fright, if she didn't get some sleep. She tossed and turned restlessly between the cold English sheets. Yes, Miss Anstice was right. Reason triumphed over emotion here. Her mind had been almost made up when the conversation had begun. Miss Anstice had crystallized her feeling. She would be a fool to throw away such a chance. She would say "yes" to Mackenzie on the morrow and go away with him as his wife. She would forget all the old ardours of young love. They were silly, weren't they? What was that old song she had heard somewhere? Oh, yes, "Oh, how I laugh when I think how I cried about you."

That was the right spirit, no doubt about it! Take love lightly! The trouble with her was that she had been too serious about Dan, probably had bored him by the very earnestness and steadfastness of her devotion. That wasn't what men wanted or what they cared about. They liked you to laugh, to be gay and foolish and inconsequential. Monnie had been all of that with Arthur Mackenzie.

Well, pirate or not, she liked him. A girl liked to be swept off her feet. The boldness, the swiftness and unexpectedness of the situation appealed to her. Beyond the morrow she would not look. When his deep voice came to her over the telephone she would say: "I'm coming with you."

There would be, naturally, notices in the newspapers. Mackenzie was too important for his marriage to go unnoticed. People would say: "Who is she? A nobody?" and dismiss her. Except in Belvedere. People there who had ignored her, turned their faces the other way when they passed her on the street; would be anxious now to say they'd known her. It was silly—it was unworthy and Monnie knew it—to feel a thrill of triumph at this thought but she was only human and could not suppress the feeling.

She could not sleep at least until she read Dan's letter. It was burning a hole in the pillow underneath which she had thrust it.

Reluctantly Monnie drew it forth and, snapping on the rose-shaded lamp beside her bed, slipped open the thick envelope. She had steeled herself to coolness, to indifference, but in spite of herself her heart beat faster at the opening sentence.

"Darling Monnie," (Dan wrote) "I have been all sorts of a fool and can you forgive me? You know I'm not very good at letter-writing—never was. I can't say what I want on paper. But will you just drop me a line to say everything's all right? I wired you at the hotel but they said they couldn't deliver the message because you'd already gone. I got home just as you were leaving. Wasn't that rotten luck? I'll be waiting. All my love."

Monnie stared at it, turning the thick sheet in her hands. It was the longest letter she had ever received from Dan, the most articulate. All his love! Why, she had been a fool ever to think she'd lost it! When two people felt as she and Dan did about each other, when the whole world was changed and glorified for one merely by the knowledge that the other existed in it, it was stupid—wasn't it?—to take second best.

Suddenly everything was clear to her. Her course was clear. Miss Anstice admitted she would get along without her. She would leave to-morrow, not as Arthur Mackenzie's bride but as Monica Q'Dare, going back to the man she loved. Calmness descended upon her. She slept.

Miss Anstice woke her, shaking her gently. "My dear, he's on the wire!"

"Who? Where?" Ah, she was dead, she was so weary. What did Miss Anstice mean?

"Mr. Mackenzie. He sounds terrifically excited—and happy."

It all came back to her at once. Something she had to do—to tell Arthur Mackenzie. She wasn't going to marry him after all. All her dreams of a brilliant marriage had faded. Dan still cared for her and wanted her.

She stumbled to the telephone, knotting the cord of her dressing gown.

"I'm sorry," she said in a low voice. "I can't. Simply that. No explanations. No excuses."

The man at the other end of the wire hesitated for a long moment. Then, "Can I do anything to make you change your mind?" he asked.

Monnie, feeling utterly abject and ashamed, said no. But, she added, "I'm leaving for New York to-day. If you don't mind I'm taking passage on your boat."

He gave a joyous shout, triumph in his voice.

Monnie, with Miss Anstice's surprised gaze upon her, knew what his thought was: it could be easy for him to break down her defences on the trip home.

A RECOMMENDATION TO MERCY

Sentence of death was passed on Fan Hing, the 20-year-old murderer of an elderly Shaikwan woman by the Chief Justice Mr. J. R. Wood, at the Supreme Court yesterday.

The jury were a little over 30 minutes considering their verdict, and when they filed into the court, the foreman said: "We find the accused guilty of murder, with a strong recommendation to mercy, as we think he was acting under the undue domination of the woman."

Prisoner, a slight boyish figure, witnessed the donning of the black cap and heard the sentence of death with the same stoical calm he had preserved throughout the two days proceedings.

In reply to Mr. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, the Chief Justice stated that an application by the Crown to enter a nulla prosequi in respect of the woman referred to (the wife of the prisoner) was granted, and she would accordingly be released from custody.

"I'm sorry," she said in a low voice. "I can't. Simply that. No explanations. No excuses."

The man at the other end of the wire hesitated for a long moment. Then, "Can I do anything to make you change your mind?" he asked.

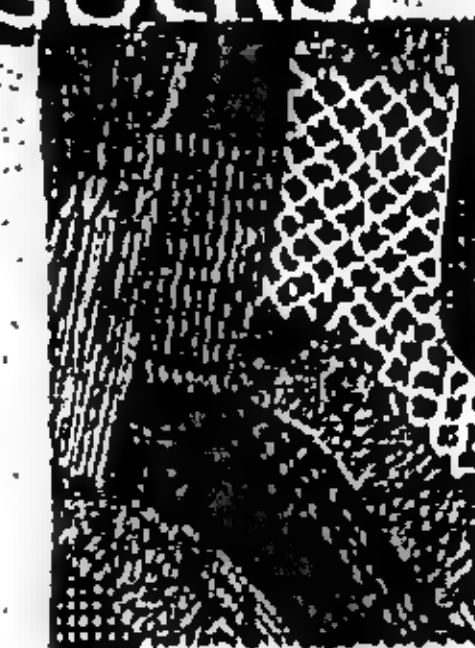

Monnie, feeling utterly abject and ashamed, said no. But, she added, "I'm leaving for New York to-day. If you don't mind I'm taking passage on your boat."

He gave a joyous shout, triumph in his voice.

Monnie, with Miss Anstice's surprised gaze upon her, knew what his thought was: it could be easy for him to break down her defences on the trip home.

SCHOLARSHIP STUDENTS FOR ENGLAND

Nanking, July 13.

In an interview to-day, Dr. Han Li-wu, director of Office of the Board of Trustees of the Sino-British Boxer Funds, stated:

"Two years have passed since the inception of the Board of Trustees for the Administration of the Indemnity Funds Remitted by the British Government, the purpose of which organization is to create endowment funds for cultural and educational purposes. But as the Board of Trustees has been very cautious in making loans and the accumulation of interest takes some time, the Board of Trustees has not yet made any grants for cultural and educational work."

"I am glad to announce that the Board of Trustees has drawn up a comprehensive scheme for the disposal of interest. One of the first things to be carried out is the sending of twenty students to England for advanced study in geography (2), geodesy (2), mathematics (1), civil engineering (1), textile arts and weaving (2), mechanical engineering (1), metallurgy (1), aeronautics (1), industrial chemistry (1), naval architecture (1), biology (1), medicine and hygiene (2), western history (1), law (1), English literature (1), political science (1)."

"The scholarships will be awarded on the basis of competitive examination which will be held beginning from August 20 in Nanking."—Router.

TARIFF REVISION

MANCHUKUO REDUCES MANY CHARGES

Changchun, July 20.

The Manchukuo Government has promulgated a new tariff list, which was approved by the Privy Council yesterday and confirmed by the head of the state, the former "Boy Emperor" of China, Henry Pu-yi, to-day.

The new tariff schedule is marked by a wholesale revision of charges, mostly downward in respect of the old list.

Thus the so-called "puppet state" of Japan has thrown a bombshell at trade barriers, which other nations have of late been building as rapidly as possible, in competition with one another.

Sixteen out of twenty-nine import items are revised downward; three items are placed on the free list; and eight are revised upward, while ten export items are made duty free or revised downward.

The imports whose tariffs are lowered include mining and electrical machinery, building materials, and rubber goods, while agricultural implements are placed on the free list.

Broadly speaking, the tariff schedule now is low where daily necessities are concerned, and comparatively high, and increased, on luxuries, including cigars.

The tariff revision is in keeping with the promise of an "open door policy" given by Tokyo when the new state was incorporated, and makes possible a more rapid development of resources in the country than restrictive duties would allow.—Router.

SUDDEN DEATH OF FOREIGNER

INQUEST ON MR. G. MOORCRAFT

Shanghai, July 18.

The inquest on Mr. George Moorcraft, who died last Thursday afternoon soon after his arrival from Hongkong, was continued yesterday afternoon in H.M. Police Court and was then adjourned to 2.15 p.m. on Friday by Mr. C. H. Haines, H. M. Coroner, after the evidence of two witnesses had been heard.

Mr. G. Wood, caretaker to the Glen Line Building, said that at about 3.20 o'clock that afternoon he was sitting at his desk when a foreigner entered the office and closed the door. He appeared to have been chased or to be afraid of someone. Mr. Wood got up, and receiving no answer to his query as to what was the matter, struggled with him slightly. Mr. Moorcraft then went out and lay in the passage-way.

Mr. Wood sent for a policeman and, meanwhile, with the assistance of one or two others, took him into the Marconi's Wireless Telegraph office to sit down. A Mr. Collingwood said that an ambulance had been sent for. After some fifteen minutes had passed, the ambulance arrived, and the deceased was taken to the hospital. Mr. Wood further said that when they picked him up from the floor, he appeared to have a pain in his left side.

Havildar 481 (Amar Singh), who was on patrol duty near the Glen Line Building on Thursday, said that he was called to the building by a Chinese Police Watchman. He saw Mr. Moorcraft sitting on a bench, supported by two foreigners. He asked whether the man was sick, and on being told that he was very sick, inquired whether an ambulance had been sent for. He was told it had. When the Fire Brigade ambulance arrived, he assisted Mr. Moorcraft into it and went with him to the hospital.

The Coroner then adjourned the inquest until Friday, in order that a medical report, not yet completed, might be handed in.

SHENG AN TO BE SALVAGED

INVESTIGATIONS OF PIRACY

Dairen, July 17.

The daring piracy and brutal murders on the s.s. Sheng An are recalled to-day by the news that salvage work has started on the ill-fated vessel, which was run ashore by the five foreign buccanniers off Hoshigaura, or Star Ranch, Dairen's popular summer resort.

The salvage boat Azuma Maru arrived recently from Moji and has commenced operations on the ship which has been left in its stranded condition since July 1, when it was deserted by the murderers, who tried to escape. It has on board a full cargo of coal, groundnut oil and other commodities, which the pirates declared they intended to sell with the ship itself at Valparaiso.

Investigations into the case are going on and it is expected that the prisoners will be tried by a local court here. The ship and her crew will, therefore, very probably be retained here as some of them will be needed as witnesses.—Reuter.

W.E.C. COMMITTEES' REPORTS

TIN AND SUGAR GROUPS PLAN FURTHER WORK

London, July 20.

Coffee, tin and sugar sub-committees of the Economic Conference wound up their work to-day and issued reports.

The coffee group shelve negotiations temporarily; the tin group exhorts the producing countries at present participating in the control scheme, to adhere to it on the basis of a flat rate quota and attaches the greatest importance to the earliest possible accord. It recommends that the governments of Great Britain, Burma, Australia, South Africa, the Belgian Congo, Portugal, Mexico, Japan, China and French Indo-China, nominate representatives to negotiate quotas with the International Tin Committee.

The Sugar Committee report requests the Bureau to continue negotiations with the countries concerned and to convene another meeting when it is warranted. At the meeting of the sugar group, the Cuban delegate withdrew his scheme for world-wide restriction of production in face of the innumerable objections to it.

REALISATION

Extracts taken from the Report of the Realisation Committee, under the 20th January 1933.

The year has been one of increased activity for the Committee.

Mr. W. D. McLaren, M. Inst. C. E., M.I. Struct. E., M.I.N.A., of Vancouver, well-known forestry expert, made a comprehensive inspection and report on Realisation work of N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd.

TRANSPORT:—Definite recommendations for the internal transportation of raw material and manufactured products, have been adopted by the Committee, and active measures taken to acquire all necessary rights of way for the main transportation line. A contract has been let for the survey and construction of 40 miles of steel track forming the line. This work is being pressed forward.

Definite recommendations were also put forward regarding transportation of manufactured goods from the forests to deep water, for export.

PLANT SITES:—Three definite sites have been decided on. All are located definitely on the main transportation line. The necessary land for these sites has already been acquired and sufficient land adjacent for town and village sites.

COST OF PRODUCTION:—Evidence from expert sources shows that we are favorably placed to produce merchandise for which there is a sustained demand, at competitive prices—with a satisfactory margin of profit.

SAMPLE PLOTS:—These are being established to ascertain the volume of softwoods available at any definite time on the whole of the plantations, and the average rate of growth for any period. The methods adopted are approved by the best expert advice obtainable both in New Zealand and abroad.

FINANCE AND GENERAL:—The policy for financing the conversion of the timber into marketable merchandise is now receiving very careful consideration by the Committee.

The above report deals with the Realisation aspect of N.Z. Perpetual Forests, Ltd., business. It shows the soundness of the investment offered by the Company. For further details address

IS AN UPPER CYLINDER LUBRICANT NECESSARY?

Practically every mail from Home brings to us fresh evidence from our Principals, Messrs. C. C. Wakefield & Co., Ltd., that an Upper Cylinder Lubricant is no longer regarded as a luxury but is becoming an acknowledged necessity amongst conscientious motorists, aviators, and mechanical engineers.

Messrs. Wakefield after exhaustive tests have produced Castrollo, an Upper Cylinder Lubricant that reduces carbon formation, friction, wear and petrol consumption.

A quart tin of Castrollo costs only $5.00 and contains sufficient oil to treat 160 gallons of fuel which is a little over 3 cents a gallon. The cap on the tin is a half oz. measure for two gallons of petrol.

The evidence above referred to is available for inspection here and consists of testimonials from ordinary motorists, racing experts, aviators, and big concerns such as Messrs. Henlys, Ltd., The Eastern Greyhound and The Pennsylvania Greyhound Omnibus Services controlling eighteen fleets totalling 850 vehicles, all reporting when using Castrollo an increase in petrol mileage, reduced carbon formation, prevention of sticky valves, reduced valve grinding and reduced running time on engines after overhaul.

Castrollo is stocked by The Peak Garage, Dodwell Motor Service Station, Duro Motor Car Co., South China Motor Car Co., East Point Garage, Hongkong Motor Accessory, Alex. Ross & Co., Nathan Road Garage, Sincora Co., Ltd., etc., but if you have any trouble in getting supplies please give us a ring (21746) and we will give immediate attention to your requirements.

NORTH POINT AMENITIES

Sociologically, the entire community has an interest in the plans of the Government to resume the bathing sites frequented by the Chinese at North Point. There is much more to the problem than ways and means of providing adequate alternative sites. Our strongest feeling, on examining the petition of those most vitally affected and the explanation of the Government's position, concerns the underlying question of public policy. We shall not easily forget the fate of the Praya East Reclamation. A large area of land wrested from the sea, thrown open to development, and offering endless opportunities for constructive model planning, sacrificed to the speculator and becoming a blighted district of hideous, inadequate tenement blocks, now rapidly developing into slums. In Kowloon, much the same story can be told. The interests of the community are ruthlessly subordinated to economic ends. Social amenities become the sport of the land market merely because they may prove a source of profit to an individual or a firm. Since stocks and shares lost their attraction to the man with idle money, one district after another has become the scene of hectic development, generally drab and unregulated. It is not altogether a healthy sign. On the contrary, the helter-skelter pace should, in itself, convey a warning of reaction. And Government, which should be seriously considering the problems created by our excessive urbanisation, turns its attention to North Point, one of the few remaining districts where there is an outlet, with a view to casting that too into the waiting arms of the speculator. To-day it is a boon to thousands of Chinese who indulge in healthy recreation after office hours. No alternative sites would fill the gap created by the resumption of this area. Cheapness and ease of transport, wonderfully handled by the tramway company, is the cogent factor in the popularity of the North Point bathing pavilions. To order removal is to deprive hundreds of their one relief from sometimes sordid surroundings. Is it not time that this Colony considered social necessities a little more and compelled economic considerations to conform to them?

NOTES OF THE DAY

The crash on the New York Stock Exchange comes as no surprise. It has been evident for some time past that the steady boom has been the result of speculative pressure, bearing no relation whatsoever to economic realities. A similarly unhealthy condition has been noted in the commodity markets and, even more dangerous, in industry itself, where production has been undertaken on a large scale in anticipation of a consumer demand which has not yet been created. Continued movement along these lines could only have the effect of precipitating a graver crisis than that which President Roosevelt was called upon to face when he entered office. The shake-out of the market should do a considerable amount of good.

FOUR-POWER PACT

The Four-Power Pact ceased to be of vital importance from the moment that the French modifications were accepted. The final signature at Rome this week is not likely, therefore, to have any material influence upon European politics. When Germany consented with the comment that the Pact was not what quite what they expected, the whole story was told. In its first form it sought to establish something very closely akin to a Directory of Europe. It was objectionable for a score of reasons. The final draft is practically innocuous; it represents resignation to solidarity among the four leading Powers, without which Europe would ultimately find itself divided into two hostile camps. The maintenance of peace would have become practically impossible. Insofar as it removes this danger, it must be regarded as useful. Above and beyond, in seeking to achieve anything like collaboration, it is inadequate. A Franco-German rapprochement is not to be secured by this method.

COLONIAL EDUCATION

At a recent meeting of the Education Circle of the Royal Empire Society, Sir George Maxwell delivered a thoughtful address on "Some Problems of Vernacular Education." Although a member of the Colonial Office Advisory Committee on Education, he spoke not as an educationist, but as a Colonial administrator deeply impressed by the importance of education as an essential factor in good administration. Reviewing past policies, he showed that all Colonies alike had neglected vernacular education, and had preferred, not unnaturally, to use European language and technique as the instrument of education and culture, and even although there is agreement in principle as to the importance of vernacular education, actual practice lags far behind the policy declared on paper, the vernacular school is the Cinderella of the educational system. There is not, in the lecturer's belief, a single British Colony where there is any attempt to raise the standard of vernacular education above the merest rudiments. We wonder whether our Director of Education would challenge this statement.

LONDON UNIVERSITY

It is said that visitors to Britain sometimes ask to be shown the Church of England and the University of London. Neither of these requests can be satisfied, for both these institutions lack a central and official headquarters. This feature of London University, however, will be somewhat modified by the gigantic building near the British Museum of which the foundation stone has been laid by the King. It is not the limb, the theta, the stature, bulk, and big assemblages of the body that denote the true worth of a man; nor is the real progress of a university necessarily to be reckoned by the tons of masonry that it piles up, or the acres of ground which its buildings cover. Nevertheless, the edifice which London University will erect on what is known as the Bloomsbury site is a notable landmark in educational progress in Great Britain. But where the new Bloomsbury building is expected to help is that it will not interfere with the activities of the existing colleges, which will continue to perform their customary functions. But it will provide an adequate centre for many university activities distinct from college enterprises; it will be an administrative headquarters; and will in innumerable ways simplify the task of welding the diverse parts of the university into a homogeneous whole, by giving to it an actual and visible centre.

JACK HYLTON—WITH

HALF AN HOUR TO SPARE
IN LONDON

"Half an hour to spare—what can I do with it in London?"

When a business friend from Vienna put this question to me in London the other day, I was startled to find that I could not give him a satisfactory answer. I was annoyed with myself for my failure, and just a little disappointed that the London I knew and love so well could not provide me with a ready suggestion. And I cast my mind over the times when in other cities of Europe I, too, have had half an hour to spare, and wanted to spend it in a pleasant and inexpensive manner. The comparison was not a happy one—for London.

On first thoughts it would seem a simple thing to while away half an hour pleasantly and intelligently. But half an hour is a difficult period to play with.

It does not, for example, permit you to travel far in a congested city in search of occupation.

WHY NOT WRITE HOME?

It does not allow you to visit a theatre, unless you wish to throw away money; even half-an-hour of non-stop variety would be expensive at five shillings.

The National Gallery would be useless unless you were in the neighbourhood and wanted to see a particular picture or two, since to wander aimlessly among that vast collection is to confuse the brain and weary the feet.

You may be a mile from the parks, where with more leisure you could sit in peace and watch the passing pageant. You might, of course, go and have a drink—assuming that you were disposed to drink and that your half-hour did not fall within one of those periods when the law decrees that you must remain thirsty. Yet even then you are seldom assured of any comfort in the places where you go to drink, unless it should be the lounge of a handy luxury hotel—where of course you pay a high price for the drink!

But wait—an ideal! Why not write a letter home while awaiting your delayed tea? Your request for pen, ink and paper is met with a flicker of eyebrows. The manageress is approached and after some consultation with the servant you are informed that you can be obliged with pen and ink, but not with paper. Often not even pen and ink are available.

So you try the lounge of the nearest hotel; but here, unless you are known, you are liable to be suspected of using the hotel stationery for an unlawful purpose!

You leave the letter till another time and rashly decide to taxi to the Thames Embankment at Westminster, where you may breathe the air and see the ships. At five minutes your taxi is held up for several minutes and again at Trafalgar-square, where it courageously negotiates the merry-go-round only to be checked in Whitehall and again at the bottom of Parliament-street by a procession; so that you have just five minutes on the Embankment before returning whence you came!

Here is one of the chief difficulties of spending your half-hour in London: there are so many pleasant places to visit, if you could only reach them in a shorter time than the half-hour you have to spare.

NOT A PLACE FOR IDLING.

The truth is that London, compared with the other capitals of Europe, is the most difficult of all cities in which to spend an idle half-hour pleasantly. I love London and the unfavourable comparison does not please me. Partly the traffic problem is responsible; the lovely things of London are not accessible in half an hour. But even without our traffic problem the capital undoubtedly does lack the amenities that would make your half-hour a pleasure instead of a penance.

Consider, shall I say, Vienna, whence came the friend who set me so hard a problem. Here your odd half-hour is never a penance. You move about easily and freely. Within a few minutes you can be standing on the edge of one of the city's many swimming pools, ready for a five-minute plunge; in London your open-air dip costs you half a day.

HOW THEY DO IT IN VIENNA.

Half an hour has never been a burden to me in Vienna. If I want a rest and a drink and a view of the passing pageant the nearest cafe is never more than fifty paces away. Here I sit and drink pleasantly, even non-alcoholically (where in London can I get a glass of iced lemonade without undue bother?), or read one of the many newspapers and periodicals provided for me by a beneficent management. I find here even the newspapers and periodicals of my own country. News of home! I read, and I feel at home again—home that a few minutes ago seemed so far away. I am impelled to write a letter to England.

I snap my fingers, and behold! as though Aladdin's genii were in attendance—ink, pen and paper and blotter are laid before me. In half an hour I have quenched my thirst pleasantly in the open air, read the news of home, written to wife or sister or friend, observed the life around me—and I still have five minutes to spare.

Five minutes. Well, that is just long enough for me to listen to the music broadcast from London and offered to me by the cafe's wireless set; or to listen to the gay lilt of the orchestra that plays inside the cafe; or to buy the new hat I should have bought weeks ago!

THE QUESTION STILL UNANSWERED.

In Vienna or Paris or Prague I can begin a "sit-down" meal within 30 seconds of sitting down and have four courses follow each other so rapidly that at the end I still have 10 minutes of my 30 to spare. And I can have my meal anywhere, in any street, without the need of tramping the pavements or taking taxi to a suitable restaurant. Whereas in London I must first find my restaurant; and then amid table-trappings of a semi-regal elaboration I must wait at least ten minutes for my first course and leave my dinner half-finished if I am not to exceed my time-limit.

If I wish just to be lazy, to spend my precious 30 minutes sitting in a chair under a tree, Vienna or

The Very Idea!

SALE AH-OY!

BY EDWARD KELLY, BARGAIN HUNTER.

A GIRL Friend by the name of Flossie, whom we have never yet met, was telling us about some bargains we could get at the various stores in town the other day.

We have always been considered pretty good at driving bargains. Whenever we pay a dollar for a drink in the hotel, the bargains. (Ouch! Who threw that brick?)

Which, to proceed, is murmuring an earful. But the sort of bargains we make and the sort of bargains our headache makes are two different animals.

In the latter case all we've got to do is autograph the south-east corner of a cheque.

We remember the last sale she took us along to. We entered the shop which had something about ET CIE on the window, and wax ladies posing in the very latest thing in corsets inside the window.

Inside the shop there were other ladies stripped to their garments too scarce and too intimate to mention, while the shop assistant buzzed around with renewals.

Being a married man, we were not supposed to look, and besides, we are above such snooping, so we cannot tell you anything except that the prices looked like the Hongkong Telephone directory.

One exquisite lace thingamajig was a perfect bargain, marked down from $100.00 to $99.99. The old saying that a woman pays originated at a bargain sale.

Speaking of bargains reminds us of the time we went along to an art exhibition in Hongkong not so long ago.

We were examining the paintings, wondering which one would be the cheapest to send to our wife's mother on her birthday, when the attendant approached us.

"What is your pet painting?" he asked, in accents sweet and low.

We were naughty with him. "Our pet doesn't paint," we said, "and, besides, we came here to buy a picture, not to discuss our girl friend's hobbies."

We thereupon stalked out, and went to Sincere's, where we bought our mother-in-law a postcard, marked down from twenty to sixteen cents. The card—was inside—a packet of cigarettes.

You can see all sorts of sales in Hongkong. Umbrella dealers, for instance, make fortunes whenever a typhoon is hovering about the Colony. This is known as sailing close to the wind.

Another specie is the land sale. Not having attended one of these sales, we are at a loss to understand how they are done. Our last experience with land sales was when we played with our model yacht in the horse trough at home.

In the harbour most of the sailing is done with junks. For that matter, most of the sales in the city are of junk.

This is what is known as salesmanship. A salesman ship is sometimes referred to as a barque, but more often there is a ketch in it.

A salesman in the wine and spirit business is nearly always on the port tack.

In the navy, of course, it's different. There they sail the Medway.

The difference between sailors and saleswomen is that the sailors sail the seas and the saleswomen sees the sales.

And now, girls, before we totter off to our daily milk and rum, let us give you a warning.

Never, never, attend sales after you are married. There's no such thing as a cheap bargain. Anyone can say "cheap". That's what the canny said when they fed it to the cat.

Never be tempted by an advertisement that says silk stockings have been reduced, or brassieres have been marked down half price.

The curse of our nation is the feverish desire on the part of our womanfolk to secure something for less than it was yesterday.

Why is it that our dresses are shorter, our bathing suits are scanty, and our scanties are scantier? It's this cut-throat sales competition.

Incidentally, what is the Hongkong dollar worth to-day?

BEDLAM REIGNS IN CHICAGO

SHARE AND COMMODITY PRICES TOPPLE

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received, July 21, 9.45 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, JULY 20. THE VIOLENT CRASH ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE HAS CAUSED A SCARE AMONG SPECULATORS, WHILE THE SITUATION IN THE CHICAGO WHEAT-PIT WAS EVEN MORE DISASTROUS. SOMETHING LIKE BEDLAM BROKE LOSE AND PRICES CONTINUED THEIR HEAD-LONG TUMBLE.

Despite the alarm with which the situation is viewed by the public, it is learned that the Government is welcoming the market break as a logical and healthy reaction from the recent heavy speculation, which officials feared might endanger the recovery programme.

If the crash is not soon checked, Washington may hold a different view, but it is believed that the panic will wear itself out and that the market will right itself again in two or three days.

ENORMOUS SELLING WAVE

It is not thought that the crash was the result of Government action, but it is known that President Roosevelt desired to prevent the rapid rise of stocks and commodities, firstly because the increases in wages have not been keeping pace, and secondly because production has been getting on a basis which consuming power will not reach until it has been stimulated by wage increases and spreading employment.

The Government has power to curb speculation and it is indicated that this power might be used. The Administration has ordered the members of all grain exchanges to report their excessive commitments.

—United Press. Per Gold Bar Co.

BEDLAM IN CHICAGO.

New York, July 20. Stocks crashed from four to twenty-three points with a huge turn-over. Tickers were half an hour behind due to further weakness in wet issues.

There were violent fluctuations in grain prices owing to fear of the Government's investigation of the speculation situation and also Hugh Johnson's statement that a crisis is ahead if distorted prices continued.

Wheat lost 13½ to 15 cents, Corn 12 to 13, Cotton $6, Silver 200 points and Wool 400 to 600. Bedlam existed in the Chicago pit as brokers fought to unload hundreds of thousands bushels due to continuation of yesterday's break. Wildest market ever seen since October 1929. Wheat crashing twenty-six cents before the decline was halted.

Brokers' loans were reported at $1,003,000,000, an increase of $12,000,000 over last week's figure of $991,000,000. —Swan, Culbertson.

SEMI-PANIC.

New York, July 20. There was a semi-panic in the Chicago Wheat Pit and prices suffered the worst fall of the year, following upon yesterday's head-long descent.

They plunged well below the dollar line, closing from 14 to 17 points down.

Rye fell 26 points, Maize 13 points, cotton 72 to eighty cents, while the American dollar jumped sixteen cents to 4.57. This is believed to be the result of arbitrage buying in connection with the British conversion offer. British dollar bonds were heavily bought, rising sensationally and closing at 121½, a rise of nine points.

The Stock Market again plunged into headlong declines, ranging from three to eleven points. Some of the alcohol slumped a further twenty points.

The day's sales were estimated at 8,120,000 shares, setting another record.

CHICAGO ACTION.

The selling wave, it is feared, is likely to continue for a day or two at least.

It is reported from Chicago that the Directors of the Board of Trade have limited grain price fluctuations for trading to eight cents a bushel wheat, five cents maize, four cents oats, eight cents rye and five cents barley.

They have also cancelled trading in weekly privileges.

At Minneapolis similar action has been taken, Mr. Duluth having ordered and imposed similar limits as Chicago upon the grains mentioned together with a 15 cents limit on fluctuations in flax-seed. —Reuter.

CANADA SUFFERS.

Winnipeg, July 20. Winnipeg has been severely hit by the developments in Chicago. The grain market was stamped under heavy stop-loss orders, dollar wheat vanished. December futures were quoted at 82 cents a bushel. —Reuter.

H.K. DOLLAR DOWN.

The Hongkong dollar fell a half-penny to-day as a result of the fall in silver prices in London and New York, and the appreciation of sterling.

LORRY DRIVER FINED

DAIRY FARM EMPLOYEE WITHOUT A LICENSE

A milk deliverer of the Dairy Farm Company was fined $20 by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, for driving a lorry without a licence.

Detective-Inspector Chester-Woods said that yesterday morning he was in a Police car in Lower Albert Road near the Dairy Farm premises and saw another car approaching.

Defendant, driving the heavier of the farm lorries, without any warning, cut into their path. The Inspector had to pull up very sharply to avoid what might have been a nasty smash.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

TRUTH IS TOO SIMPLE FOR US; WE DO NOT LIKE THOSE WHO UNMASK OUR ILLUSIONS. —Emerson.

A coolie's actions near a vehicle in the car park opposite the Y.M.C.A. this morning, aroused the suspicions of the attendants. He tried to run away but was caught and given a pummeling before being released.

Four months' hard labour was meted out by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning to an unemployed Chinese, who pleaded guilty to theft of a purse, containing 50 cents, from a companion. Defendant was caught in the act by a district watchman.

Seen to act suspiciously in Queen's Street, a Chinese carrying a suitcase was questioned by a constable. He stated he was given the bag to carry by a man at the Yuen On Wharf. The defendant was taken to the wharf where the complainant, a newspaper vendor, identified the suitcase. No order had apparently been given him to carry the case. Six weeks' imprisonment was imposed this morning.

SOVIET AND BRITAIN

REPUDIATION OF DEBTS TO BE RAISED IN TRADE TALKS.

Referring to the tariff truce during a Parliamentary answer to-day, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. Hore Belisha, said that under the terms of the resolution adopted by the Organising Committee of the World Economic Conference, the Governments concerned agreed that they would not adopt any new initiatives in the matter of tariffs before June 12th or during the proceedings of the Conference, except that in the case of any individual Government power is reserved to withdraw at any time after July 31st, 1933 on giving one month's notice to that effect.

In view of the British Government's statement which subscribed to that resolution, we remained bound by its terms during any adjournment of the conference, unless its proceedings had been finally concluded.

Inspector Alexander. — It is right at the junction of Jackson Road and Des Voeux Road. Mr. Ring was driving East, and he had the red signal against him. Another car was waiting to go towards Jackson Road. Apparently Mr. Ring had not noticed the light, and went straight ahead.

Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $10.

Mr. L. R. Dixon, of Wallace Harper & Co., was fined $15 for having driven his car, in May Road, which was closed to motor traffic on July 9.

Mr. C. L. Sandes, Layton & Co., was fined similarly for having driven his car, down Wyndham Street, which was closed to traffic.

Mrs. Sandes, representing defendant, said that there were no notices there, and after parking the car in Wellington Street, it was the easiest way of coming down.

Inspector Alexander said there were notices at the bottom and top of Wyndham Street.

ROLLER DRIVER FINED. A Government motor roller driver, Tang Tak, was fined $5 for having no appropriate licence, and $10 for driving the roller in Wilmer Street, which is closed to motor traffic.

Traffic Sergeant Brittain said that defendant turned into Wilmer Street to go into Des Voeux Road, and as this particular street was very steep, the roller skidded, and struck a Chinese.

DANGEROUS DRIVING. A fine of $50 and a warning that his licence would be cancelled the next time was given Siu Por-huen, the driver of private motor car who was summoned for having driven in a dangerous manner in Des Voeux Road.

Traffic Sergeant Brittain said that defendant was driving along Des Voeux Road from East to West at a speed between 15 and 20 miles an hour. A tramcar was going in the same direction, and ahead of the tram were two rickshas. Defendant tried to overtake them, but finding that he would collide with the rickshas he cut in front of the tram. If the driver of the tram had not put on the brakes, it would have collided with the rickshas.

Wong Sun, the driver of a lorry, was also warned that his licence would be cancelled, and was fined

THREE EUROPEANS IN COURT

FINES INFLICTED BY MAGISTRATE.

Several traffic offenders were summoned before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, including three Europeans.

Mr. J. Ring, of the P.W.D., was summoned for having failed to obey a signal given by a police officer in uniform in Des Voeux Road, Central, at 9 a.m. on July 6.

The defendant said that all he could remember about the incident was that he was proceeding in his car along Des Voeux Road towards Garden Road. He saw a tram coming in the opposite direction, and also several cars which were stationary. It never occurred to him that he was not through. He did not remember seeing the signal.

Mr. Schofield. — Is there any difficulty in seeing the light?

Inspector Alexander. — It is right at the junction of Jackson Road and Des Voeux Road. Mr. Ring was driving East, and he had the red signal against him. Another car was waiting to go towards Jackson Road. Apparently Mr. Ring had not noticed the light, and went straight ahead.

$30 for having driven in a dangerous manner near Repulse Bay.

It was stated that defendant was driving round a bend, and at the same time looking at the bathhouse. He did not notice the approach of a bus from the opposite direction, and the bus had to stop to avoid a collision.

Inspector Alexander said that Mr. Wynne-Jones was a passenger in the bus, and could be called to give evidence. The defendant was driving straight towards the bus, and the passengers thought that the lorry would hit the bus.

Defendant stated that he turned round to tell a coolie, seated in the back of the lorry, that he had no match-stick to give him.

EXCESSIVE SPEED.

Lau Kam-wun, driver of a private car was fined $30 for having driven at an excessive speed in Whitefield.

Traffic Sergeant McInnis stated that defendant was doing about 30 miles an hour.

Wong Yun-chung was fined $25 for the same offence.

It was stated that he was driving behind the first defendant's car, and also doing about 30 miles an hour.

HENNESSY ROAD ACCIDENT.

Nelson Lee, the driver of a private car was summoned for having failed to report an accident in Hennessy Road in which he knocked down an old man.

Traffic Sergeant McInnis said that the old man was knocked down by defendant's car about 6 p.m. on July 7 near the Texas Rilling station in Hennessy Road. The old man alleged that defendant took him in the car, and asked him not to go to hospital or report the matter to the police.

At Canal Road the defendant put the old man down, and let him find his own way home. The old man reported the matter at the station, and was sent to hospital, where he remained one week. He had bad wound on the face. Defendant did not report the accident at the station, and caused the police a great deal of bother in tracing him.

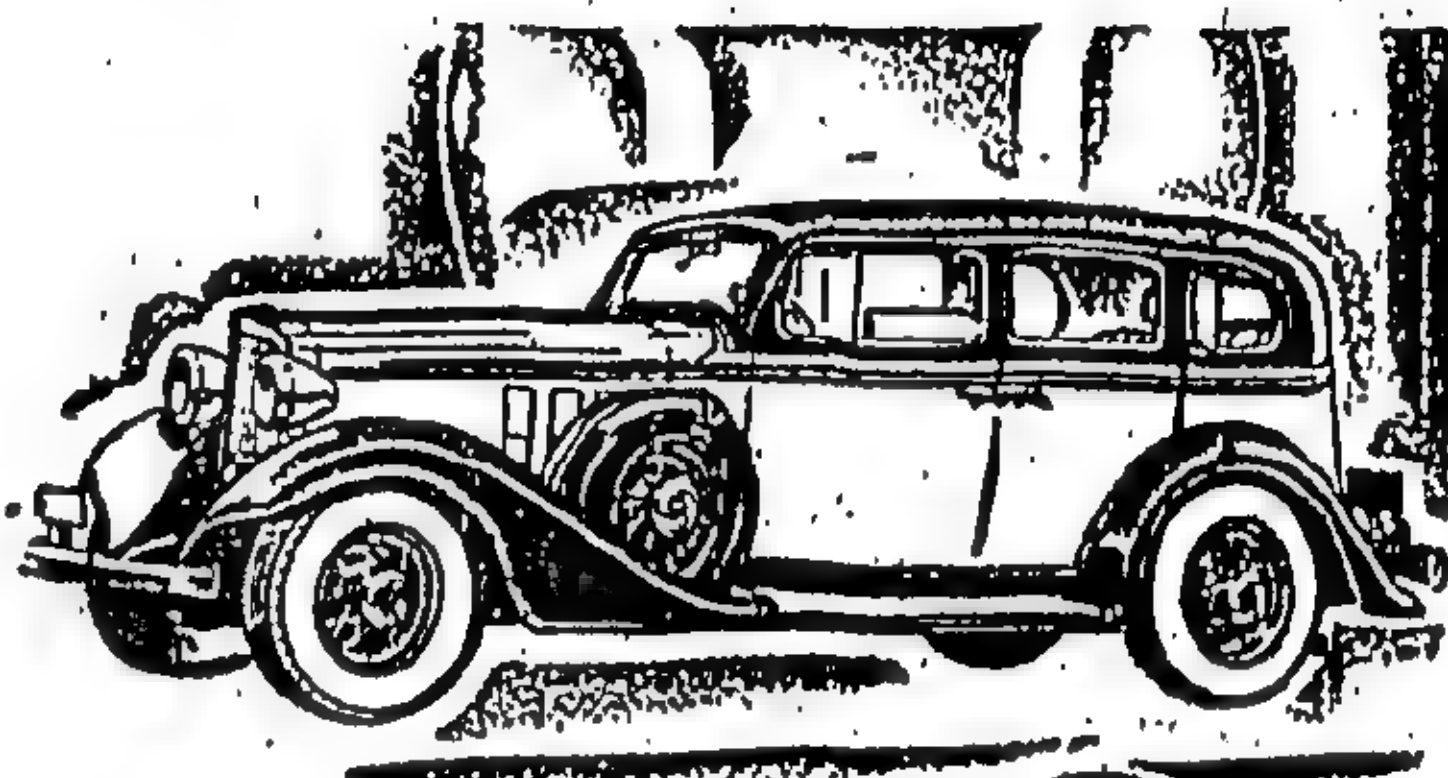

Mr. Schofield ordered defendant to pay the old man $25 as amends, and also fined him $25.

YORKSHIRE CRICKET IN THE OLDEN DAYS.

MATCHES WITH NORFOLK.

The earliest County match played by Yorkshire took place on the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th September, 1833, at the Hyde Park Ground at Sheffield, against Norfolk, who then possessed the Fulmer Pitch, concerning whom the Rev. R. S. Holmes remarks that he was almost as famous as Dr. W. G. Grace became later, and he adds that "these two giants of cricket met and conversed at Canterbury in Pilch's 'closing years'."

In answer to a query raised by himself as to why Norfolk was chosen in 1833 and not another county of greater prominence in the cricket world, the Rev. R. S. Holmes says "one reason was that Norfolk lay nearer to Yorkshire than the 'southern counties, and distance in those days, where railways scarcely existed, was a matter of serious import." "But," he adds, "were there any other county clubs 170 years ago? (He was writing in 1904) Only one that I can find, and that was Sussex, who in 1833 played England three times, and these matches comprised their season's 'entire programme'."

He then makes reference to Fuller Pilch and proceeds "But there is a further reason why Norfolk was selected. In the 'Sporting Magazine' of September, 1829, I have come across this interesting note:

"Pilch was originally Norfolk 'bred'; migrated into the North for 'bread and water' at an early age; and learnt to handle bats and balls at Sheffield, where he became distinguished, and where he was 'found by a Suffolk Spirit'."

He goes on to remark "Now Pilch never assisted Sheffield at their 'tests' with Nottingham. Even at that day—1842—when somebody 'proposed that an eminent player—not a member of the Sheffield Wednesday Club—should be engaged to play, an amendment was carried that none but bona-fide members should take part in this or any other 'match. A very sound decision, which has been characteristic of Yorkshire ever since. Pilch, however, was a member of the Sheffield Wednesday Club, for how long I do not know; but in 1841, Mr. Michael Bass of Burton wrote to the Committee to allow four of their players, 'Marsden, Sampson, Vincent, and Fuller Pilch to play for the North of England against the South. Very naturally, then, when Yorkshire wanted to play a genuine County match, they looked to Norfolk, the 'birthplace of Pilch'."

About 1835, Pilch migrated to Town Malling in Kent and in 1842, to Canterbury where (except for a short period at Oxford in 1847) he subsequently resided until his death at the age of 67 on May 1, 1870. He played for Kent from 1836 to 1864 and won many matches for that county—being noted not only for his batting and fielding, but also for his expert knowledge of the game. He was a member of the Kent XI during the same period as that magnificent cricketer Mr. Alfred Mynn, with whom he played in that exciting match on August 19, 20 and 21, 1839, when Kent (with scores of 116 and 84) beat Kent (who made 180 and 77) by 8 runs.

Though I am deviating somewhat from my immediate subject, I cannot refrain from setting out at the conclusion of this Article those noble "In Memoriam" lines by Mr. Provost of Tottenham which appeared in "Bell's Life in London" on the 10th of November 1891, following the death of Mr. Alfred Mynn on the first of that month.

There were three amateurs in the Yorkshire team, and a like number in the Norfolk XI, whose side also contained three members of the Pilch family.

The match resulted in a victory for Yorkshire by 120 runs. The scores are set out below:

Yorkshire played four more matches with Norfolk namely two in 1834 and two in 1836. Of these, Norfolk won the first match in 1834 (played at Norwich) by 272 runs (Norfolk 215 and 191—Yorkshire 87 and 97—Fuller Pilch making 87 (not out) for Norfolk in their first innings and 73 in their second).

The second of the 1834 matches (played at the Hyde Park Ground at Sheffield) was won by Yorkshire because, for some unexplained reason, Norfolk gave up the match—the scores being Yorkshire 191 and 206; Norfolk 75 and 289 (for 7 wickets)—Fuller Pilch making 153 (not out) in Norfolk's second innings.

Victory in the first of the 1836 matches (played at Norwich) went to Yorkshire by 24 runs—the scores being Yorkshire 114 and 49; Norfolk 52 and 87—Fuller Pilch making 16 and 25 (not out). The second of the 1836 matches (played on the Hyde Park Ground, Sheffield) was won by Norfolk by one wicket—score, Yorkshire 60 and 88; Norfolk 73 and 77 for 9 wickets—Fuller Pilch earning "a pair of spectacles."

IN MEMORIAM.

Jackson's pace is very fearful; Willsher's hand is very high; William Caffyn has good judgment, and an admirable eye; Jimmy Grundy's cool and clever, almost always on the spot; Tinley's slow is often telling, though they sometimes catch it hot; But however good their trundling—pitch or pace, or break, or spin—Still the monarch of all bowlers, to my mind, was Alfred Mynn.

Richard Duff is cool and cautious, with his safe and graceful play; If George Griffith gets a loose one, he can send it far away; You may bowl your best at Hayward, and whatever style you try Will be vanquished by the master's steady hand and certain eye; But whatever fame and glory these and other bats may win, Still the monarch of all bowlers, to my mind, was Alfred Mynn.

You may praise the pluck of Burbridge, as he plays an up-hill match; You may thunder cheers to Miller for a wondrous running catch; You may join with me in wishing that the Oval, once again, Shall resound with hearty plaudits to the praise of Mr. Lane; But the Gentleman of England the match will hardly win Till they and another bowler such as glorious Alfred Mynn!

When the great old Kent Eleven, full of pluck and hope, began The grand battle with All England, single-handed, man to man, How the hop-men watched their hero, master, muscular, and tall, As he mingled with the players, like a king amongst them all; Till to some old Kent enthusiasts it would almost seem a sin To doubt their county's triumph when led on by Alfred Mynn!

The Sir Frederick and 'The Veteran' bowled straight, and sure and well; Though Box behind the wicket only Looker can excel; Though Jimmy Dean as long-stop would but seldom grant a bye; Said the fine old Kentish farmers with a fine old Kentish grin: 'Why there ain't a man among them as can catch our Alfred Mynn!'

And whatever was the issue of the frank and friendly fray (Aye, and often has his bowling turned the fortune of the day), Still the Kentish men fought bravely, never losing hope or heart; Every man of the Eleven glad and proud to play his part; And with fire such mighty cricketers, 'twas his lot to win—As Folke, Weaman, Hillyer, Fuller, Pilch, and Alfred Mynn!

His broad head was ever seen, as the changing seasons pass; All were proud of him, all loved him—As the changing seasons pass; As our champion lies a-sleeping underneath the Kentish grass—Prove, surely, we will name him, and forget him were a sin—Lightly he lies there upon this, kind and merry Alfred Mynn!

BRITAIN V AMERICA DAVIS CUP TIE

PLAYERS ON TOP

GENTLEMEN HAVE TO FOLLOW ON

London, July 20. The Gentlemen fared badly against the Players at Lord's to-day and are staring defeat in the face. Forced to follow on against a score of 309, the were still in arrears when stumps were drawn and had lost six wickets in the second innings.

The Players advanced their overnight score of 278 for 9 to 309 before the innings closed. C. S. Marriott, the former Cambridge Blue and present Kent spin bowler, returned a very good analysis in face of the score, taking four wickets for 37 runs. The Gentlemen collapsed miserably before the professional attack, and only D. R. Jardine, the England captain, battled with any confidence or success.

JARDINE. Out of a total of 143, Jardine completed 60, a splendid innings of restraint and skill under difficult conditions.

Following on, the amateurs fared little better. Turnbull, the Glamorgan skipper, batted cleverly before losing his wicket. He scored 72, and played a leading part in the Gentlemen's score of 162 for 6.

To-day the Gentlemen start 14 runs behind with four wickets to spare, and an easy victory for the Players is indicated.

CAN PERRY LAST OUT?

MUCH DEPENDS ON DOUBLES

Thousands of tennis enthusiasts are expected to attend the Stade Roland Garros, at Autueil during the next three days and to be thrilled by one of the greatest International tennis matches of recent times, when Britain and America meet in the Davis Cup Inter-Zone final.

The tie, the winners of which qualify to challenge France for the Cup next week, starts this afternoon, and as is usual two singles will be played.

To-morrow the doubles—generally the most important match of the series—will be fought and on Sunday the remaining singles.

America is putting a team on to the court, which apart from Vines, did not have to experience the exhausting Wimbledon championships, and this is expected to be a big point in their favour.

It is feared that Perry has become somewhat stale as a result of his continuous match play during the last twelve months, and others feel that Austin will allow his defeat by Vines at Wimbledon last year to affect him when he meets in the Davis Cup.

British hopes however, are raised by the splendid victory obtained by Britain over Australia in the zone final result will hold more than the odd rubber no matter in whose favour it be.

WIN DAVIS CUP DOUBLES

Copenhagen, July 20. Denmark took the lead to-day in the qualifying tie for the 1934 Davis Cup competition, when Jacobsen and Ulrich beat Stalos and Xydis in the doubles by three sets to one.

The match extended to 43 games, Denmark taking a useful lead of two sets. There was a grim struggle in the fourth set, culminating in the Danes winning at the twelfth game.

Jacobsen and Ulrich just managed to clinch the first set at 7-5 and won the second with greater ease, the Greeks obtaining only three games.

Stalos and Xydis, displaying better form, annexed the third set at the tenth game, but had to give best in the fourth set.

Previously Jacobsen had beaten Stalos in the first singles, and Xydis had won against Ulrich.

Results and scores in this tie to date are:

SINGLES. Jacobsen (Denmark) beat Stalos 4-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Xydis (Greece) beat Ulrich 4-0, 6-4, 10-12, 6-4, 6-1.

DOUBLES. Jacobsen and Ulrich (Denmark) beat Stalos and Xydis 7-5, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.—Reuter.

TO-MORROW'S GOOD PROSPECTS FOR LAWN BOWLS LEAGUE LEADERS

Everything points to the Kowloon Bowling Green and Craigengower, the leading teams in both divisions of the Lawn Bowls League, scoring double successes this Saturday.

The Bowling Green seniors have to visit their neighbours, the K.C.C., but current records do not suggest an upset for the Bowling Green.

The second string are hosts to the Police and this should be easy for the Peninsula bowlers.

BEWARE RECREIO.

Craigengower visit Kowloon Docks in the first division—not an easy task, yet one which should not prove beyond them. The Juniors receive the Yacht Club, and in spite of their lapse last week, the three C's should win with ease.

The Recreio first team have to visit the Police and it is quite on the card that they will suffer another defeat.

Civil Service, formidable challengers in the second division journey to Sookungpo to engage the Indian Recreation Club. Here again a victory for the visiting team is indicated, although the Indian may benefit from green advantage.

Some of the teams on view will be: Craigengower v. Cavanagh, L.

CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS BY C.R.C.

DECISIVE VICTORY OVER K.C.C. WHICH MAY SETTLE ISSUE

(By "Veritas")

The Kowloon Cricket Club practically said farewell to the "C" Division championship of the tennis league yesterday, when they were beaten on their own courts by the Chinese Recreation Club.

The Chinese, who, as a combination are now to the league this year, are worthy successors to the team which has won the "C" Division Shield for the last three or four years. By their decisive victory yesterday they clearly demonstrated their ability to carry off the honours this summer.

The K.O.C. gave rather a disappointing display. Ferguson and Jack, usually one of the club's most successful pairs, lost all three sets, and not even the inclusion of F. Grose and I. Macaulay could balance up the deficiencies.

GROSE RETURNS.

Grose played his first game for several weeks. He has been ill and this obviously left a mark on his game yesterday. Nevertheless, in company with A.E. Collins, he scored a clever success over W.K. Cheung and Ip Kow.

Most of the other results were as expected. Craigengower continued their winning way and may yet prove strong rivals to the C.R.C. The Army also scored an easy win, as did the Filipino Club.

The Radio should have won against the Hongkong Cricket Club. The C.P.A. had the satisfaction of taking three sets from Kowloon Dock, but have still to taste the wine of success.

The scores were as under:

K.C.C. v C.R.C.

F. Grose and A. E. Collins (K.C.C.) beat W. K. Cheung and Ip Kow, 6-3; lost to P. M. K. Wong and P. H. Sin, 2-6; lost to M. C. Lau and B. C. Liang, 4-6.

I. J. and J. J. Ferguson (K.C.C.) lost to Cheung and Kow, 4-6; lost to Wong and Sin, 0-6; lost to Lau and Liang, 3-6.

G. A. White and I. P. H. Macaulay (K.C.C.) lost to Cheung and Kow, 2-6; beat Wong and Sin, 6-3; lost to Lau and Liang, 1-6.

DEUTSCHER KLUB v ARMY T.C.

B. Saltau and V. Singer (D.K.) lost to I. Jarman and A. G. Savell, 1-6; beat W. G. Lewis and G. Gould, 7-5; tied with P. Shillito and E. Wilson, 6-6.

H. Lubeseder and H. Boese (D.K.) lost to Jarman and Savell, 3-6; lost to Lewis and Gould, 4-6; lost to Shillito and Wilson, 4-6.

O. May and G. Sommer (D.K.) lost to Jarman and Savell, 3-6; lost to Lewis and Gould, 3-6; lost to Shillito and Wilson, 3-6.

C.B.A. v KOWLOON DOCK.

K. Blyth and N. Whitley (C.B.A.) tied with A. Duncan and W. Tillery, 6-6; lost to V. Hast and White, 2-6; beat G. Millard and V. Sturgeon, 6-0.

J. King and T. Whitley (C.B.A.) tied with Duncan and Tillery, 6-6; beat Hast and White, 6-2; lost to Millard and Sturgeon, 4-6.

W. Hirst and D. Smith (C.B.A.) lost to Duncan and Tillery 0-6; lost to Hast and White, 2-6; lost to Millard and Sturgeon, 0-6.

FILIPINO CLUB v C.S.C.C.

S. S. and S. A. Hussain (Filipino Club) beat J. C. Pilcher and J. Bonall, 6-0; lost to V. Hast and White, 2-6; beat G. Millard and V. Sturgeon, 6-0.

Dr. A. Valosa and H. A. Ribeiro (Filipino Club) beat Pilcher and Bonall, 7-5; beat Skinner and Boddington, 6-2; beat Fowler and Edge, 6-2.

T. A. Leonard and M. A. Sousa (Filipino Club) tied with Pilcher and Bonall, 6-6; beat Skinner and Boddington, 6-2; beat Fowler and Edge, 6-1.

I.R.C. v K.I.T.C.

M. R. Abbas and A. K. Sufiad (I.R.C.) beat M. A. Khan and Firdos Khan, 6-2; beat Ahmed Khan and M. Singh, 6-2; beat S. R. Saleh and Forat Ali, 6-0.

A. A. R. Bux and A. J. H. Esmail (I.R.C.) tied with Khan and Khan, 6-6; beat Khan and Singh, 6-2; beat Saleh and Ali, 6-3.

C.C.C. v POLICE.

H. J. Howard and G. Kelly (C.C.C.) beat Calthrop and Sparrow, 6-3; lost to C. Pile and T. Pile, 5-7; beat Smith and Loughlin, 6-3.

E. Zimmermann and Broadbridge (C.C.C.) beat Calthrop and Sparrow, 6-3; beat Pile and Pile, 6-4; beat Smith and Loughlin, 6-1.

W. A. Reed and Y. C. Mok (C.C.C.) beat Calthrop and Sparrow, 6-1; beat Pile and Pile, 6-2; beat Smith and Loughlin, 6-2.

H.K.C.C. v RADIO S.C.

J. E. Henry and G. P. Poonchun (H.K.C.C.) drew with William Wu and N. Oman, 6-6; lost to William Chan and E. Davis, 4-6; beat G. Singh and G. M. Khan, 4-0.

W. H. Walker and L. G. Robertson (H.K.C.C.) beat Wu and Oman, 6-4; lost to Chan and Davis, 4-0; beat Singh and Khan, 6-2.

LATEST BASEBALL RESULTS

New York, July 20. League leaders experienced an unhappy day in the Major Baseball Leagues, the Giants, Yankees and Senators all being defeated. The Giants were nosed out by Pittsburgh, and the Senators paid fruitless visit to the diamond eventually to be blanked out by Detroit.

Cleveland obtained the mastery of the Yankees, scoring thrice in the leaders' single run.

NEW YORK STOCK
EXCHANGEYESTERDAY'S MARKET WEAK

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was weak yesterday. Business done 8,120,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—Stocks crashed from four to twenty-three points with a huge turn-over. Tickers were half an hour behind due to further weakness in wet issues. There were violent fluctuations in grain prices owing to fear of the Government's investigation of the speculation situation and also Hugh Johnson's statement that a crisis is ahead if distorted prices continued. Wheat lost 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 cents, Corn 12 to 13, Cotton 1/8, Silver 200 points and Wool 400 to 500. Badlam existed in the Chicago pit as brokers fought to unload hundreds of thousands bushels due to continuation of yesterday's break. Wildest market ever seen since October 1929. Wheat crashing twenty-six cents before the decline was halted. Brokers' loans were reported at $1,000,000,000, an increase of $12,000,000 over last week's figure of $991,000,000. Time money was quoted at 1% for 60 days and 1 1/2% for 90 days.

FASCIST MARCH IN LONDONMOSLEY LEADS
BLACKSHIRTS

London, July 17. What is termed as "the first Fascist march" through London took place here yesterday evening when more than 1,000 members of the British Fascist League, headed by Sir Oswald Mosley, marched through the west-end of London. The men wore black shirts after the Italian fashion and the girls black blouses. The marches attracted considerable attention in the thronged streets but no incidents happened. The purpose of the demonstration was to enroll new members.

The procession was accompanied by a detachment of police and was led by a music band and standard bearers carrying the national flag. When the procession passed the Cenotaph, the officers upraised their arms in Fascist salute. When the demonstrators returned to headquarters near Victoria station, Sir Oswald Mosley addressed his enthusiastic followers from the top of a motor-car. This, he declared, was the first Fascist march through London, and the event one day will have historic significance. Further marches are planned for all principal towns of England and they will be symbols of the Fascist march to power. Although only started a few months ago, its growth has been more rapid in its development than any other Fascist movement in the world.

SOCIETY WOMAN
ATTACKED

Washington, July 16. Mrs. Clinton Lockwood, member of a socially prominent family in Springfield, Mass., is being held in a gaol at Palma, Island of Majorca, and efforts of the United States Government to obtain her release have been futile, the State Department revealed today.

With Mrs. Lockwood are four American men, all of whom are accused of attacking a civil guard. The five Americans have been held in the Palma gaol for a month and, according to their version of the affair, Mrs. Lockwood was accused of violating some minor ordinance and the guard struck her with a sword. The altercation that resulted in the five arrests followed.

Spanish authorities deny that Mrs. Lockwood was struck by the guard and contend that the Americans attacked the guard without justification. Mr. Claude Bowers, the U.S. Ambassador, cabled from Madrid that the authorities refused to promise a release and that the Americans would have to be tried.

MACAO WATER-WORK

BIG SCHEME BEING UNDERTAKEN PURIFICATION PLANT

(Our Own Correspondent).

Macao, July 20. Hongkong readers are familiar with the water problem at Macao, for, whereas there are occasional shortages of water in Hongkong, the problem at Macao has been a perpetual one for the last 50 years.

It is not surprising therefore that the Portuguese in their endeavours to secure sufficient supplies of water for the needs of the residents of the colony should have spent at least $2,000,000 in the making of exhaustive studies and the acquisition of materials and the carrying out of certain works to provide Macao with water for drinking purposes and also for fire fighting and the watering of streets.

A visit to Macao at the present time offers an added attraction to those of a technical turn of mind by reason of the works being carried out there by the Macao Waterworks Company.

PURIFICATION PLANT.

Close to Green Island, made famous by its association with the Cement Company which derived its name from this island (the island being now completely linked to the colony), the Waterworks Company is carrying out its operations for the installation of a complete purification plant for water gathered from the river.

It would be no means correct to suppose that Macao is totally without water up to the present, for there are many streams of good water and many of the wells in the colony contain water that is drinkable. Macao's major supply, however, has come from sources outside the colony. All these sources of water do not provide nearly sufficient water for the needs of the population and for many years the Portuguese have endeavoured to furnish a supply that will be both adequate and safe. The story of the efforts of the Portuguese to get water is well known and they met with indifferent success. It was only after studies had been made by a Private Company that anything like a thoroughly adequate scheme was drawn up.

LARGE RESERVOIR.

The Macao Waterworks Company, in carrying out their works near Green Island, have been busy in preparing for the first stage of their engineers' project. This comprises the taking of water from the river and storing it for a sufficiently long period to cause the greatest part of matter in suspension to be precipitated, before the water so stored be subjected to chemical treatment that it may be suitable for use. From this big storage reservoir, with a capacity of over 30,000,000 gallons, the water is drawn up by lift pumps and as it passes through mixing chambers it is treated automatically by the addition of alumina sulphate.

THE SOVIET ALSO ATTACKED

FOREIGNERS CALM

Tokyo, July 21.

A crusade against Britain and Russia, in which editorial abuse sets itself no limits, is being conducted by the Japanese Press.

London is their target because of the increase in the tariff on imports into India, and Moscow is suffering because of a renewed outburst against Communism shaping itself.

Besides the two countries being lampooned in the daily newspapers and articles in the leading Japanese magazines, posters, bitterly denouncing Britain and demanding a severance of diplomatic relations with Russia, are being placarded.

VIRULENT OUTBURST.

Foreign quarters view these journalistic eruptions calmly as one of the virulent outbursts of xenophobia which, they assert, the Japanese Press chronically displays.

With Britain and Russia in disfavour, America is now basking in the rather unaccustomed sunshine of eulogistic tributes from writers who not long ago were more inclined to hurl verbal brickbats at that country.

ANTI-BRITISH ATTITUDE.

Observers believe the campaign against Britain will be quickly suspended if satisfactory agreements are reached as a result of the projected truce parleys in Simla or London, while the termination or continuance of the vilification of the Soviet is likely to depend largely on the outcome of the present negotiations for the sale of the Chinese Eastern Railway.—Reuter.

The treated water passing through Coagulation Tanks, sheds most of the remaining matters in suspension, such matters being discharged through channels into the sea. The clear water then passes through rapid gravity filters of the Reiser type.

It is noteworthy, in passing, to state that the type of filter being installed at Macao is the latest produced by the well known German makers, the system of flushing being of the very simplest.

PUMPING SYSTEM.

From the filters the water enters the pure water reservoirs, and is kept there in a constant state of movement, passing into a pump well at the lowest part of the works. From this chamber the water is drawn up by high lift pumps and delivered into the mains, chlorine gas being introduced at this stage. The water being delivered into the mains is kept at a steady pressure, all excess flow rising to a Balance Reservoir 260 feet above the level of the city. When this reservoir, which has a capacity of 500,000 gallons, is full, the pumps stop functioning and the water flowing back into the mains keeps up the pressure, the pumps resuming their work when this reservoir is empty.

The work of erection of the buildings and the various units for the purification process has been carried out by the Hongkong Engineering & Construction Co., Ltd., the Managing Director of which, the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, has taken special interest in the work being carried out by his firm.

VALUABLE ASSET.

The local authorities have paid no less attention to the progress of the works and both his Excellency Lt. Col. Antonio Jose Bernardino de Miranda and Dr. P. Rocha Santos, Acting Governor, have followed the progress of the work most carefully. Dr. J. Perreira Magalhães, who, as Acting Governor when the scheme was first formulated, gave so much encouragement, continues to show the same interest in the development of the scheme.

When ordinary water is treated, including stages of chlorination, will result in the formation of disinfectant.

SEVERE JAPANESE DUMPING

DISCUSSION IN COMMONS

London, July 20.

On a motion for the adjournment of the House, the Commons discussed Japanese competition in silk and cotton goods.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister admitted that the preferences in the Colonies were quite inadequate to cope with the dumping. In some cases, the duties would have to be increased by two hundred per cent.

He was certain that if the present negotiations with Japan were unsuccessful, the Colonies would take steps to protect British interests.—Reuter.

The greatest perturbation, which is shared by many merchants in the Colonies, is felt by British manufacturing interests whose marks are being dislocated by the importation of increasing quantities of such commodities as cotton piece-goods, silks, hosiery, shoes, hats, and even fruit, at prices which are in most cases but a fraction of normal production costs.

SOME EXAMPLES.

The extent of the displacement of British goods by Japan is shown by what is happening in the piece-goods trade. Ceylon imported during the first quarter of last year 2,502,982 yards of Japanese piece-goods out of a total importation of 6,461,358 yards; in the corresponding period of this year the Japanese share was 4,249,740 yards out of a total of 5,528,515 yards. In 1930, Japan imported cotton piece-goods and some other textile commodities from Japan to the value of approximately £34,000; in 1931 the figure had risen to £52,000 and last year to £185,000. Nyasaaland took from Japan last year about 44 per cent. of the total amount of piece-goods imported, while the British share was only 13.1 per cent. India having 20 per cent.—The fact is quite clear that, in many trades, Japan is making substantial sacrifices in order to capture extensive markets, with grave effects upon British trade.

MADRID POLICE FACE DANGER

HUNDREDS NOW OUT OF ACTION

The archives of Madrid's "Scotland Yard" reveal that the life of a plain-clothes policeman in the capital is not a happy one. A bomb in the Calle Alcalá has accounted for the hundredth death in this corps.

Since its establishment 25 years ago, hundreds of these detectives have been placed out of action by serious wounds caused not by the men they were attempting to capture but by the crowd or passers-by who took them for criminals.

They have been chased by night watchmen, shot at by civil guards, and mobbed by indignant onlookers forgetting that detectives wear plain clothes.

Recently in a town noted for its Catholic sentiments, a detective was obliged to draw his revolver to reduce a malefactor to obedience in the public thoroughfare. By crying out that he was a monk in mufti, the man was able to draw an angry crowd eager to protect the servant of the Church. The detective barely escaped with his life.—Reuter.

purified by modern means for the first time in the history of the colony and the announcement of the inaugural date is keenly awaited by the residents of the colony, the Chinese no less than the Portuguese, both communities having contributed to the realisation of this splendid mark of development.

Deck. Engine Room Artificer Lacy also ordered Stoker Petty Officer Johns to proceed to the Quarter Deck where the case was investigated by Lieut. E. H. Dyke, who placed accused in the Captain's Report and put him under close arrest.

MEDICALLY EXAMINED.

"Accused was later examined by the Medical Officer, Surgeon Lieut. W. S. Davidson, who reported that he found accused in perfect health and quite clear mentally. He was quite sober but his breath smelt slightly of alcohol.

At the conclusion of the report to the Court, Lieut. Commr. Bockett-Pugh said he investigated the case on the following day when the accused was charged with striking Stoker Petty Officer N. S. Johns, his superior officer, being in the execution of his office. He warned accused that he was not obliged to say anything unless he wished to do so and any statement he might make might be given in evidence. Accused admitted striking Stoker Petty Officer Johns and stated that he had no reason to put forward for so doing. Accused signed the statement.

ACCUSED'S STATEMENT.

The statement in mitigation of punishment made by accused was then read as follows:—

"Having pleaded 'Guilty' to the charge, I wish to say that I very much regret striking Stoker Petty Officer Johns but I have a very hazy idea of the matter and can think of no reason why I should have done so.

"The only reason I can give is that I had a touch of the sun or something that happened to my brain which made me lose control of myself, as I can give no reason for making the ridiculous request that a Stoker Petty Officer should do duty with me down below as this has never been customary in the Cicala.

BROKE LEAVE.

"On the day in question I landed at 1.15 p.m. and went to the Canteen where I had some beer to drink, walked around for about one hour, then had a couple more beers but seem to have forgotten what happened as I broke my leave by 40 minutes, a thing that I have not done before in the ship in which I have been for 2 years and three months. I went to sleep until supper time. From the time I went into the engine room until I saw the medical officer one and a half hours afterwards I have a very hazy idea of what happened. It all seems like a dream. I can give no reason for it as I had had no previous argument or anything with Stoker Petty Officer Johns. Perhaps the beer and the sun had something to do with it.

NOT PROVOKED.

"I have only fifteen more months to do in the Service and as this will seriously affect my pension it seems impossible that I should have done this thing unless I had been very much provoked which was not the case. All I can do is to express my great regret for what has happened, and again to state that I can give no reason for so doing.

RAPID PULSE.

Evidence was given as to accused's condition by Surgeon Lieut. W. S. Davidson, who said he examined accused about one and a half hours after the incident and found him in perfect health, though somewhat excited. There was a slight rise in his temperature and he had rather a rapid pulse. These symptoms partly could be attributed to the excitement of the moment.

In answer to a question, witness stated that when examined accused seemed quite responsible for his actions, but the time which elapsed between the incident and the examination would have made a difference to his responsibility for his actions.

GOOD CONDUCT.

Lieut. Commr. Ian H. Bockett-Pugh, captain of the Cicala, stated that during the past eighteen months he had had no complaints whatever about the conduct of the accused. He set an example and was a hard worker, and must have had a very good effect on the crew.

INDECENT PICTURE IN PAPER.

MANAGER OF TEA FIRM CONVICTED

A conviction was registered by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon against Wan Chi-ming, manager of the Wah Sang Tea Merchants, Queen's Road Central, in connexion with the publication of an advertisement for the "Lalchee" and "Rose" brands of tea, in the Chinese newspaper Tsun Wan Yat Po, which contained an alleged indecent drawing. Defendant was discharged on the undertaking by him never to publish this or any other similar picture in an advertisement in this colony.

Mr. W. P. Thompson, A.D.C. (Special Branch) conducted the prosecution, while Mr. Leo D'Almada, junior, appeared for the defence.

Ho Chun-yeung, a clerk attached to the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, produced twelve copies of the Tsun Wan Yat Po, containing the advertisement.

Cross-examined by Mr. D'Almada, the witness said it was the censor's duty to read the Chinese newspapers. Witness filed the daily Chinese papers.

Mr. D'Almada—This prosecution is not prompted by the S.C.A.?

Magistrate—He cannot speak to that.

Witness stated the four small characters between the two ladies in the picture meant—"This picture contains a meaning."

Mr. D'Almada asked if the word yi (meaning) could also mean "purpose."

Magistrate—Most unfair for you to ask that from this witness.

Mr. D'Almada—Your Worship will note that I asked the question and that you objected.

Magistrate—He did not claim to be an interpreter. You are not being unfair to anybody else, only unfair to him.

Yeung Man-yuk, Interpreter, Central Magistracy, for the Cantonese dialect, said he held a second class Interpreter's certificate. The four small characters in the picture were—Wah (picture), chung (cover or in), yu (dwelling, inhabiting or to live in), yi (a meaning, idea, opinion). He would say the four words together meant—"There is an inherent meaning in the picture."

Witness, at the request of Mr. Thompson, read from dictionaries by Giles and Eitel, the meaning of yu yi, which was—"to entertain a thought."

Replying to Mr. D'Almada, the witness said yu yi was a classical phrase. The public could possibly take the word yi to mean purpose or idea. The curious minded man would be led by the words to look for the puzzle in the picture. On the question of seeing the four characters, witness said it all depended on the reader's eyesight. If witness had time, after seeing the words, he might seek to solve the puzzle. He often saw characters with approximately the same meaning on handbills but not in newspapers. The handbills were puzzle pictures.

Witness did not agree with counsel that the four characters may also mean "There is a puzzle." The word puzzle was very rare in the Chinese language.

Counsel's Plea.

Evidence of seizure was given by Detective-Sergeant Ellis, who stated that at the Wah Sang Tea Merchants shop, they found ten tins of tea, which when prised open were each found to contain a photographic copy of the advertisement. Defendant told witness he burnt the remainder of the pictures on hearing of the Police visit to the Tsun Wan Yat Po premises.

Mr. D'Almada submitted there was really no case to answer, on two grounds only. Defendant was charged under an ordinance which fortunately put the onus on the prosecution to prove their case. The two points which the prosecution were bound to prove, were (1) that the defendant had published the picture in the newspaper with culpable intention to demoralise the public—that was the ordinary rule of the law, (2) that some member or members of the public had been demoralised by the picture, or by its publication. These two grounds would not have arisen if the picture had been, on the face of it, indecent. On the evidence produced by the prosecution, he submitted, there was not a tittle that could prove these two elements. Mr. Thompson had admitted in his evidence that the picture as it stood upright was not indecent.

There was no direction on the picture to convey indecency, and further, there was no direction for the public to turn the picture upside down.

He put it with confidence to his Worship, sitting as Judge and Jury, that a merchant using an advertisement for tea required to show that the picture had a tendency or allusion to the kind of tea. If the same advertisement were for rejuvenating pills it would be indecent. The attention of the public was not drawn to the four small characters. The defendant used the picture because the two ladies were holding flowers in their hands. There were numerous constructions to be placed on the words.

Indecency would have been proved if there had been a fencing or a dotted line on the picture, and the reader had been directed to turn the picture upside down, or fold the paper into half, but there was no indication of any sort.

Magistrate—You are in fact asking me to accept that the indecent part of this picture is purely accidental.

Mr. D'Almada—Yes, quite accidental.

Counsel proceeded to explain that during the Chinese New Year season, defendant received a greeting card the back of which contained the picture. In May, he suddenly realised that the picture would be a "lovely advertisement" for his "Lalchee" and "Rose" tea. It was the picture of the two ladies holding the flowers that prompted him to use it. He would put it strongly to his Worship, that even Mr. Agassiz would not have seen anything in the picture, and it would have appeared in the Government Gazette.

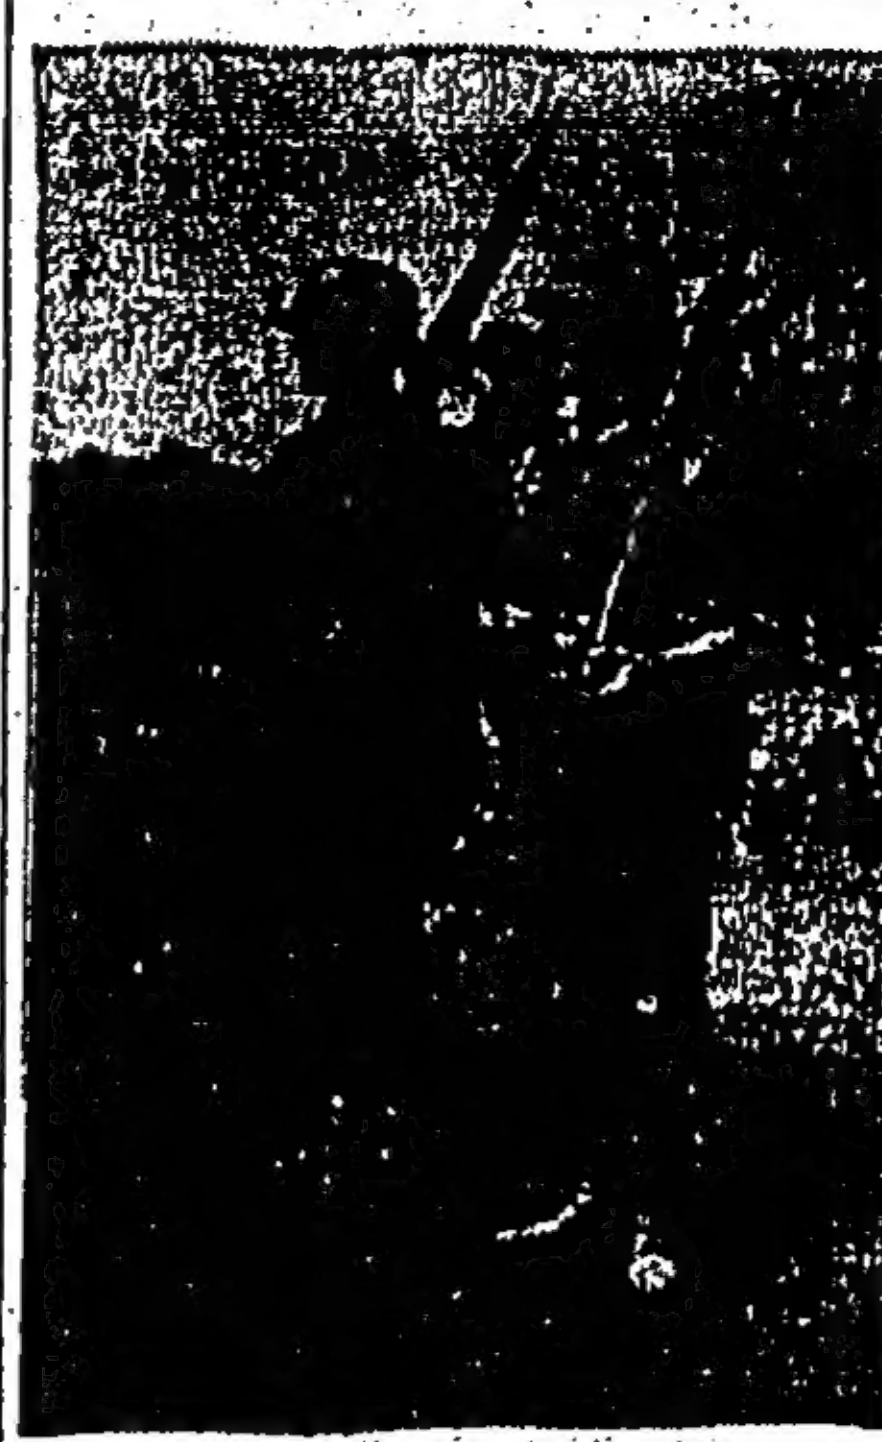

Magistrate—These four characters are on this card. This card has got nothing to do with tea and therefore the four characters which were on the card and which appeared in this advertisement have nothing to do with tea.

Mr. D'Almada—He thought that because of the flowers.

Magistrate—The two bunches of flowers may be in his mind. Your suggestion about the four characters does not hold water. It must mean something else because it is not connected with rose or lalchee.

His Worship said he was afraid he could not agree with counsel. The whole of the case turned entirely on the four characters. To his Worship's mind (and counsel had already demonstrated the characters had no reference to tea) the characters solely referred to the picture. They had evidence that these four characters had been seen on puzzle pictures. The ordinary person on seeing them would know there was something in the picture. If these characters had not appeared in the picture his Worship would have thrown the case out long ago, but, his Worship held, the normally educated Chinese on reading them, would realise there was something in the picture.

His Worship decided to register a conviction, as stated above. Summonses against the editor and publisher of the Tsun Wan Yat Po, in connexion with the same publication, were adjourned sine die at the previous hearing. Mr. C. Y. Kwan is for the defence.

AWAITING REPLY OF CONSUL

ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT OF PASSPORT CASE

For a reply to be received from the Vice-Consul at Manila as to whether he had really intended the visas to cover passage through a British Colony, Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, adjourned until to-morrow the case in which Eugene Shtsky, 29, mechanic of Poland, and Victor R. Borevsky, 26, of Manchuria, were charged with entering the Colony without valid passports.

Defendants at the last hearing claimed they had passports. First defendant stated he was a Russian naturalised Chinese.

Det-Sergeant Mottram said that on Friday last the I.G.P. wrote to the Consul but no reply had yet been received. A mail from Manila arrived this morning, but the Superintendent of Mails, had informed the officer that there was no letter from the Consul. Another mail was expected later in the day.

A SYMPATHETIC MAGISTRATE

DEALS LENIENTLY WITH WOMAN

Sympathy was extended by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning to a young Chinese woman who was charged with the possession of 210 po plu lottery tickets. She had in her arms a three months old baby girl, and stated that because of poverty she carried the tickets to earn 25 cents.

His Worship cautioned defendant, but warned her the next time she would be punished. "You get seven dollars wages a month, and you spend thirteen on po plu lottery," said the magistrate in imposing a fine of $10 or two weeks, on a Chinese youth, on a charge of possession.

NOTED PUBLISHER'S DEATH

VISCOUNT BURNHAM

London, July 20.

Lord Burnham, leading publisher and prominent parliamentarian, died in his sleep last night.

His passing was sudden, and comes as a shock to London, where he was a distinguished and popular figure. On Tuesday he attended the meeting of the Select Committee on India, and appeared in the heat of health.—Our Own Correspondent.

Harry Webster Lawson, Viscount Burnham, was born in London in December 1862. His father was the first Lord Burnham, who made the Daily Telegraph a success.

Educated at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford, he entered Parliament in 1885 as a Liberal and sat on that side of the House with intervals till 1906. In 1910 he was returned for Mile End as a Unionist. Had he devoted himself entirely to politics, he might have taken a prominent position in the Cabinet, but, realising the power he wielded as the owner of an important independent newspaper, he preferred to concentrate his chief attention on it. In 1903 he took the place of his father as managing proprietor of the Telegraph and since then has directed its policy and given assiduous attention to the details both of its news and business sides, making all important decisions himself.

In spite, however, of his constant preoccupation with the paper he found time to do an enormous amount of public work, having served—often as chairman—on innumerable commissions, committees and the like, and spoken much at meetings. He was perhaps the most indefatigable diner-out of his time and was in great demand as an after-dinner speaker. Among the bodies on which he served were the committees on House of Lords reform, army promotion and officers' resettlement, seditious literature and overseas settlement, for he was a recognised champion of Empire solidarity and development. In 1921 and 1922 he was President of the International Labour Conference at Geneva and in 1924 presided over the Public Health Conference at Bordeaux. His name will always be associated with the schools, for he was chairman of the committee on teachers' salaries in 1920 and made the award fixing revised rates, which became known as the "Burnham Scale." When it was re-adjusted in 1924, Lord Burnham's services were again requisitioned.

Chairman of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association from its inception, he succeeded his father as president of the Newspaper Press Fund and the News-vendors' Benevolent Association. During the war he was chairman of the Press Conference which dealt with the regulation of news. As president of the Empire Press Union, he officiated at its conferences in Canada in 1920 and in Australia in 1925. In 1927, he accepted an invitation to preside over the International Press Conference at Geneva in August.

In 1884 he married Olive, daughter of Sir H. de Batho and has one daughter. He succeeded his father in 1916 and for his services during the war was made a Companion of Honour in 1917 and a Viscount in 1919. The viscount ends with him. His brother, the Hon. Wm. A. W. Lawson, is heir to the barony, and has a son Col. F. Lawson, who became connected with the managerial side of the Daily Telegraph after the war.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Working with animals is no job for a nervous actor, is the opinion of Gene Raymond, who, with Loretta Young, is co-starred in "Zoo in Budapest," first Jesse L. Lasky production for Fox, coming on Saturday to the King's Theatre.

While it is not an animal picture, despite the fact that more than 500 lions, tigers, panthers, leopards, elephants, chimpanzees and other assorted jungle beasts are used the action of the picture requires Raymond to handle some of them.

He has the role of an orphan boy, born and reared in the zoo, who has associated with animals all his life. A love affair develops between him and Miss Young, a young love-starved girl from a neighbouring reformatory-like orphanage, who is marched to the zoo once a week with the other girls for an "educational lecture."

The whimsical romance between the boy and girl is lightly etched against an animal background.

"What! No Beer?"

Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante stole a march on Congress. While the nation's legislators were battling over the beer question, these two comedians completely settled the problem in their new comedy, "What! No Beer?" which comes on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre. This Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy covers the whole agitation for beer, from the election to the fight in Congress for legalization.

But while the politicians waged their wordy battles, Keaton and Durante pitched in. In the course of their operations they got caught in a war between rival beer-running gangs who sought control of their output. The story, therefore, weaves its way between comedy and excitement.

The romantic interest is provided when Buster falls in love with the sweetheart of one of the gang leaders. The feminine lead is taken by Phyllis Barry, who made her screen debut opposite Ronald Colman in "Cynara." Other important roles are played by Roscoe Ates, brewmaster of the Keaton-Durante brewery; John Miljan and Edward Brophy, rival beer racketeers; Henry Armetta, Charles Dunbar and Charles Glynn. "What! No Beer?" was directed by Edward Sedgwick, who directed Keaton and Durante in "Speak Easily."

"Just My Luck"

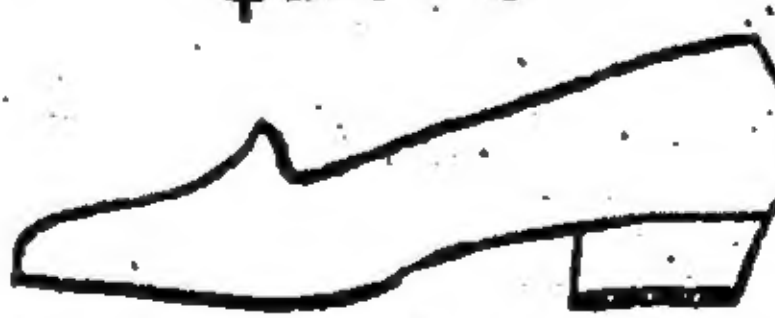

"Just My Luck" at the Central on Sunday is a screen adaptation of the Aldwych farce "Fifty-Fifty," Ben Travers responsible not only for the adaptation but also the sparkling dialogue. The nature of the story affords Ralph Lynn characteristic screen material, and the outdoor locations, particularly the race-course scenes, extend the interest far beyond the possibilities of the stage.

For half his natural span with the screen Ralph has been a music teacher with whom fate has dealt unkindly, a fact largely due to his diffidence and a disinclination to assert himself. From being kind of football of chance the suddenly blossoms out as a self-assertive gentleman, with a whole and hearty belief in himself, a change due to a chance meeting with a proper man of such type.

The self-retiring, modestly-garbed music teacher in adorning himself as a pushful, energetic, well-dressed business man, changes his outlook on life and rushes onward to success and trouble. The part is one that admirably fits the actor and Ralph Lynn's interpretation of the character is excellent. Winifred Shotter shows great advance as a screen actress.

"Humanity"

Many actors go to Hollywood determined to crash into motion pictures, but discover they have made the trip merely for their health.

Alexander Kirkland reversed the order of this common procedure. For following his success on the New York stage, he went to the Pacific Coast in search of health and, on the day following his arrival in Hollywood, found himself signed to a Fox Film contract and assigned to a featured role in "Surrender."

Kirkland has since played featured roles in "Charlie Chan's Chance," "Almost Married," "Devil's Lottery," "Passport to Hell," and other pictures, including "Strange Interlude."

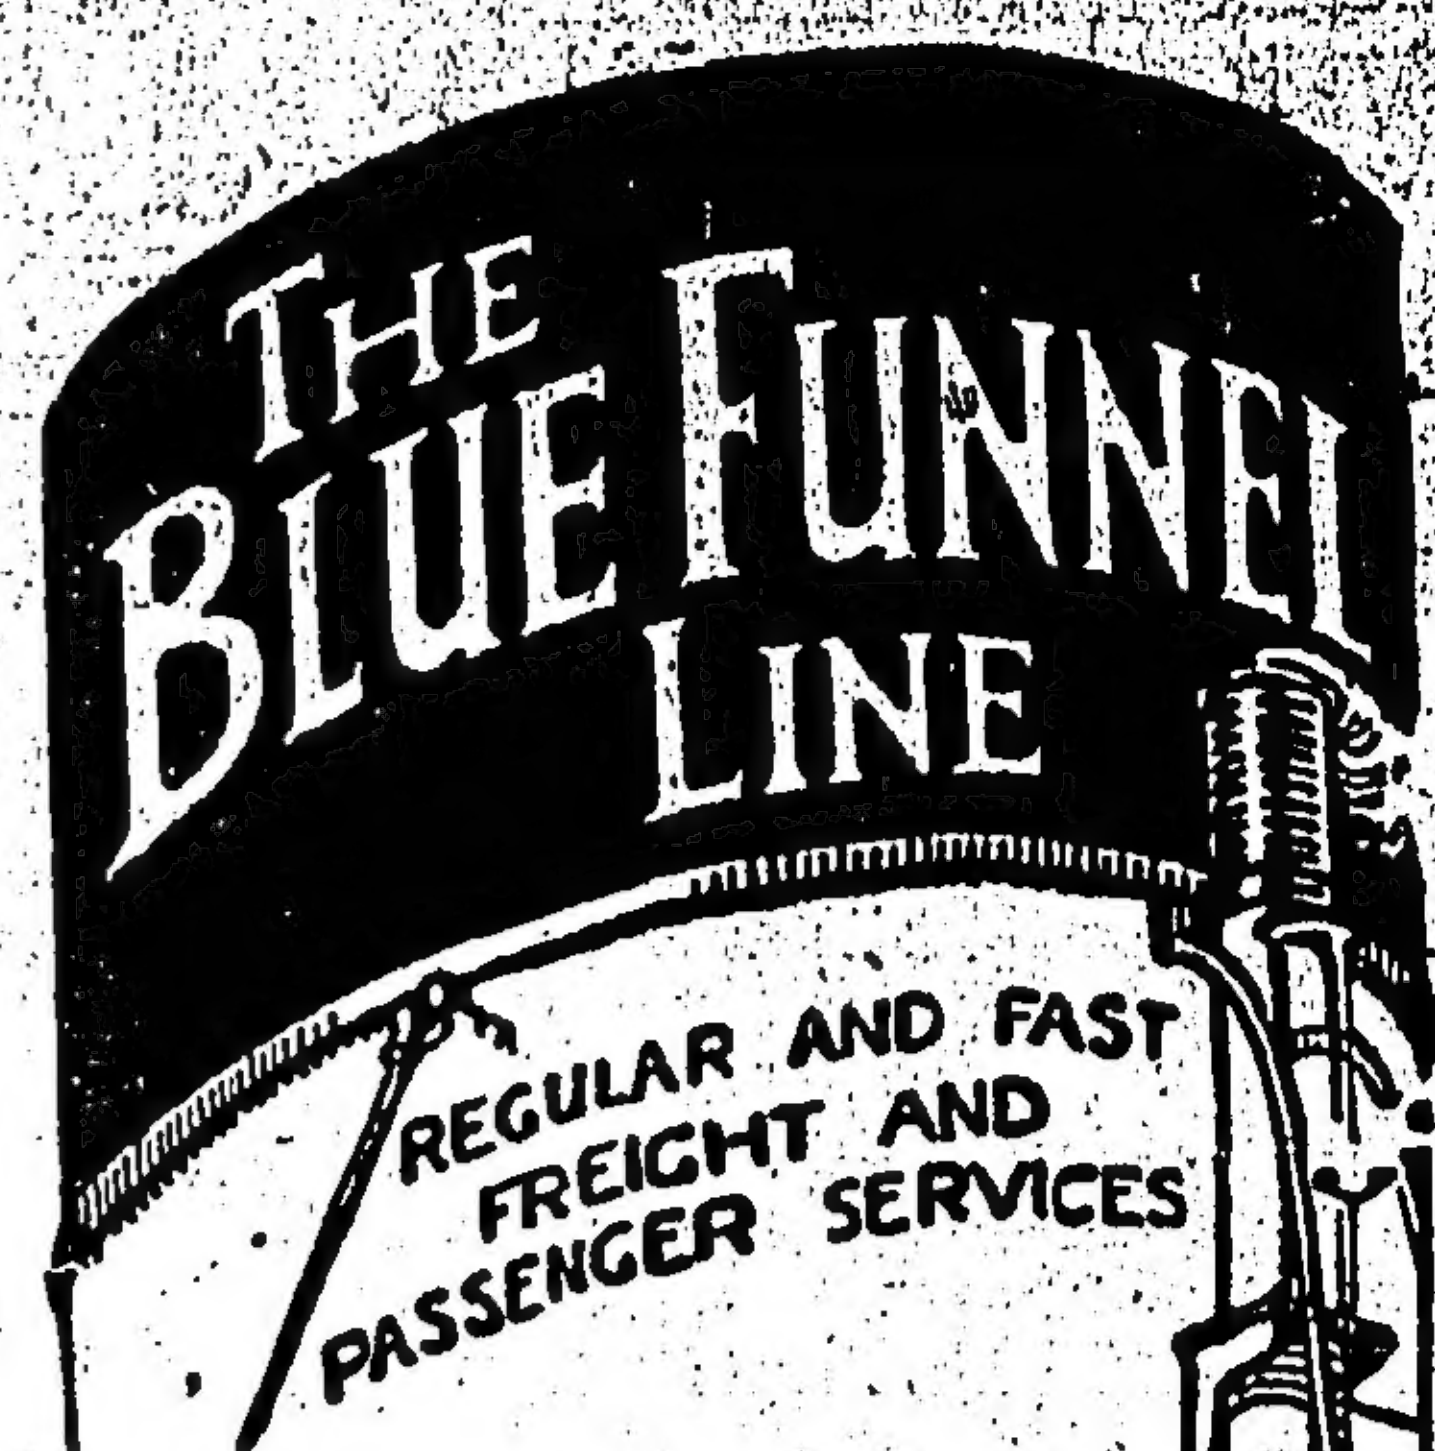

Kirkland's latest picture is "Humanity," now at the King's Theatre, in which he is co-starring with Boots Mallory. Other important roles are enacted by Ralph Morgan and Irene Ware.

"Humanity," directed by John Francis Dillon, is based on a story by Harry Fried and prepared for the screen by Bradley King. It revolves about the adventures of a young doctor who forsakes the ideals of his physician father and takes a disastrous excursion into the realms of society and big money.

Economy in newspaper advertising depends entirely on the popularity of the media, or in other words, the actual cash sales figures.

This is why you notice the names of all enterprising commercial undertakings in the advertising columns of the "Morning Post" and "Telegraph."

As a Matter of Fact—

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

While cross-ruff hands are not difficult to play after you get them started, they do require definite planning.

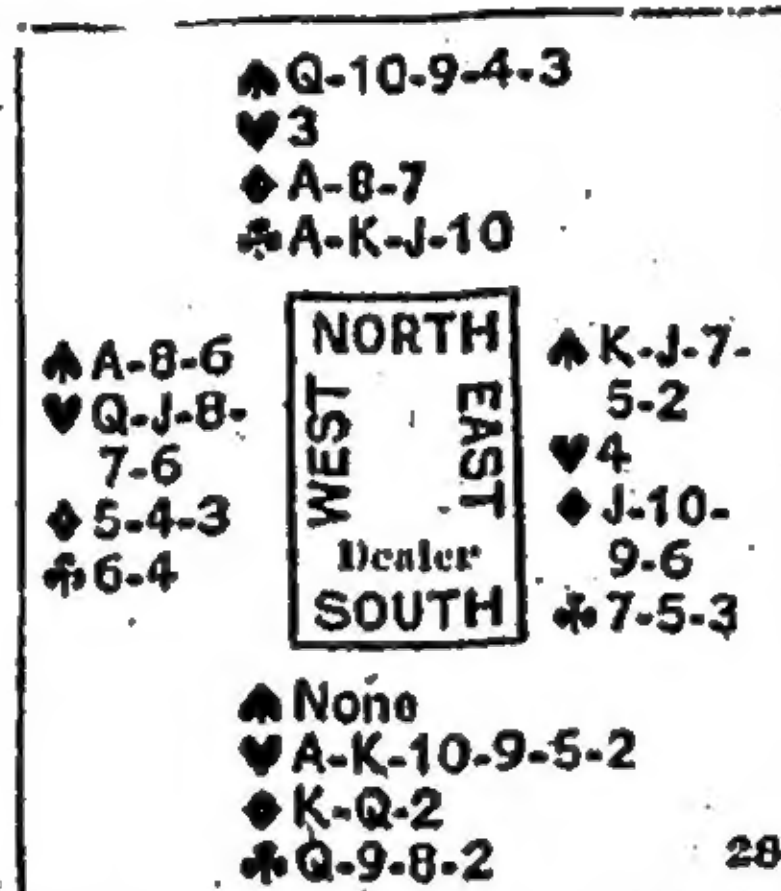

Remember that after you start a cross-ruff you cannot swing over to another line of offence. If you permit your opponents to get into the lead, they will naturally lead trump in order to kill a trump in dummy and one in your hand at the same time.

Here is a cross-ruff hand that can easily go wrong if the declarer becomes careless.

The Bidding

South, the dealer, opened the bidding with one heart. West was quite satisfied and passed. North bid one spade, making a one over one force. This was quite satisfactory to East, who passed.

South bid two hearts. North then showed his second suit by bidding three clubs. Before re-bidding hearts, South showed the safety of the hand by going to four clubs and when North went to five clubs, South took the contract to six.

The Play

East's opening lead was the four of hearts which North, the declarer, won in dummy with the ace. With the freak distribution found in the North and South hands, declarer knew that he could expect to find a freak distribution in the opponents' hands.

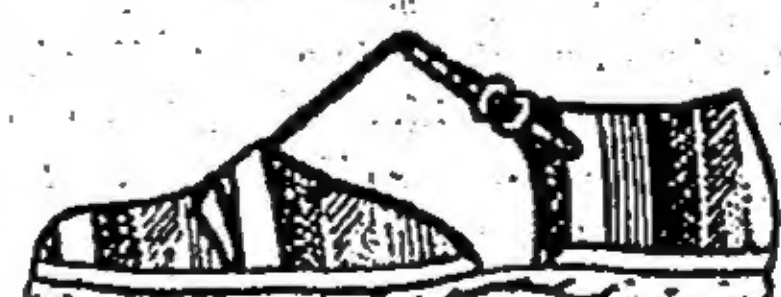

Undoubtedly the lead of the four of hearts was a singleton. North knew that to lead the king of hearts and take a discard would give the opponents a chance to ruff. They would then immediately lead a trump which would spell defeat.

The declarer played the hand safely and led a small heart, trumping with the ten of clubs. East showed out, discarding a diamond.

Declarer's only chance to make his contract was to find each of the opponents with three diamonds. It was a long chance, but it had to be taken immediately because if any more hearts were led East would have an opportunity to discard more diamonds. Three rounds of diamonds were taken, and luckily for the declarer they were evenly divided.

The hand was now set for the first cross-ruff. A spade was ruffed in dummy and a heart ruffed by the declarer. The declarer could now, by cross-ruffing, ruff three more spades in dummy and two hearts in his own hand. The opponents were under-ruffing at the end and therefore won the last trick, but the declarer had made his small slam contract by cross-ruffing the hand out.

EXCELSIOR CAFE SOLD UP

AUCTION REALISES

In the plethora of business failures with which the Official Receiver's list is filled, typical instance is provided by the Excelsior Cafe which to-day has passed out of the realm of catering enterprise.

A few months ago it set out with a flourish of many exotic dishes to tempt the jaded palate of diners-out, and ysakusky as a delicacy imported from Muscovy and santany from Hindustan where all rich food is expressed in terms of curry, were two tit-bits.

But times were hard, and competition keen, and it was difficult to retain the custom particularly of that class of gourmand who "wine while they dine."

Their application for selling liquor with food was associated by the authorities with the business of a dancing academy situated in the same building, until the case was made to look as if an advantage ordinarily conferred on a catering business would be shared by the dancing institution also.

The business of the Excelsior Cafe declined and last month it was placed in the hands of the Official Receiver, principally as a result of the pressing claims of creditors.

The business entered on its final stage this morning when on instructions of the Official Receiver, the "goodwill, stock-in-trade, furniture, tenant's fixtures, electric fans and lamps, and fittings; plate, linen, glass, china, cutlery, etc. etc. of Pura Chaud carrying on business as the Excelsior Restaurant," were put up for auction.

It was offered in one lot, with the exception of the goodwill, which was held to be of some account and was offered as a separate value. It produced only moores from the fairly large number of Chinese present, and the auctioneer, Mr. L. Lamont, did not seek to press the matter.

Without loss of time, he proceeded with the visible part of the sale, and got a first offer of $1,000. The soda-fountain, installations and modern style furniture were worth far more

SPAIN'S LATEST DECREE

BUYING

Madrid. — Britain, which imports more Spanish products than any other country, will probably benefit by a new decree establishing that Spain should buy from the nations buying from her.

The Government is authorised to reciprocate purchases from countries with which Spain's balance of trade is favourable and which consume 85 per cent of the total exportation of any one of Spain's basic agricultural products during a period of three months.

Fulfillment of the terms of the decree, and regulation of the amount of the return purchases, is left in the hands of the Inter-Ministerial Commission on foreign commerce.

Great Britain's imports from Spain in 1931, last year for which official figures are available, amounted to 287,021,683 gold pesetas (approximately $9,900,000), and Spain's imports from Great Britain totalled about half the amount.—Reuter.
